Steel firms being probed over possible price-fixing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department has launched a civil investigation to determine whether the nation's major steel companies practiced improper price-fixing in the sale of steel used for household appliances and some automotive parts.

"We are conducting a civil investigation into possible price-fixing, and it does include most of the major steel companies," said department spokesman Mark Sheehan.

The probe could lead to a civil suit against steel companies. "Whether there will be a suit depends entirely on what we find," Sheehan added.

He said department antitrust officials who are handling the case have no present plans to open a criminal investigation.

The probe came to light after Jones & Laughlin Steel Co. and U.S. Steel Corp. disclosed they had received a civil investigative demand from the department.

The CID is used in civil investigations and it is similar to the subpoenas used in criminal probes.

"We sent out about 10 CIDs to steel companies within the last two or three weeks," Sheehan said. He declined to list the companies which received the demands for information.

The department is seeking information concerning steel price increases during the past three years, including a recent round of price hikes, Sheehan said.

Senate panel backs Carter, votes to pare funds for B1

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Appropriations Committee voted today to cut funds for the B1 bomber from the defense appropriations bill.

The vote to support President Carter's decision not to go ahead with production of the bomber was 9 to 5.

The vote came after Carter asked the Senate to carve more than $1 billion from the Pentagon budget because of his decision against producing the warplane.

Carter asked for a reduction of $1,017,400,000 for the 1978 fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

The appropriations bill, passed by the House before Carter announced his decision, included $1.5 billion to build five planes.

The bill is scheduled for action by the full Senate later this week.

Backers of the B1 have indicated they will fight to keep funds for the bomber in the bill in an effort to force Carter to continue the program.

However, Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., have said they would support the President's decision. O'Neill, who had supported the B1, predicted after Carter's announcement that the House would reverse its decision to appropriate money for the plane.

Cracking down over excessive violations

CHP puts 'aerial eye' on truckers

By TONY AULT
PB Staff Writer

"Smilin' Jack" took to the air this morning over the Pomona Valley much to the dismay of a number of long-haul truckers.

The California Highway Patrol, flying a short take off and landing (STOL) single engine aircraft, known to truckers as "Smilin' Jack" or "The Bear's In the Air," had begun a special air surveillance program over the San Bernardino Freeway.

The special enforcement program with the STOL aircraft was instituted by area division Cmdr. David Martin and Ontario area Cmdr. Jim Perkins after special surveys showed that out of 80 truck accidents on valley freeways since April 1, 49 were the fault of truck drivers.

Causes of the accidents investigated were excessive speed, unsafe lane changes and following too close.

According to Lt. Jim Rassmussen of the Ontario office, in the past month there has been an 89 per cent increase in truck accidents on the freeways.

"It's almost unbelievable the number of violations they (truckers) commit."

One division spokesman said excessive speed was the most common violation noted. He pointed out that on one section of Interstate 15 near Barstow air surveys showed the average truck speed was 71 miles per hour.

In the local area, the average truck speeds have been recorded slightly over 60 miles per hour.

Division Cmdr. Martin, at the Ontario office this morning, said that in July the highway patrol is emphasizing more enforcement on commercial vehicles.

He said that "the injury and death rates of accidents involving commercial vehicles are usually far more severe than in other vehicles. Due to the increased speeds of these commercial vehicles we have recorded in our radar surveys we are stepping up our enforcement program."

Assisting Ontario officers in the crackdown are four additional officers from Division Headquarters, called the Special Enforcement Detail, who are particularly aggressive in enforcing commercial vehicle violations.

This morning between San Bernardino and Ontario, 18 highway patrol units were on the road writing numerous citations not only on commercial vehicles but also on cars and motorcycles.

Aircraft personnel radio ground units when they spot a violator and it is up to the ground unit officers to clock the speed and observe the suspected violator before issuing a citation.

Find nurses guilty in poisoning case

DETROIT (AP) — Two Filipino nurses were each found guilty by a federal court jury today of poisoning three patients at a Veterans Administration hospital in 1975. One of the two who had been charged with murder was found innocent on that count.

The two women each face a possible life sentence on the poisoning convictions.

Both women were also found guilty of conspiring to poison the patients at the Ann Arbor hospital with the powerful muscle-relaxing drug Pavulon.

Neither Filipina Narciso, 31, of Ypsilanti, nor Leonora Perez, 33, of Ann Arbor, displayed any reaction as the verdicts were read in the courtroom by the judge's clerk.

Miss Narciso was found innocent of one charge of murder and also of one charge of poisoning.

More than 50 breathing failures hit the hospital during July and August of 1975. Several of the victims died, but it was never clear just how many deaths were directly attributed to Pavulon.

U.S. District Court Judge Philip Pratt allowed the nurses to remain free on bond. He said he would set a date for sentencing.

The nine women and three men of the jury had deliberated for more than 93 hours over 15 days since getting the case on June 29.

The case involved months of legal maneuvering. Jury selection took almost a month and nearly 130 persons were interviewed before the panel of 12 regular jurors and four alternates was seated.

More than 6,000 pages of testimony were compiled from 100 witnesses called during the trial.

Most of the respiratory arrests occurred in the intensive care ward, where Miss Narciso and Mrs. Perez worked on the evening shift.

The women had originally been charged with two counts of murder, seven counts of poisoning and one count of conspiracy. But the judge granted a directed verdict of aquittal on some of those charges midway through the trial, saying the government had failed to present enough evidence to submit to a jury.

Schmidt receives warm White House welcome

WASHINGTON (AP) — West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt received a warm White House welcome from President Carter today and said German-American friendship is stronger now than at any time over the past 30 years.

At a ceremony on the White House south lawn, Schmidt pledged West Germany's "full contribution" in maintaining the security of the Western alliance.

Carter, in turn, hailed Schmidt as "one of the world's foremost leaders," and said the cooperative relationship between the two countries is "as strong as ever."

The brief comments of the two leaders seemed designed to minimize German-American differences which have emerged since the Carter administration took office.

Schmidt has been uneasy about accelerating tensions between the United States and the Soviet Union and believes Carter has been unnecessarily provocative toward Moscow in human rights. Schmidt espouses a more cautious approach.

In contrast to most previous ceremonies in which Carter has received foreign dignitaries, the President made no reference to the human rights issue. Most of his remarks praised Schmidt's leadership and his efforts to alleviate global tensions.

Carter and Schmidt first met two months ago during the London economic summit. This week's official visit by Schmidt is aimed at settling differences left unresolved at that meeting.

Schmidt smiled briefly when Carter characterized their London discussions as "frank."

Officials said the disagreement between the two leaders is tactical, not philosophical. At one point in his remarks today, Schmidt noted the two countries have no philosophical differences on the human rights question.

But Schmidt is concerned about the possible deterioriation of East-West relations. Of particular concern is the possibility that East-West tensions could jeopardize the continued flow of ethnic Germans in Eastern Europe back to West Germany.

Ayala backs up on Expo 81 resolution

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

Sen. Ruben Ayala of Chino admitted affixing his signature to a legislative resolution concerning Expo 81, but said he learned only this week the resolution went further than he intended.

Ayala said Assemblyman Terry Goggin of San Bernardino asked him to sign the resolution and said that it was merely an update of the one introduced last year by Ayala supporting the concept of an international fair in California.

Ayala didn't discover until Monday that the joint Assembly-Senate resolution urged President Carter to support Expo 81 at the Ontario Motor Speedway and issue invitations to foreign countries for participation in that fair. It was introduced on June 24 before the legislature recessed.

"I think I'm going to have to get off it (the resolution). I don't think the State of California should tell a local community if it should have a fair or not," Ayala said Tuesday.

"I will not support Expo 81 until all the environmental, economic and other problems associated with it are resolved," he added.

Ayala has repeatedly said that he would not support any legislation that went further than endorsing the concept of an international fair. He said he agreed to introduce the original resolution last year on the understanding that no state financing would be needed for the fair. He recently refused to introduce the $130 million revenue bond issue to the legislative body.

Although the bond issue would mean no underwriting by any governmental body, Ayala contends there are still too many unanswered questions about Expo 81.

He said he supported the concept of an international exposition in Southern California, but would only support the Ontario site if the environmental, economic and social side-effects are properly mitigated. It should not be within the state's power to dictate the location of such a fair, he added.

"It's a local issue that must be resolved at the local level," Ayala said.

The senator disagreed with a recent statement by Mayor Paul Treadway of Ontario that Expo 81 is an in-house issue for the City of Ontario.

"It spills out into other areas and there are many problems associated with water, sewage, what to do with the workers left over from the fair that might swell the unemployment rate in this area," he continued.

He felt that the majority of the governmental agencies within a 30-mile radius of the speedway site should be satisfied on the environmental and socio-economic issues before Expo 81 becomes a reality.

"If today were the day I had to give an answer on whether to support Expo 81, the answer would be no, but fortunately today is not the day.

"I feel that after all this time I still do not have sufficient information on which to base a decision. I blame promoters of Expo 81 for that. They have not answered the questions, the concerns of the communities or the elected officials.

"I would never go back to my colleagues in the legislature and ask that the state now assume a fiscal responsibility for the proposed fair. In my initial resolution, I told my colleagues the state would be committed to no fiscal responsibility," Ayala concluded.

Deadly chemical routs 5,239 from homes in truck crash

ROCKWOOD, Tenn. (AP) — Officials said they hoped the 5,259 evacuated residents of this steel mill town could return home today as the danger began passing from 900 gallons of potentially deadly chemical that spilled from a wrecked tank truck.

As crews turned the truck upright today, it sprung a small new leak of liquid bromine, but officials said residents should be able to return after the truck was removed and state air quality officials took samples to make sure the area was safe.

National Guardsmen finished evacuating the last of Rockwood's residents early this morning, including 55 patients in a hospital. Some 1,500 people had refused to move and had to be forcibly evacuated.

Officials said most of the noxious fumes spilled in the crash — which killed the driver — had been dispersed by morning breezes and that there should be no toxic residue in the town.

"I can't overemphasize the danger involved in breathing this chemical," said Col. Russell Newman of the National Guard, when the fumes were at their strongest. Forty persons were treated at area hospitals and released following the spill Tuesday.

The new leak developed in the damaged portion of the truck's 30-foot-long tank as it was being placed on another trailer to be taken to a more remote area of the county, Newman said.

"It's just coming out in droplets now," he said. "We're applying ammonia to the leaking bromine to neutralize the chemical."

W.A. Barnes, national sales manager for Dow Chemical Co., which owns the tanker, said it would be moved to an isolated area at the Rockwood airport, sealed, and the remaining liquid bromine would be transfered to another truck.

Barnes said the original leak was through a valve sheared off in the wreck. He said the truck's tank had been bent into the shape of a banana but did not rupture in the crash.

"Once we've got it over there and we have all the safeties on it, I'd say you could bring the town back," Barnes said.

Pomona school board begins negotiating with budget items

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Staff Writer

Infighting and negotiating will begin Thursday night as Pomona school board members battle to keep their individual pet projects in the 1977-78 program.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the board room of the Education Center.

Once again, the school board faces the chore of raising or lowering rates within the district's overall tax structure in continued attempts to generate more money for the general fund budget.

With hopes that the process will eventually end in some sort of a reduction in the district tax rate, trustees will work to create, as one board member has called it, "a large pot" to feed all the smaller general fund projects. That is, trustees are hoping that by increasing taxes for adult education and child development and by a strong reduction of the district's load in administrative personnel, a larger general fund can be created to provide service directly to the classroom. The increased taxes for adult education and child development would release those items as burdens to the general fund.

It is not known yet how much money can be saved by cutting administrative costs at the Education Center, but trustees appear to be hoping for significant savings there.

At this point, however, the district has only removed items from the proposed budget for future funding consideration. No permanent cuts have yet been made.

The district has, however, established a bare bones budget which will be examined Thursday evening.

This greatly limited budget is expected to include only the cost of necessities the district must account for because of contractual and legal obligations or prior commitments on the part of the board. The preliminary budget is expected to come in somewhere around the $35-$36 million mark.

This basic budget would include items such as salaries, utilities, and supplies — the cost of which can be prefigured with some accuracy — as well as prior commitments such as the after school recreation program and the campus resource officer program.

Perhaps the most interesting aspect of this continuing budget process will be the discussions around priority items to be picked up by the general fund with each trustee fighting to insure that his or her own priority item is included — to some degree — in the budget.

Several items are already geared for inclusion in the budget; among them are the six-period day, a continued funding for bilingual programs and the establishment of regular painting, roofing and blacktopping schedules.

However, trustees have several concerns of their own.

Trustee C. Allen Braswell has been outspoken in his concern for developing a district fine arts program to augment curriculum in this area. The proposal has been developed by a district fine arts committee headed by Ralph Taylor, coordinator of educational material services. Aimed at upgrading fine arts curriculum at the elementary level, the proposal has been criticized by some as being top heavy administratively.

Special education has been the chief concern of trustee Francis Livingston who has already asked the board to consider implementing a $750,000 allocation in that area next year. Mrs. Livingston has noted the vast amounts of legislation both at the state and federal level coming down in this area and has expressed her concern that many children in the district with learning disabilities are escaping completely undetected by the present system. She has said the district needs new programs not only to identify these problems, but to see that they are remedied.

Vocational and career education were planks in the platform on which trustee C. J. Mendoza sought his board seat last March. Today he says he is still concerned that the district fund those areas adequately. He has alluded several times to the point that the district should prepare its students for "the world of work."

Trustee Eugene Whitlock has expressed continually at meetings his concern that greater care be taken for the maintenance of school facilities. It was he who moved and won board acceptance that a $50,000 crash maintenance program be instituted in June between the end of school and the start of summer school to heal some of the district's more glaring maintenance concerns.

Board President Don Donnelly continues to make his emphasis in budget planning programs which will serve to upgrade district discipline and academic excellence. Donnelly can be expected to use these arguments in support of various budget programs and proposals. He also has shown on numerous occasions an interest in seeing as many district facilities as possible air conditioned to provide a comfortable learning environment for employes and students alike.

McLuhan sees Jimmy Carter as 'Huck Finn'

SACRAMENTO (AP) — In the eyes of the-media-is-the-message author Marshall McLuhan, Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. has "real cool" charisma and President Carter is "Huck Finn in the White House."

McLuhan joshed with reporters Tuesday after visiting Brown and cabinet members for a couple of hours.

Brown, who said they discussed communications in sociology and government, introduced McLuhan while holding before television cameras a copy of McLuhan's new book, "The City is a Classroom."

McLuhan said of Brown's image that he "resembles an awful lot of other pleasant people, people who would be nice to know."

Former Pres. Nixon's charisma was "real hot — he was only like himself.... He only looked like Richard Nixon," McLuhan said.

John F. Kennedy was "the all-American boy," and Carter is "The all-American southern boy — Huck Finn in the White House."

A.L. board candidates in interview

Four candidates will be interviewed tonight for a seat on the Alta Loma school board left vacant by the recent resignation of Paul Sage.

The candidates, Robert Frost, Peter Guth, Pat Tyler, and Don Watters, all ran unsuccessfully in last March's regular board election. They were the only ones applying for Sage's unexpired term by Monday's deadline.

Trustees have indicated they will appoint a new board member at next Monday's meeting. They have opted for making an appointment rather than holding a special election.

However, persons obtaining signatures of 5 per cent of the registered voters in the last election may successfully block the appointment. They have 30 days to obtain the signatures following the appointment — and if they do, it would force the board to hold an election.

Frost, an engineer at General Dynamics in Pomona, served on the board for four years before losing his seat in the March election.

Guth, a teacher in the Ontario-Montclair School District, has received the support of the Alta Loma Educators Association.

Mrs. Tyler is a housewife and Watters is an educator.

Sage, a counselor at Chaffey High School in Ontario, was forced to resign last month when he moved out of the district.

Sage's unexpired term runs until March, 1979.

Board members are expected to interview the four candidates tonight, and possibly Friday, according to district officials. A decision will not be announced until Monday evening.

In other business this week, trustees granted pay increases for management, classified and confidential personnel.

Administrators received a 5 per cent pay raise, and classified workers received 5½ per cent. Confidential employes (secretaries) got a 5½ per cent boost.

Supt. Floyd Stork was granted a 5½ per cent salary hike. And the position of business manager, held by Stacy Nelson, was upgraded from part time to full time.

Chaffey College Women's club will hold meeting

Chaffey College's newly formed Women in Management Club will hold its first meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday in the staff dining room at Campus Center.

The club was organized as a result of a spring quarter offering entitled "Women in Management" which earned broad acceptance in the community, according to the office of instruction.

The session will be devoted initially to discussion of a seminar scheduled for Sept. 10, featuring woman activist Dru Scott.

Persons interested in joining the club may telephone Chari Wallace or Joyce Nelson at 987-1737, ext. 404.

Van Houten jurors

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jurors have listened to two tape recordings, including one by Charles Manson, to help reach a verdict in the retrial of Leslie Van Houten for the 1969 slayings of Leno and Rosemary LaBianca.

Jurors were to resume deliberations today.

Monday they listened to tapes of a psychiatrist's interview with Manson and a 1969 tape of Miss Van Houten discussing the Tate-LaBianca murders with an attorney.

Both tapes had been played for jurors during the 15-week trial.

The Manson tape was a rambling 70-minute interview in which the cult leader denied he had ordered Miss Van Houten to kill the LaBiancas.

In the other tape, made shortly after her 1969 arrest, Miss Van Houten told an attorney she felt no regret about the LaBianca murders and would be willing to kill again.

Miss Van Houten's attorney has asked that jurors find her guilty of manslaughter instead of first degree murder because he argued she was dominated by Manson and not able to make her own decisions.

She is charged with murdering Leno and Rosemary LaBianca and conspiring in the five Sharon Tate killings.

RTD budget problems

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A state analysis says a major reason behind the budget problems of the Southern California Rapid Transit District is dwindling support from Los Angeles County.

Said the report issued Tuesday by the office of Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post: The district "extended itself in order to qualify for county support and with the loss of that support, has found itself overextended and forced to retrench."

"We believe that the precipitous decline in county support has greatly contributed to district budget problems in the past two years.

"We find that the county's insistence on an expanded grid system in exchange for operating assistance, and then the revocation of that assistance, is a serious and inexplicable inconsistency on the part of the county."

Pacific Telephone rates

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Pacific Telephone Co. has won the right to charge some of its residential customers more for longer phone calls, but the company was ordered to refund money to some others.

The state Public Utilities Commission ruling Tuesday will affect approximately 20 per cent of Pacific Telephone's residential customers.

It means an additional $5 million to $7 million will flow annually into phone company coffers, said Hamish Bennett, PT&T assistant vice president.

Under the new rate structure, a charge of one cent for each minute after five minutes on a local call will be levied against 10 per cent of PT&T household customers who pay $3.75 monthly for 60 local calls.

The remainder of the phone company's residential customers who pay a flat $5.70 monthly rate for unlimited local calls will not be affected by the PUC ruling.

Chowchilla kids lost items

OAKLAND (AP) — Some of the 26 Chowchilla school children kidnaped nearly one year ago lost glasses, sneakers and trinkets to their abductors, it was disclosed in a pretrial hearing.

Attorney Ted Merrill, representing one of the three young defendants in the case, read a portion of the inventory in court Tuesday.

The items were found in a black bag several miles from the Portola Valley estate belonging to the family of defendant Frederick N. Woods, 25.

Merrill, attorney for Richard Schoenfeld, 24, said the bag contained items belonging to some of the children and bus driver Ed Ray.

Ray and the youngsters were abducted at gunpoint on July 15, 1976, and transported 100 miles north to a rock quarry where they were kept captive in a buried van. They dug their way to freedom 17 hours later.

Merrill said the bag contained "white socks, baseball caps, tennis shoes and even an Evel Knievel motorcycle, a toy one."

The defense is attempting to have the search warrant of the Woods estate thrown out and the evidence supressed. Herbert Yanowitz, lawyer for Woods, argued that authorities illegally obtained evidence for the warrant, that it was excessive in scope and execution and that it contained "substantial errors."

Riles steers clear

SAN JOSE (AP) — State school Supt. Wilson Riles, never one to seek political conflict, is trying to steer his department relatively clear of the explosive issue of school integration.

Riles is backing regulations at a public hearing of the state Board of Education today that would state his department's position in favor of desegregation, but give it little role in monitoring or achieving it.

"Integration is a difficult process at best," Thomas Griffin, attorney for the board and Riles' Department of Education, explained in an interview. "If it's our plan and not the local board's plan that's being implemented, the chances of succeeding are even less."

"I believe in local control," said Riles. "I think we can give leadership but I don't think we can go in and make mandates. Of course, that doesn't relieve local districts of their responsibility."

Riles, California's first black school superintendent, has built a secure political base during his two terms of office while concentrating on detailed educational topics like school finance and program reforms.

Health agency attacked

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles City Council — claiming ballot irregularities — has decided to challenge the results of a recent election involving a powerful new county health agency.

Councilman Zev Yaroslavsky Tuesday led an attack on the six-month-old Health Systems Agency, which holds a $1.6 million contract from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The HSA held a county-wide election June 21 to select 150 representatives to five Sub Area Councils of the Health Services Area.

"We know there have been violations in the law in the way this election has been handled," Yaroslavsky said.

The council instructed the city attorney to take legal action to intervene in the election.

San Diego gay ordinance

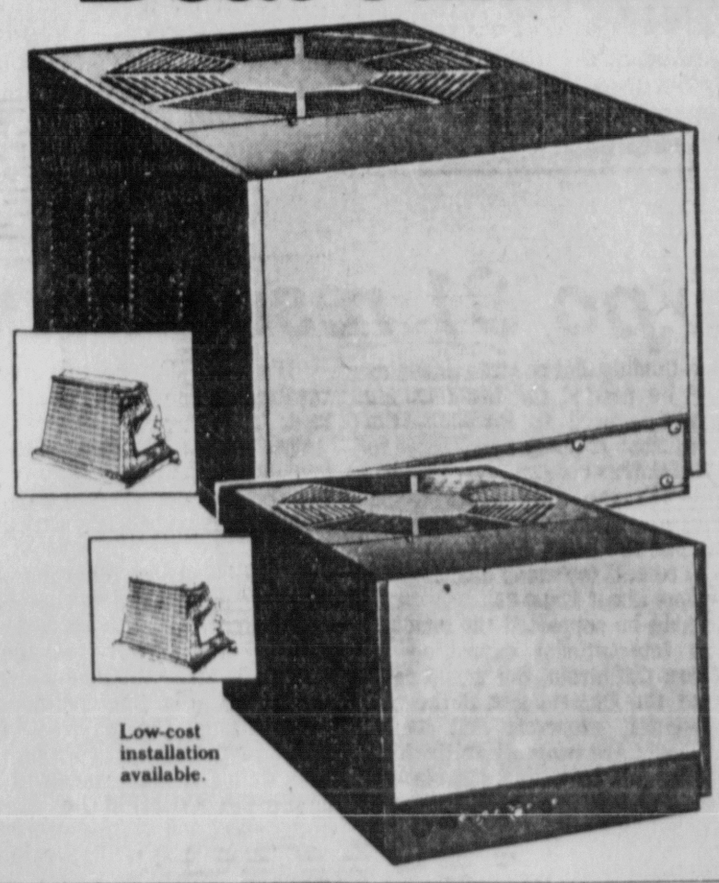

SAN DIEGO (AP) — San Diego will be asked to adopt a gay rights ordinance similar to one repealed by voters in Dade County, Fla., a leader of the homosexual community says.

The Rev. David Farrell of Metropolitan Community Church told a news conference Tuesday that a law banning discrimination against homosexuals is needed because such agencies as the police department currently are biased against gays.

Farrell, speaking as chairman of the newly formed Coalition for Human Rights, said the city council will be asked Tuesday to express itself on homosexual rights.

San Quentin in lockdown after racial clash; 3 die

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP) — Black Muslim and Nazi inmates battled with clubs and knives in racial clashes that killed three convicts and injured five in an honor block at San Quentin prison, authorities said.

"The lid's flying off," Mike Luxford, acting prison information officer, said after the conflict Tuesday.

"The hospital looks like a battleground. There was blood and people everywhere. It's an incredible mess."

Prisoners are being kept in their cells in a lockdown that officials say will probably last a week.

Luxford said there have been three major racial fights in the last 10 years at the prison.

"But when three people are killed, it's a pretty large-scale incident ... Anytime somebody loses their life over the color of their skin, nobody wins," he said. "The climate here is all tension and fear."

Inmates attacked each other along corridors in the prison's north and west wings with makeshift knives and clubs before guards firing rifle shots quelled the disturbances.

The deaths and injuries came in two separate attacks by members of the American National Socialists on members of a Black Muslim prison sect; officials said. The fights took place in the prison's west wing "honor block," which houses 364 men, as prisoners lounged outside their cells after meals, officials said.

The first fight, two white inmates attacking a black prisoner, was broken up in the morning when guards spotted them and fired a warning shot. Prisoners were ordered into cells, but Charles Jack Captain, 31, a black inmate from San Francisco, was stabbed in a stairwell.

Captain, serving a two-year-to-life sentence for assault with a deadly weapon, died a few hours later of wounds in the back and side.

Some nine hours later, at about 5:30 p.m., members of the Nazi group "made a move against the Black Muslims, who were superior in arms and numbers. Violence resulted," Luxford said.

A white inmate was hurled to his death from a third-story prison tier and a second was stabbed to death. Neither was immediately identified.

Two whites and three blacks were injured, three of them seriously. One injured black, identified as Jimmy Louis Hunt, 24, of San Francisco, suffered superficial stab wounds, Luxford said.

The prison by San Francisco Bay holds 2,308 inmates, about 33 percent black and 41 percent white, Luxford said.

Prison officials said there were two other fatal stabbings at San Quentin this year.

'CASTLE' FOR SALE

Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss sits outside Hammersmith Farm, the 28-room mansion in Newport, R.I., she wants to sell for $989,000. The house is where the romance blossomed between John F. Kennedy and Mrs. Auchincloss's daughter, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis.

Jackie's childhood home on auction block

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis' childhood home, where her romance with John F. Kennedy bloomed, has been put on the auction block because the former First Lady's mother needs the money.

"I don't want you to sell it," Janet Auchincloss quoted her famous daughter as saying when she broke the news that the 58-acre Hammersmith Farm was for sale for $989,000.

"All my children hate it, and I hate it, but it is absolutely necessary," Mrs. Auchincloss said Tuesday.

She explained that her late husband, Hugh D. Auchincloss, had devoted his personal fortune to try saving his Washington brokerage firm, Auchincloss, Redfern and Parker, before his death in December 1976.

"I was very proud of him for doing it," she said, "even though I knew it wouldn't work."

Hammersmith, one of the oldest working farms in Newport, is alive with memories. It was there that Mrs. Onassis taught a younger halfsister how to get around the strict Auchincloss and where a 14-year-old Jackie set fire to the library sofa while sneaking a cigarette.

Here lived a nursemaid in a little 18th century cottage on the estate, where she invited the Auchincloss children to "come into my castle and I'll give you some cookies and milk."

The children called the cottage The Castle and the name has stuck to this day. Mrs. Auchincloss now lives in The Castle.

Leading a reporter on a tour of the grounds, Mrs. Auchincloss marveled at how well they are kept. She has had to make do with four gardeners on grounds once tended by 32 workers.

Mrs. Auchincloss says that her daughters by her first husband, John Bouvier — Jackie and Lee Radziwill — and her children by Auchincloss were reluctant to see the place go because they liked it "to be here for whenever they happened to feel like dropping in. Caroline Kennedy was here Friday and Saturday and I never know when the others are coming."

A friend then remarked to her that "your descendants are all descendants in the true sense of the word — they descend."

Mrs. Auchincloss replied, "They're all neurotic or perhaps I should say they lead hectic lives."

Mrs. Auchincloss showed her visitors through the 18-bedroom main house, which largely has been dismantled. It is now home to members of the Swedish yacht team here for the trials of the Americas Cup, which will be run next month.

She showed the bedroom where Mrs. Onassis spent the last night before her wedding, a third-floor yellow and white room with windows looking out to sea.

She also showed the room that Kennedy used as an office when he stayed at Hammersmith Farm during his presidency.

Pomona adopts budget, tax hike

A $22 million budget was officially adopted today by the Pomona City Council. The budget incorporates the 17.5 cent property tax rate increase approved by the council last Monday.

Another $2 million will be added to the budget next week when the council distributes federal revenue sharing funds to the city departments for capital purchases and special projects.

The vote approving the budget was 3-1, with Councilman Adrian Wright dissenting. Councilman Benjamin Ochoa was absent.

Total municipal property tax rates will now equal $2.67 although that figure may change by a few cents depending on the precise computation of changes in assessed valuations in the city.

The previous tax rate of $2.495 per $100 of assessed valuation had been unchanged for the past five years.

New revenues resulting from the tax increase have been designated for the city's retirement fund, which totals about $2 million.

Youth held in threat on trial witness

A 17-year-old El Monte youth was arrested late Tuesday morning in Pomona Superior Court where he was accused of threatening a witness scheduled to appear against his brother.

The suspect, a Mexican national, was booked under a section of the California Penal Code which prohibits threats against court witnesses.

The victim, Manuel L. Vasquez, 21, of Alhambra, was also the victim of the robbery which the suspect's brother was charged with, police said. Vasquez was accompanied in court by sheriff's Deputy Ronald Baltierra, 33, when the victim was confronted and threatened, police said. They quoted the teen-ager as warning Vasquez "You're going to get shot in the head."

The youth was taken into custody by the deputy and held for Pomona police. He was on probation at the time of his arrest.

Motorists favor change in auto insurance, poll shows

WASHINGTON (AP) — A nationwde poll concludes that three out of every four motorists favor changing the auto insurance system, a Senate committee was told today.

The poll was commissioned by the Kemper Insurance Companies, which previously opposed no-fault auto insurance. But a Kemper spokesman told the Senate Commerce Committee that the poll's findings have prompted the firm to support no-fault auto insurance.

The committee is opening new hearings on legislation to establish nationwide no-fault insurance.

The poll's finding "represents an urgent plea for action," said Stephen Lesnik, vice president of the company. He called for a no-fault law "which eliminates the abuses and wastes of the present legal system."

The no-fault bill is designed to reduce premiums for automobile insurance by eliminating lawsuits over who is at fault for accidents.

Committee chairman Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., opened the hearing by pointing to a federal study of the 16 state no-fault laws which concluded that no-fault works better than the traditional liability system.

Speaking of the traditional system, Magnuson said, "When a consumer buys an auto insurance policy, he still buys a lottery ticket rather than assurance of compensation when it is needed."

Lesnik said the finding that the motoring public endorses no-fault resulted from a nationwide poll of 2,000 drivers. He called the result "a strong indictment of the present state of affairs" in explaining his company's change in position.

The no-fault bill is expected to be opposed later in the hearings by legal groups, who have been the primary adversary of such legislation for a decade.

Under no-fault, persons are compensated for injuries in car accidents regardless of who was responsible. Under the traditional liability system, insurance companies determine through lawsuits which driver was at fault and therefore which insurance company must compensate victims.

The bill is supported by many consumer and labor groups, who say that eliminating the lawsuits will hold down insurance premiums. No-fault "assures auto accident victims faster and more comprehensive compensation, a greater return on your premium dollar and a reduction of the burden on the courts," the Consumer Federation of America said.

The legislation is opposed by groups of lawyers, including the American Bar Association. The legal groups say no-fault has failed to reduce premiums in many areas where it has been tried and that the federal government should not interfere with state insurance systems.

Prosecution awaited in killing of boy, 7

Prosecution has yet to begin in the case of Pomonan Roosevelt Williams, the 25-year-old man charged with murder as the result of the fatal wounding by police of 7-year-old Toby James Reed June 10.

Williams remains in the jail ward of County-USC Medical Center where he is under treatment for gunshot wounds inflicted by police during the incident in the 700 block of Toluca Avenue. His condition there was reported satisfactory.

A formal felony complaint charging Williams with murder, two counts of assault with a deadly weapon and one of firing into an inhabited dwelling was filed against him in Pomona Municipal Court. But he has yet to be arraigned.

The child was shot as he rode past the area in an auto. Police said the bullet which struck him was one of several fired at Williams whom police were chasing and who, they said, stopped and pointed a pistol at them.

Williams was charged with murder under a section of California Penal Code which allows the charge if a person's felonious actions result in the death of another even if the person himself did not actually kill the victim.

Gunman robs Montclair store

A lone gunman robbed Lou Miller's store at 9460 Central Ave., Montclair, of cash, checks and credit receipts Tuesday night, according to Montclair police.

The gunman, according to police, may have been armed with a pellet gun.

He entered the store about 9 p.m. and approached a clerk at the counter. The man produced the weapon and demanded that the clerk place all the cash, checks and receipts in a bag.

The gunman then fled out the door.

The robber was described as a white, 20 to 25 years of age, 6 feet-tall, 170 pounds with brown hair parted in the middle and "feathered."

Thief awakens woman; he takes purse, flees

An 81-year-old Pilgrim Place resident awoke in her cottage Tuesday afternoon and found a young man rummaging through the dresser in her bedroom, Claremont police reported.

The victim said that when she awoke she saw the young man, wearing a derby hat and with his back to her, going through items on the dresser. She said that when she cried out, "What's this?" the intruder fled with her purse.

Others in the religious retirement community said they saw a youth matching the burglar's description running through the area. He was described as black, in his late teens, 5 feet 9 to 6 feet tall and thin. Besides the brown derby, he wore a yellowish T-shirt and khaki trousers.

The victim, who lives in the southwest section of Pilgrim Place, said the purse contained $20 and credit cards. The purse was found later where it had been tossed away. It still contained the cards, but the cash was gone

Police said that the thief apparently entered the cottage through an unlocked patio door.

On the request of defense attorney Ellen Brody, the preliminary hearing of Clarence L. Hill, 27, accused of rape, murder and attempted murder, has been continued to July 19 in West Valley Municipal Court.

The attorney asked for additional time in which to prepare the case.

Hill is accused of the June 24 rape-murder of a 15-year-old Montclair girl, the rape of a second 15-year-old friend, and the attempted murder of the mother of the rape-murder victim.

In a recent court action, Judge Jacob Jager upheld a defense motion for a gag order prohibiting the police, court personnel and the attorney's from discussing the Hill case with members of the news media or any other interested parties.

Judge Jager set bail for Hill at $1 million.

Policy in case of war?

Carter equivocal on use of nuclear arms

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is walking softly through a discussion of possible U.S. use of nuclear arms.

At one point during a nationally televised news conference on Tuesday, Carter seemed to move U.S. policy toward the position that use of a single nuclear weapon would bring worldwide devastation.

But then he added that he wouldn't say exactly what his policy would be in any specific situation.

"My guess is, and no one would certainly know, that the first use of atomic weapons might very well quickly lead to a rapid and uncontrolled escalation in the use of even more powerful weapons with possibly a worldwide holocaust resulting," said the commander-in-chief.

"This is a prospect that is sobering to us all."

But he prefaced his comments by saying:

"One of the concepts that must be avoided is an exact description ahead of time of what I as President would do under every conceivable circumstance."

The first statement seemed to put Carter on one side of the decades-long debate over whether a "limited" nuclear war could be fought, or whether the use of one nuclear weapon would trigger full-scale nuclear exchanges. In the past, U.S. policy has seemed to consider, at least, the possibility of a limited nuclear war.

But Carter's statements were equivocal.

Herman Kahn of the Hudson Institute and a leading expert on nuclear war and escalation, says Carter is "playing both sides of the fence," trying to talk to the Russians and U.S. allies at once.

"He's saying to the Russians: 'Don't try it. We might use it,'" Kahn said. "He's saying to our side: 'Don't worry. We won't.'"

Bicyclist injured

A 12-year-old Upland girl was listed in fair condition this morning in San Antonio Community Hospital's intensive care unit after the bicycle on which she was riding was struck by a car in the intersection of 13th Street and Euclid Avenue about 12:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The injured girl was identified as Jill Richardson.

No further detail on the traffic accident was available this morning.

Minimum wage accord

WASHINGTON (AP) — A key member of Congress is predicting quick action on a proposal to raise the minimum wage by 35 cents following a compromise on the issue between President Carter and organized labor.

The House Education and Labor Committee will consider the proposal early next week, Rep. Carl Perkins, D-Ky., said Tuesday after meeting with Labor Secretary Ray Marshall.

Perkins, committee chairman, said he expects final congressional action before the August recess.

Officials say an estimated 3.1 million American workers are paid the minimum wage, $2.30. Under the proposal, reached after months of negotiations, their pay would rise to $2.65 an hour on Jan. 1.

Future increases would be tied to the nation's average hourly manufacturing wage. Under the formula, the hourly minimum would go to an estimated $2.89 in January of 1979 and about $3.15 in January of 1980.

X rays cited as link to cancer of thyroid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal officials are intensifying a program to alert more than a million Americans that they may be susceptible to thyroid cancer because of head and neck X-ray treatments they had in the past.

The expanded effort, announced today by National Cancer Institute officials, is to alert those who have an increased risk of irradiation-related thyroid gland tumors to be examined by physicians regularly.

The institute said more than one million persons are believed to be in the group exposed to X rays used as treatment for a number of problems such as ringworm, inflamed tonsils and acne.

The Cancer Institute, which is distributing millions of pamphlets, has two goals.

The first is urging those who had head and neck X rays to be examined immediately and regularly every two years. If you think you may have had such treatments but can't document it, you should have an examination as a precaution, officials said.

The second goal of the campaign is to brief physicians on how to examine for, diagnose and treat thyroid cancers.

Thyroid cancer, which is treated effectively with surgery, is a relatively rare, slow-growing disease that has been rising in incidence. NCI estimates that 8,200 new cases will be diagnosed this year and about 1,150 patients will die from the disease.

The cancer occurs almost twice as frequently in females as in males, most often strikes older people and is more prevalent in whites than blacks.

"It is of vital importance to place the problem of thyroid irradiation exposure in proper perspective," said Dr. Diane J. Fink, director of NCI's Division of Cancer Control and Rehabilitation.

McDonald's files suit over glasses

BOSTON (AP) — If the McDonald's hamburger chain resumes selling decorative promotional glasses, it would be a "clear violation of the law," says Massachusetts Public Health Commissioner Johnathan E. Fielding.

The controversy over the glasses has also moved into court.

McDonald's and glass manufacturers filed suit in U.S. District Court here Tuesday against the state Health Department, which has warned that children could be poisoned from lead paint used on the outside of the glasses.

The suit was filed the same day the U.S. Food and Drug Administratiion said it found no evidence that lead from the decals on the outside of the glasses can contaminate liquid inside them.

However, the FDA said it is continuing tests of these and other glasses to see if there are other possible health hazards, including the possibility of children gnawing the paint off as they drink.

Fielding said the state Health Department would order McDonald's to cease distribution of the glassware if it is resumed.

Alloway, his parents and 2-year-old sister escaped without injury.

The blaze resulted in about $40,000 in damages to the home. Cause was not immediately determined.

DMV needs volunteers

The Pomona office of the Department of Motor Vehicles is seeking volunteers to serve in its Backseat Driver's Public Panel.

Those interested may call the DMV office at 629-3055.

Manager Lloyd F. Souders said the purpose of the panel is to "enable people who seek services from government to have input as to the quality of the service rendered them, and to have a say on the policies and programs of DMV."

Unemployment benefits

The Employment Development Department in Sacramento has reported that it has closed a loophole in regulations governing payments of benefits which permitted jobless to receive benefits after exhausting original claims.

The loophole was created by an amendment to the federally-funded Special Unemployment Assistance program. In extreme cases, an unemployed indiviual could have received 104 weeks (two years) of benefits, assuming he remained unemployed and still available and looking for work.

Approximately 25,000 had been receiving the extra payment that now will be disallowed. Approximately 454,000 individuals receive unemployment benefits in California.

Collection displayed

A driftwood collection owned by Charles E. Sarver of Ontario will be displayed at the Ontario library through July 31. Pieces are in the forms of animals, humans, birds, reptiles, marine life or other objects.

Saver, 75, joined the Navy at age 17, and worked in railroading 43 years before retiring in 1965. Collecting driftwood is his hobby.

Film program

Two films will be shown at the Thursday noon film program at the Claremont Public Library.

"A Day In The Life Of Bonnie Consolo" features a woman who was born without arms. She does everything with her feet — drives a car, bakes bread and takes care of her children.

In "Get It Together," Jeff Minnebraker discusses how he has coped with the loss of the use of both legs after an automobile accident. He has streamlined his wheelchair (and does whellies), went back to school and now works as a recreational therapist with other handicapped people. He helpd them learn to use their bodies through tennis, baseball, basketball and other sports.

The program begins at 12:15 p.m. and viewers are invited to bring their lunches.

Pilots reunion

During World War II, most of the Army Air Force pilots who flew the Lockheed P-38 received their training in Southern California before going overseas.

Many of these pilots were assigned to the 82nd Fighter Group which saw action in North Africa and Italy in 1943 and 1944. Veterans of the 82nd are holding a reunion in New Orleans on Sept. 1 to 4. Information regarding the reunion can be obtained from Paul Jorgensen at (213) 842-6505.

Class openings

There are openings available in the free metal and wood handcrafting course offered by the Upland Recreation Department and Chaffey College Adult Education.

The course includes handforming of copper, brass, pewter and wood.

Students will learn to sculpture pendants, bracelets, broaches and hanging pieces. They will also use woods from seasoned tree branches in making inlaid pendants, decorative buttons, earrings and flower bouquets.

The class is held in the Recreation Annex, 433 N. Second Ave., Upland. Instruction is given on Wednesdays from 7 to 10 p.m. Even though the class began June 23, persons may still enter. The class will continue through Aug. 11.

Learn to cheer

The Dynamic Cheerleaders Association (DCA) will hold a workshop camp Aug. 8 to 12 on the Scripps College Campus, Claremont.

The classes will present to high school and college pep squads and cheerleaders new ideas for fund and spirit raising, as well as teach the students new cheers, chants and acrobatic stunts.

For further information, persons may call 626-8511, ext. 3045.

Seminar set

The U.S. Department of Labor's Labor-Management Services Administration (LMSA) will hold a free seminar in San Bernardino July 26 to assist small employers in filling out required pension disclosure forms.

The program will be held at 10 a.m. in the San Bernardino Convention Center Hall, 303 N. E Street. It is co-sponsored by the Internal Revenue Service (IRS). Further information may be obtained by contacting Ken Evans at (213) 688-4975. Reservations are not required.

Gordon Byrholdt, LMSA regional administrator, explained that under the Employe Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA), employers with less than 100 employes must file Form 5500-C or 5500-K annually with the Department of Labor.

For most small pension plans, Forms 5500-C and 5500-K must be filed by July 31, he noted.

Pyrholdt said the July 26 program will feature a slide presentation that gives step-by-step instructions on how to fill out the two forms.

A. JAMES MEIGS

Economist takes leave of absence

Claremont Men's College economist A. James Meigs is taking a year's leave of absence from college teaching to study financial systems throughout the world.

He is a special consultant for one of the nation's largest international consulting firms, Booz, Allen and Hamilton, Inc., New York, which has gathered some of the country's foremost economists for the special project. Director of the program is William Simon, former Secretary of the Treasury, who also is a special consultant to the firm.

"Since 1965, the financial system of the world has changed radically," Meigs said. "This study will attempt to find the origins and causes of financial instability in this nation and in other nations. The end product of this study will be advice to management on how to cope with risk and uncertainty in capital markets, and markets for foreign exchange."

Meigs said the study will utilize college and university economists in this country and abroad, plus Mexico and South America, and involve the world's largest corporations and financial institutions.

Since joining the Claremont Men's College faculty in 1975, Meigs has organized the college's Applied Financial Economics Center, which develops economic forecasts, conferences and numerous other services for individuals and firms in the business community. In his absence, the center is under the direction of John Rutledge, associate director. Meigs will return to his college post next summer.

Meigs and his family are now residing in Princeton, N.J.

Baldonado appointed to court

A West Covina attorney has been appointed to the Los Angeles County Superior Court bench by Gov. Brown, but has yet to be sworn into office.

He is Arthur Baldonado, 44, a member of the firm of Newman, Chrisman and Baldonado.

Baldonado reportedly has requested, after he is sworn, to be assigned to the Pomona Superior Court. If that assignment is made he will become the third newly-appointed judge given a post recently in the local court.

Baldonado is a graduate of UCLA and Georgetown University Law School in Washington, D.C. He has lived in California since he was 8 years old.

Baldonado's wife, Sandy, attempted unsuccesstully last November to defeat Assemblyman William Lancaster (R-62nd) of Covina for an Assembly seat. The Baldonados have four children and reportedly were in the process of moving from Covina to Claremont.

Baldonado is a former member of the West Covina Board of Education.

Mrs. Baldonado is prominent in the Democratic party, the League of Women Voters and other civic groups.

Sun tan is linked to cancer

Every year more than 5,000 Los Angeles County residents develop skin cancer — about 250 of whom will die from it — and each year many thousands struggle to achieve a "healthy" tan. But unfortunately there is a connection, said Joseph M. Kaplan, executive vice president of the Greater Los Angeles Chapter National Safety Council.

Actually, sun has nothing whatever to do with general health — the pale bookkeeper may be far healthier than the tanned lifeguard. Sunburn is just what the name implies — a burn. And tanning is simply a response of the body trying to protect itself from damaging ultraviolet radiation he added.

The danger hours are usually between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. Before and after those hours, persons can get a tan with less danger. But if they must go out in the mid-day sun, initial exposure should be not more than 15 minutes. The time can be increased little by little. But trying to get a deep tan on a two-week holiday is asking for trouble.

"Protective creams and lotions vary enormously in their effectiveness. One study at Harvard Medical School concluded that a 5 per cent solution of paraaminobenzoic acid in 75 per cent alcohol is by far the best formula. Perhaps the best rule is to use one of the commercial lotions or creams containing those ingredients. But use it liberally," Kaplan concluded.

Due to conservation, weather, pumping

Water sales down 17%

The Metropolitan Water District of Southern California (MWDSC) has reported June water sales were down 17 per cent compared to June last year because of increased conservation efforts, normal weather conditions and more groundwater pumping in local basins.

And when those sales were adjusted to take into account the greater demand made by the city of Los Angeles, June sales were down 24 per cent, according to John H. Lauten, MWD general manager.

Los Angeles is purchasing more MWD water this year because of drought conditions in the eastern Sierra Nevada and an injunction limiting groundwater basin pumping in the Owens Valley.

Lauten said estimated conservation accounted for 10 per cent of the reduction in Metropolitan's sales.

"But just because we may have reached the 10 per cent figure that we have been asking for is no reason for people to relax their conservation efforts," he said. "We need to maintain 10 per cent conservation throughout the remainder of the year so we can retain an adequate supply of water in storage to carry over into 1978 as a cushion against a third year of drought.

"The next three months are critical because Southern California traditionally uses a lot more water in July, August and September than at any other time of the year.

"The 10 per cent goal we have asked for is easy to achieve if everyone practices a few simple conservation techniques and avoids obvious wastes of water."

He also said weather was a key factor in reducing sales. June last year was a record-setting month, both in terms of temperature and water sales. A blistering heat wave at the end of the month broke records and Metropolitan recorded its highest single-day, weekly and monthly sales ever.

Weather last month returned to the normal June pattern of early-morning and late-night clouds along with moderate daytime temperatures.

Lauten said those local water agencies which can pump water from the ground have maximized their efforts to relieve the demands on Metropolitan's distribution system and emergency supplies. But he warned that pumping from the ground is not true conservation, but merely a substitute supply.

"We have to be encouraged that the conservation effort in Southern California is improving, but there still are many people who are ignoring a serious situation and are continuing to waste water."

Even with the reduced sales, Lauten said one portion of Metropolitan's distribution system — the northwestern part of Los Angeles County and part of Ventura County — remains a potential trouble spot.

These areas normally receive water from the State Water Project and from the Owens Valley through the Los Angeles Aqueduct. The State Water Project pumps were turned off Feb. 28 and the flow of Owens Valley water has been reduced because of a court injunction.

Metropolitan is supplying the Calleguas Municipal Water District in Ventura County and the Las Virgenes Municipal Water District in Los Angeles County with a blend of state water which had reached Pyramid and Castaic lakes befor February 28 and Colorado River water coming through a San Fernando Valley pumping plant that was activated in May. The San Fernando Valley also is receiving some water from Pyramid and Castaic.

However, the water level in Pyramid and Castaic has been dropping and the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power's Castaic Power Plant is expected to lose generating capacity in January. Pyramid and Castaic lakes have dropped 85,000 acre-feet since the first of the year and now stand at 218,000 acre-feet.

The only immediate solution to this problem, Lauten said, is for the courts to lift the injunction against Owens Valley groundwater pumping.

Student conducts research in Pomona

Shoplifting program suggested

A University of Utah graduate student who investigated shoplifting in Pomona and two other cities says customer-employe education programs offer the best hope for combating the problem.

Thomas J. Housel says merchants should remind customers they end up bearing much of the cost of a store's shoplifting losses through high prices and that employes should be trained to correctly handle such incidents of theft.

Housel's recommendations emerged from his study of bystander reactions of hundreds of "staged" shoplifting incidents in department stores and supermarkets in Laramie, Wyo., Pomona and Long Beach.

Some of his suggestions have been implemented by a Salt Lake City retail chain, which has developed a security system described by the researcher as one of the finest in the nation.

Programs should be adopted that reduce the uncertainty of what action to take, says the graduate student.

"The number one step in reducing ambiguity for employes is to provide training in dealing with shoplifters," says Housel, an instructor in the university's Department of Communication.

"The training should include simulated shoplifting incidents. Simulated incidents give employes a chance to make a mistake without such repercussions as a lawsuit from a shopper who has been falsely charged."

For example, the manner in which a question is posed to a shoplifting suspect could prove critically important in guarding against the potential of slander.

Housel says an employe who makes an arrest outside the store may expose management to a lawsuit by asking a suspect: "Did you forget to pay for something?"

A safer approach, he adds, would be: "Is there something you didn't pay for?" The latter approach is legally safer, Housel believes, and makes it more difficult for a shoplifter to wiggle out of trouble.

Housel conducted the study while teaching at the University of Wyoming and developed the recommendations at Utah, where he is currently working on a doctorate in communications.

Housel says ambiguity can be reduced in the would-be shoplifter's mind by adopting a policy of prosecution without exception.

Employes, he adds, should be made familiar with shoplifting laws, including the rights of an accused and what elements are necessary to achieve a successful prosecution.

Housel used college students — working in pairs — to fake the nearly 300 shoplifting incidents which were committed in full view of other shoppers. One student committed the thefts, while the other acted as an observer, gauging the reaction of bystanders.

The experiment showed that only 28 per cent of the shoppers in rural Laramie reported the shopliftings. The figure was even smaller in urbanized Southern California, where 16 per cent reported the "crimes." The tests were conducted with the full knowledge and cooperation of store managers.

In most cases, the bystanders said they reported the thefts less on moral grounds than economic ones. "They didn't want somebody getting away with something they were paying for," says Housel.

Political arena

Legislation suggesting that $100 million be diverted from the state Highway Users Tax Account to build a mass transit system in Southern California is "another ill-disguised try to force-feed a fixed-rail transit system to the public," according to the Southern California Transportation Action Committee.

The bill, S. B. 1000, by SEN. ALLAN ROBBINS, D-North Hollywood, would reduce amounts of money from the tax account paid out to cities and use the funds to design and build a mass transit system.

"We can see the fine hand of Los Angeles County Supervisor Baxter Ward in this nefarious scheme," said an action committee spokesman.

ASSEMBLYMAN GARY K. HART, D-Santa Barbara, has introduced a bill, A. B. 1896, which would license the practice of midwifery in California "within the scope of normal childbirth."

Governor Brown provided the initial "vision and resources" to develop the bill, according to Michael Krisman, deputy director of the Department of Consumer Affairs.

He said it offers parents an "expanded freedom of choice in the kind of maternity and childbirth care available from the health-care industry.

ASSEMBLYMAN DAVE STIRLING, R-64th Dist., said this week he will support legislation eliminating the mandatory retirement age in California.

"The bill, A. B. 586, makes the declaration that use of chronological age as an indicator of ability, and the use of mandatory retirement are obsolete and cruel practices. I agree with that assessment," Stirling said.

Two speed reading classes aimed at increased reading rate without loss of comprehension are offered summer quarter by the CAL POLY POMONA Office of Continuing Education.

"Beginning Speed Reading" is designed to double one's reading rate with no loss in comprehension through the application of reading and learning theories, hand pacing techniques, and individualized instruction. Class meets July 22 and 29, from 6-10 p.m., and July 23 and 30, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Building 15, room 117.

Advanced Speed Reading is a supplementary course for those who wish to significantly increase their initial reading. Class meets from 6-10 p.m., on Aug. 4 and 12, and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., on Aug. 5 and 13, in Cal Poly Building 15, room 17.

Each course is offered for 2 units university credit, at $44. Registration and payment of fees will be accepted at the first class meeting. For further information, call the Office of Continuing Education, 598-4392.

An Administrative Services Credential Program is now being offered through AZUSA PACIFIC COLLEGE at six off-campus graduate studies centers, located in Pomona, San Bernardino, Long Beach, Orange County, Oxnard and San Diego.

The Pomona Center is Garey High School, in the modular units. The program is geared toward a generalist approach providing educational and practical training for potential administrators preparing themselves for positions such as principals, assistant principals, coordinators, directors and superintendents in either elementary or secondary schools.

The program may be taken separately or as a concentration for a master of arts degree in education. The credential program entails 36 academic units, 12 of which are in the education core. The M.A. with concentration in administrative services involves 24 units of classroom instruction and six of field supervision. Tuition costs are $69 per unit, plus a $20 application fee.

For more information on the Administrative Services Credential Program offered in Pomona, contact the Division of Graduate Studies at (213) 969-3434, ext. 243, or by writing to Azusa Pacific College, Highway 66 at Citrus Ave., Azusa, 91702.

C. David Cornell, formerly vice president for university advancement at WHITTENBERG UNIVERSITY, Springfield, Ohio, has been named vice president for development at Wagner College.

Cornell assumed management of the college's development operations July 1. He heads a 10-member staff responsible for college development, publications and public information, and alumni affairs and relations.

Prior to his Wittenberg appointment, Cornell has served as director of university advancement at CAL POLY POMONA; as vice president of Davidson College (N.C.); as director of federal and foundation relations at the University of Iowa; and as director of development and planning at SCRIPPS COLLEGE.

He served as assistant to the president of General Dynamics/Pomona, from 1955-64.

Non-profit agencies looking for employes and students looking for part-time or volunteer work will be brought together Aug. 10 when MT. SAN ANTONIO COLLEGE presents its summer "job fair."

Students and agency personnel will meet from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Student Center.

Co-sponsored by the Occupational Placement Center, the financial aids office and the volunteer programs on campus, this will afford employers and students a centralized area for the exchange of job information. Students planning to work this fall and agencies needing new employes may complete employment plans before the semester rush.

Non-profit agencies, such as parks and recreation departments, chambers of commerce, and school districts, may find it advantageous to hire a MSAC student on the college's work-study program. Employers using this plan pay only part of the student's salary, the remainder is paid from the program's funds.

Other agencies may also find students willing to volunteer some of their time to gain on-the-job training in a particular field. Students in this program earn college credit rather than salaries.

Employers wishing to participate in the program may call the Occupational Placement Office, ext. 224, for further information.

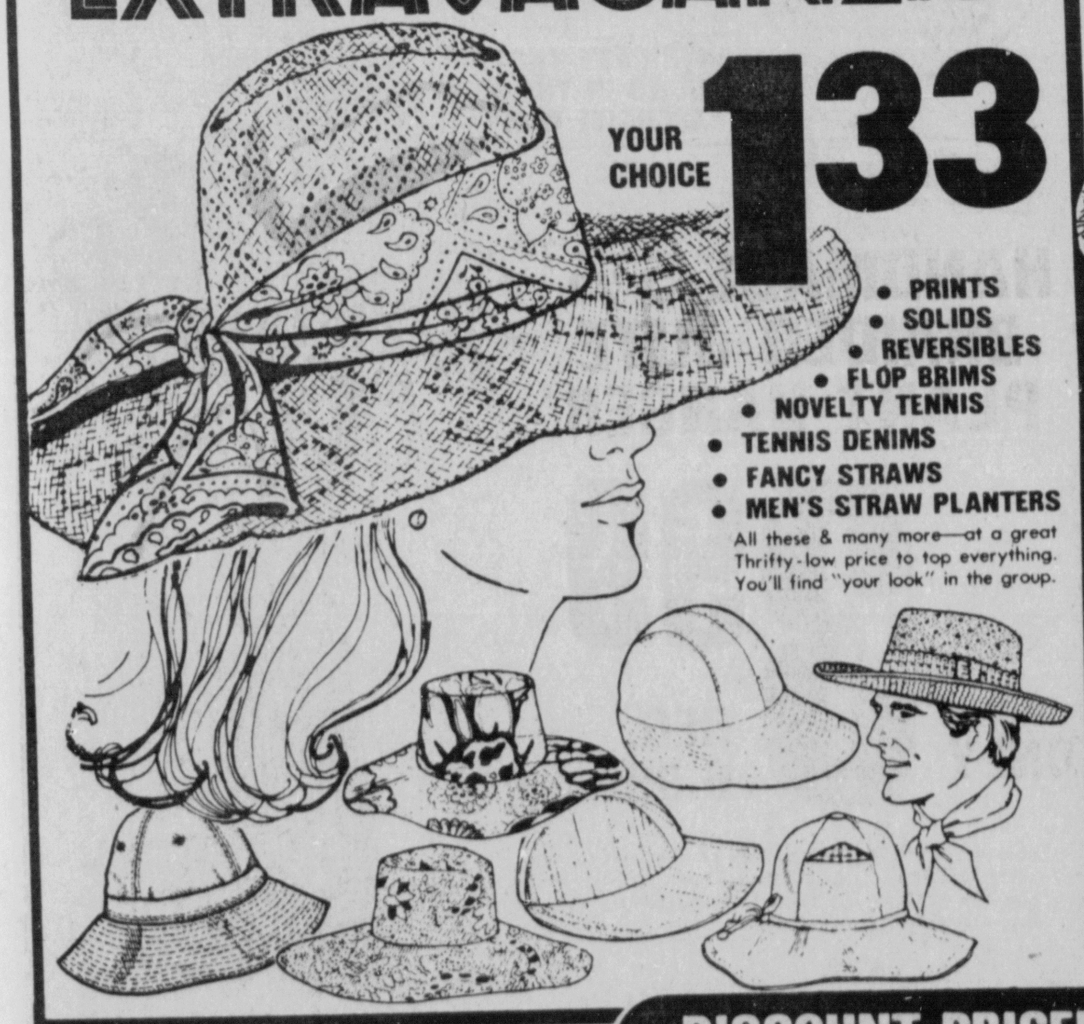

William B. Dunseth, vice president for development, POMONA COLLEGE, will serve on the faculty of the Summer Institute in Educational Fund Raising sponsored by CASE (Council for Advancement and Support of Education) at Dartmouth College, Hanover, N.H.

Now in its 12th year, the CASE Institute is an intensive exploration of the concepts, theories and methods of fund raising. Dunseth will discuss the various aspects of deferred giving, dealing with marketing, programs, instruments and taxes.

85 tons to Moscow.

Nonstop from Chicago by the USAF/Lockheed C-5.

The C-5 is the only airlifter that loads and unloads at both ends.

Refueling twice in the air, a United States Air Force/Lockheed C-5 airlifted a 40-ton superconducting magnet and 45 tons of related equipment from Chicago to Moscow on Sunday, June 19. The 5900 mile flight was the longest in the history of aviation with this heavy a payload.

The largest airlifter in the world, the C-5 has transported heavier loads in the past but on shorter operational flights. The C-5 is operated by the Military Airlift Command.

The magnet will be used in a joint effort by the United States and Russia to develop more efficient ways of producing electricity.

One of the unique features of the C-5 played an important role during the airlift. To load and unload the huge magnet, the C-5 "kneeled" on its 28-wheeled landing gear. This lowered the C-5 cargo deck to within five feet of the runway. The magnet and its ground transporter then were rolled up the C-5's nose ramp and into the giant cargo compartment.

The C-5 is the only airlifter that can kneel to handle such massive equipment.

Lockheed has been dedicated to building great airlifters for more than 20 years. It produced the C-141 StarLifter for the U.S. Air Force and recently stretched the fuselage of one of those airlifters to increase its cargo capacity 33%. It continues to build the Hercules airlifter, which has been chosen by 43 nations and has flown more mercy flights than any other cargo plane.

The world's biggest airlifter.

One of the technological achievements of the 55,000 workers at Lockheed.

San Dimas golf course faces water dilemma

City officials keep fingers crossed, wait for rain

By CONRAD CASLER
PB Correspondent

Green will be brown at San Dimas Canyon Golf Course at least until the leaves turn red.

Officials in San Dimas which owns the popular valley links, admit a handicap which is likely to raise tempers and scores among duffers at least until and if fall rains descend in October or November.

Scores of golfers have been complaining to City Hall recently that the course is not for the birdies and the bogeyman has attacked their games due to poor condition of SDCGC.

City manager Bob Poff Tuesday night cited several reasons for the course's poor condition:

—Inexperienced ground crews because San Dimas only took over maintenance of the course less than two weeks ago when the city's contract with a private maintenance firm expired and was not renewed.

—Lack of water to maintain fairways and greens.

City parks and recreation director Bryce Baily said the course needs 500 gallons of water a minute gushing through its irrigation system to keep the 105-acre, 6,328-yards of fairways, tees and greens lush. But the city has been cut to 150 gallons a minute which it buys from a commercial source.

Up until February, the course was sprinkled both with commercial water and water from county flood control impound dam above the course in San Dimas Canyon. But last winter, county crews drained the dam to remove a silt buildup. No rain has fallen since the reservoir was cleaned so the 350 gallons a minute the course normally received from the dam will not be available until fall rains recharge the reservoir.

Michael Dutton, Poff's assistant, said the city is into a crash program to hire and train six or eight new groundsmen, a lead man and mechanic in an effort to smooth over some of the more pressing maintenance problems.

Dutton said the city has budgeted $435,000 for golf course operations this year. Funds for this item should come from green fees of $4 weekdays and $7 weekends unless duffers stay away in droves because of poor condition of the course.

Dutton said negotiations with former maintenance operator Jesse Mendoza broke down last month when a 40 per cent hike in the contract was requested, forcing the city to take over operation and maintenance of the course on short notice.

"Right now, grass at City Hall and in our parks is getting rather long as we send every available man to the course to maintain it," Dutton said.

"We're going to let grass on the fairways remain longer than usual since this requires less water than short grass," Dutton said. "This will tend to raise scores. We will concentrate on the greens in an effort to prevent that grass from dying.

"We've been lucky in one respect the past two weeks," Dutton said. "We've had temperatures around 85 degrees. If it would jump to 95 degrees or so, results to the course would be a disaster."

Retired Army Maj. Harry J. Kaelin Jr., of West Covina, complained at Tuesday night's City Council meeting that golfers will begin driving and putting elsewhere unless something is done. The course provided 75,000 rounds of golf last year.

Poff said there is no immediate solution to the problem other than patience.

So two more prayers must be added to golfers' prayers of long drives, short grass on fairways, a good putt and a well stocked 19th hole — rain and an experienced ground crew.

Chino residents may get hit with 38-cent increase in taxes

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Residents in the Chino school district may be socked with a 38-cent tax increase, after all.

In a surprise move, school trustees Tuesday night decided not to make actual cutbacks in the proposed 1977-78 budget — which would have reduced the projected increase in the tax rate.

They sliced about $450,000 from planned expenditures, but transferred the monies into undistributed reserves. Depending on possible new state monies and other factors, the reserves could be used later to restore program cuts.

Board members had ordered $300,000 in budget cutbacks at the last meeting in hopes of cutting the projected 38-cent tax increase down to 19 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

However, Duane Stiff, the new superintendent, appealed to trustees Tuesday to remove certain budget items, but to place them in reserves. He noted that reserves are low, and budget cutbacks would be unwise considering the tremendous growth in the district.

Stiff explained that the board declined to raise taxes to the legal limit permitted under Senate Bill 90 last year. In fact, trustees cut the general purpose tax rate 29 cents, he added.

"There was $369,000 available to you that you did not get," he said.

Thus, the district spent its cash reserve (leaving only $113,000 in undistributed reserves) plus the tax monies that were raised, Stiff added. "This year we're hoping to recoup what you didn't levy, plus more."

The general purpose tax rate is proposed to jump from $4 to $4.38 per $100 of assessed valuation. With permissive overrides and the bond redemption tax, the total tax rate would be $5.14, as compared to last year's $4.76.

Trustees agreed with Stiff's contention that reserves are low and the district's financial situation is not as good as it should be.

"It's too bad we have to raise the tax rate," said board member Al McCombs, who had earlier favored reducing the projected 38-cent hike. "I really feel bad for these people (taxpayers)."

"At the same time, we have to keep a reasonable financial position," he added. "Reserves are dangerously low."

Board President Pete Vander Poel noted the district "ran into deficit spending" this year. He said the board is in a "tough position" and has to raise the tax rate now.

The two biggest items in the $450,000 cut from expenditures and transferred to the reserve fund were in areas of personnel and student-teacher ratio.

A savings of $102,800 can be realized, officials said, by figuring the average salary for new teachers this year to be $13,200 instead of $16,209 as earlier projected.

By increasing the number of students per classroom by half a student, $107,200 can be saved, according to district officials.

Other reductions were in instruction, $79,767; site and building improvements, $66,421; business, $49,000; and a proposed reclassification study for non-teaching employes, $50,000.

A major cut under instruction was $16,000 from the collective bargaining budget which trustees indicated was not a necessity this year. The cuts in site and building improvements were accomplished by transferring monies to the building fund.

The proposal to increase class sizes drew critical comments from representatives of Associated Chino Teachers (ACT).

Joyce Thomas, ACT spokesman, noted that the contract recently signed by teachers and the board specified existing student-teacher ratios would be maintained.

"The most obvious conclusion that might be drawn . . . is the district was anxious to conclude negotiations and then do whatever it wanted, regardless of the agreement," she noted.

Bader challenges Brownell to audit

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

Pomona Mayor Charles Bader has challenged Richard C. Brownell, the man he beat in the municipal election in April, to an official audit of their campaign expenses.

Bader, speaking at Monday's City Council meeting, characterized Brownell's current statement of expenses as incomplete and not honest.

"Citizens have a right to know where the money comes from when a man runs for public office. I am prepared to have my campaign audited down to the last penny," said Bader.

Bader attacked the report Brownell filed with City Clerk Larry Thomas last month.

In that report Brownell says he spent $15,788 in seeking the mayor's post, a position he has twice held. Brownell failed to report the source of the funds, however, listing only $3,323 in contributions.

Brownell, contacted before Bader issued his challenge, told the Progress Bulletin it was his own money he spent. He offered no explanation as to why he did not state that in his campaign report, as the law requires.

Bader's challenge went far beyond Brownell's failure to properly list his campaign revenues. He said Brownell wasn't telling the truth about how much money he spent.

"When he claims to have spent $15,788 and I can document $35,000 in expenses, I do not consider that an honest statement," said Bader.

Contacted today about Bader's statement, Brownell laughed and said he had no reservations about being audited.

"Tell 'em to come ahead," said Brownell.

He reiterated his position that his campaign expenditures total $15,788.

City Clerk Thomas said that Brownell and other candidates who filed incomplete reports would have two weeks to file amended reports.

"That's fine. I'm willing to wait two weeks," said Bader.

City Attorney Patrick Sampson said that the Fair Campaign Practices Commission, set up after California voters passed the Political Reform Act in 1974, could be called upon to perform the audit.

The law requires all candidates for elective office to file complete reports as to the source of campaign funds, even donations from their own pockets or loans, and itemized expenditures.

Candidates must also list non-monetary contributions, such as equipment, office furniture, staff aides paid for by someone else and other service donations.

Complete records must be maintained for at least two years, the period in which any citizen has the right to challenge a candidate's campaign record.

Both civil and criminal penalties are possible under the law, with the district attorney designated as the prosecutor for violations.

The clash between Bader and Brownell is not the first time Bader has accused Brownell of willfully violating a statute.

Their bitter campaign was highlighted by Bader's documentation of Brownell taking a homeowner's exemption on a beach house in Dana Point down in Orange County.

To obtain a homeowner's exemption, which reduces the amount of property taxes levied, a person must sign under oath that the home is the individual's primary resident.

Bader used the exemption to question whether Brownell was really a Pomona resident, or whether he just had his business here.

Brownell didn't deny taking the homeowner's exemption, saying he did so to maximize tax savings. He said, however, that he has been a resident of Pomona ever since 1952.

He took to calling Bader a "liar" during the last weeks of the campaign, which eventually ended with Bader claiming a 600-vote victory.

Worker's compensation loopholes tightened

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

The Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors has taken a step towards shutting loopholes in its worker's compensation program, which reportedly has been costing the taxpayers more than $1 million a year.

The board, at the urging of Chairman Ed Edelman, instructed its legislative representatives in Sacramento to seek passage of a state law that would exclude all state and local officials from the program because of stress and strain.

The reform would apply to both elected officials and top appointees and would also include judges.

Supervisor James Hayes called the action "a modest step in the right direction."

He suggested that subsequent steps might be taken by the board to eliminate strain as a form of qualification altogether, and to extend the exclusion to other county employes who hold pressure jobs.

"When these people accept or run for a high public office," he explained, "they know that there will be pressure. They imply acceptance of all that pressure as part of the job."

But he urged the board to proceed slowly because restrictions in the present law will be hard to pass.

"All restrictions in the worker's compensation law will be opposed both by labor and the attorneys who benefit from them," he said. "Today's action is just a modest beginning but it will give us a foot in the door."

Edelman's motion came on the heels of reports that Ernest Debs, former county supervisor, is already getting compensation for "stress and strain" suffered while serving on the board. Since then, Assesor Philip E. Watson has also applied for worker's compensation claiming that his recent heart attack was caused by the pressure of his job. At least two judges also seek similar benefits.

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn said worker's compensation abuses were not confined to high officials only; scores of present county employes were "double dipping."

Chief Administrative Officer Harry Hufford told the board that right now there was no major bill that would limit the present law.

Van de Kamp asked to check into possible Watson junkets

Dist. Atty. John Van de Kamp has been asked to determine whether Los Angeles County Assessor Philip Watson or his staff should be charged with any criminal wrongdoings for allegedly accepting junkets to Las Vegas from a Los Angeles industrial firm.

The request came from the county Board of Supervisors and is the result of claims by Supervisor Baxter Ward that he had documented evidence that Watson, his aide Gerald Miller, and a secretary, Sue Sandiforth, accepted favors from Ormond Industries three years ago.

The names of the three appear on the expense records of the company which is now fighting mismanagement charges in Superior Court filed by dissident stockholders.

Ward claims Miller not only admitted to him that he went on a junket but told the supervisor Watson "practically insisted that he go."

Ward wanted Watson and his aides to come before the board and "confirm or deny" the allegations. Watson denied earlier that such gratuities were accepted or that Ormond has been granted any special treatment.

Ward's charges opened yet another chapter in his fight with Watson regarding alleged mismanagement of the assessor's office, but this is the first time the district attorney has been brought into the case.

The board action came after Supervisor Peter Schabarum declared that if Ward had any evidence of wrongdoings it should be turned over to the district attorney's office for investigation.

U.S.-Soviet trade limits

There is no guarantee that the increased trade between the United States and the Soviet Union will prevent war or eventually soften the U.S.S.R. into a liberal democracy.

The two countries could exchange goods with each other for the next 100 years and still be at daggers drawn; ideologically if not militarily.

Even so, every new trade tie with the Soviets adds to a bond of mutual interest that is that much harder to break in anger.

There are two caveats to keep in mind, however.

One is that we never again let ourselves to be suckered like a bunch of peasants of the communal farm, as we were in the infamous 1972 wheat deal. (We seem to have learned that lesson.)

The other is that we permit nothing to be sold to them that would give the Soviets a military boost, or undercut an advantage we have.

The U.S. Commerce Department has upheld the second principle by denying Control Data Corp. of Minneapolis an export license to sell a sophisticated computer system to the Soviet Union.

The computer — the Cybec 76 — is designed for use in weather research. But "because it is far more powerful than any computer known to the Soviet Union, the likelihood of diversion to military or strategic uses is of serious concern." the department's export administrator decided.

Control Data is quite upset and says it may appeal. Which inevitably reminds us of the prediction attributed to Lenin that when the last capitalist is hanged, it will be with the rope he sold his executioners.

It can be argued, of course, that anything we sell the Soviets can be diverted to a military or strategic use. A pound of wheat can feed a worker to make a pound of steel to be used in a missile

But the logical extension of that would be resolutely no trade with the Russians at all, which would be impractical, even if we didn't need their chrome and other resources.

What we don't need, however, is their chrome or rubles in exchange for technology they are years behind us in developing.

Too much American high technology has already been exported to the Soviet Union. This time somebody wisely peeked inside the package.

And the winner is . . .

Six U.S. cities — Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Los Angeles, New Orleans and New York — are bidding to be selected as the site of the 1984 Summer Olympics.

This is more than a little surprising, given the recent history of the games, not to mention the budgetary plight of the last named city especially.

While Montreal, which hosted the 1976 edition, was spared a repetition of the tragedy that stained the Olympics four years earlier in Munich, it did witness such shameful episodes as the expulsion of Taiwan and the walkout of 20 or more African teams protesting something or other.

The good citizens of Montreal are still holding the bag for $1 billion in construction debts for facilities for the 1976 games — including a terrorist-proof Olympic Village — and are paying for their city's brief moment of glory in the form of a variety of higher taxes.

Yet it would be unfortunate were the Olympics ever to be abolished, for all their abundant shortcomings as a moral substitute for war or as a paying proposition for the city that hosts them.

Since they have to be held somewhere, on balance it is pleasing that it will probably be an American city in 1984, as no foreign city is currently in the running.

But we wish the "winning" city a lot of luck.

Thoughts

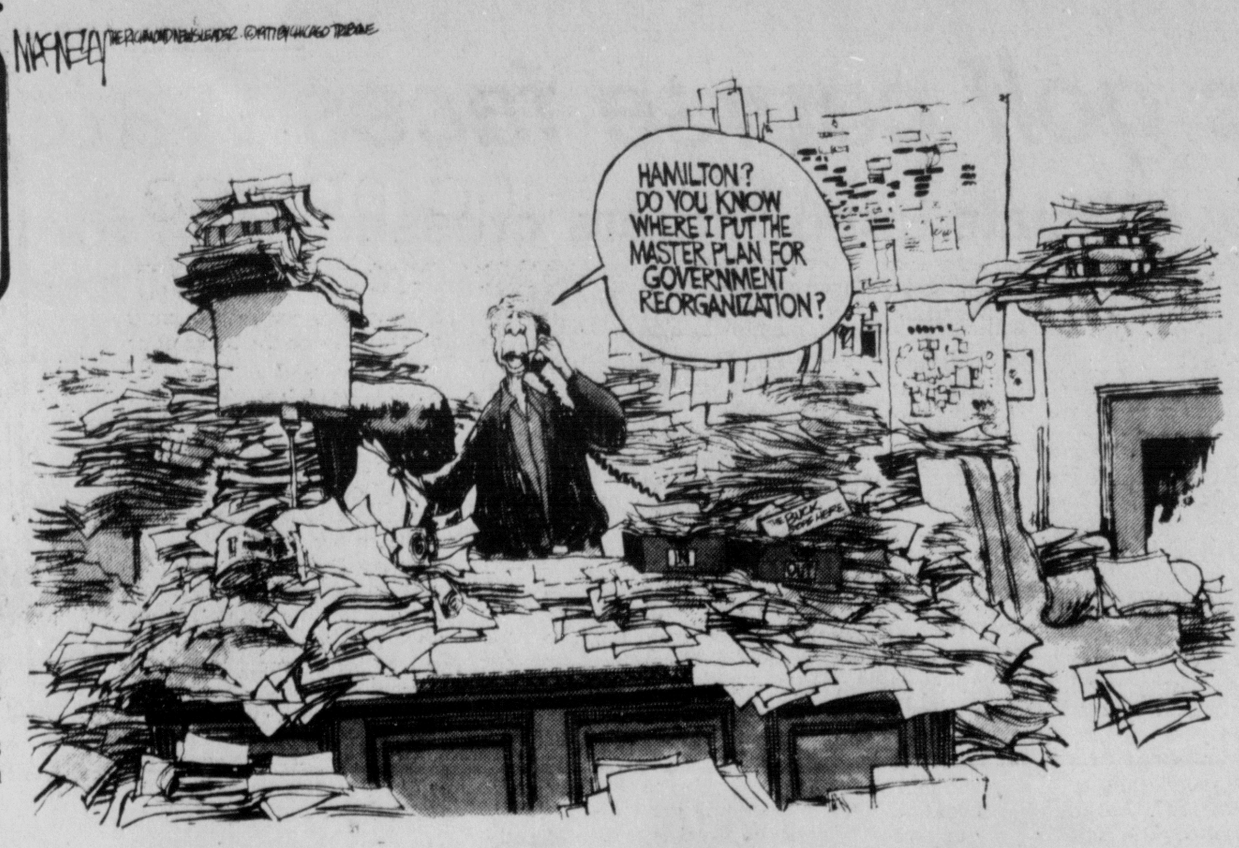

But be doers of the work, and not hearers only, deceiving yourselves. For if anyone is a hearer of the word and not a doer, he is like a man who observes his natural face in a mirror. — James 1:22, 23.

"Plunge boldly into the thing of life! Each lives it, not to many is it known; and seize it where you will, it is interesting." — Johann Goethe, German dramatist.

"And I tell you, you are Peter, and on this rock I will build my church, and the powers of death shall not prevail against it." — Matthew 16:18.

"It is the churches to which we must look to develop the resources for the great moral offensive that is required to make human rights secure, and to win a just and lasting peace." — John Foster Dulles, former United States Secretary of State.

Forced busing is in vogue

Dear Editor:

The Los Angeles School Board has a hard nut to crack with the busing bit.

It seems doubtful that Judge Paul Egley will be the nut to crack. The taxpayers scream at going bust with busing. Neither kids nor parents are all that enthusiastic about being all that mixed up. But if Egley is to be kept happy, as he assures is the case, something has to happen. Racial balance must be achieved, even if everyone becomes a bit unbalanced in the process.

With browns almost equal in number to the whites, the problem is not all black and white. PWT (permit with transportation) is now a fact. That is not enough for Egley. Forced busing, although unconstitutional, is in vogue. Federal law specifically excludes busing for racial balance. State law is unclear. Only the courts could dream up such monstrosities.

If there were a law, compliance by the school board would be simple. A judge's whim is a harder nut to crack, particularly when he has fellow conspirators to face.

Secret Service trails fanatic

WASHINGTON — The Secret Service has now joined the search for Ervil LeBaron, the prophet of violence, who claims he receives "military orders" from a wrathful God to strike down false prophets and unrepentent sinners.

He got the Secret Service on his trail, apparently, by adding the names of President Jimmy Carter and Vice President Walter Mondale to his execution list.

Investigators estimate that the fiery LeBaron has already arranged the "religious execution" of at least 20 people who have aroused his ire. He didn't exactly bring down lightning bolts from the sky. Most of the victims, according to investigators, were bushwacked in cowardly fashion.

Most of his assassins are also women who have been indoctrinated to carry out his commands. "I am God's spokesman," he has told them. They believe and obey.

LeBaron's reported goal is to establish God's kingdom on earth. For this purpose, he has stockpiled weapons and is recruiting a peasant army in Mexico. According to investigators, he intends to kill all religious and political leaders who stand in his way.

Meanwhile, LeBaron has eluded the lawmen of two nations in the colorful canyonlands and desolate deserts of the U.S. Southwest and the adjacent Mexican wastelands. This is Butch Cassidy country — a wilderness of rock formations, red-rock ravines, sagebrush and cactus — where the legendary Wild Bunch hid out at the turn of the century.

The sagebrush prophet wrote to Carter, acccording to Secret Service files, shortly before the election. The letter, although not threatening, warned Carter that his Baptist Church was led by "false prophets."

Not long after the election, both Carter and Mondale received threatening letters from a D.W. Payne, who claimed to speak for the Society of American Patriots. "That sounds like Ervil," one of his relatives told us.

Sure enough, investigators traced the letters to a post office box rented by two of LeBaron's wives in Southern California. The evidence is not hard enough, however, to obtain an arrest warrant. But in view of his violent record, the Secret Service is seeking the elusive LeBaron for questioning.

We have been working on the LeBaron story, off and on, for a year. We had heard whispers of mysterious murders and strange disappearances among the polygamists who live on the edge of the southwest wilderness. As early as 1968, John Butcherite was invited by LeBaron to help him set up a religious colony in Mexico. They reportedly quarreled; poor Butcherite was found murdered in his bed. A similar fate has befallen others, including nagging wives, who have crossed LeBaron.

The volatile and violent LeBaron controls his small, fanatical band through a combination of lunacy and charisma. To his followers, he is a modern Moses atop Mount Sinai, a mountain peak silhouetted against the lightning. They will die for him or kill for him, our sources say.

The doomsday demagogue also arranges all the marriages within his sect, a device he uses to control the men. Those who are the most slavish are granted the choicest wives. The women are kept in line by fear. To question LeBaron's orders, they are taught, would be to challenge God.

LeBaron reportedly has selected 14 wives for himself although, according to one relative, he maintains only half-a-dozen in his household. Eight of his wives, we are told, live in the United States and collect welfare checks under their own names. They allegedly send the money to LeBaron to distribute. Incidentally, four of the wives left their legal husbands to join his harem.

Investigators say that LeBaron has about 40 hard-core followers. Like wandering nomads, they move around the western wastelands. They will stop at remote Mexican villages and use threats of violence to recruit peasants for his religious army. His women, armed with shotguns and firebombs, destroyed the tiny Mexican town of Los Molinos a few days before Christmas, 1974. He has threatened to wreak the same vengeance upon other localities that dare to defy him.

The wild sect not only is heavily armed but surprisingly well trained. His disciples are taught from childhood to handle weapons. He has used former soldiers to teach them military tactics. His desert camps have a mixed military-religious appearance.

A brilliant man with a burning inside, LeBaron devotes much of his time to writing religious tracts. He has a thorough, if perverted, knowledge of the scriptures. He rejects the benevolent, loving Christ of the New Testament and embraces instead the vengeful God of the Old Testament.

LeBaron's writings are loaded with awful warnings that the judgments of God will be poured down upon the people.

Anderson on shaky grounds

By MARTHA ANGLE and ROBERT WALTERS

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Congress is full of nervous politicians these days, but few are as jumpy as the man who replaced Vice President Walter F. Mondale in the Senate. And with good cause.

The voters of Minnesota, who are uncommonly fussy about who represents them, have by no means forgiven former Democratic Gov. Wendell Anderson for effectively appointing himself to Mondale's old seat.

Simply put, they think it was a tacky thing to do — a reaction that has been widely shared by voters elsewhere in comparable situations in the past.

Only one state governor in this century — Happy Chandler of Kentucky — ever won election to the Senate after first having himself appointed to fill a vacancy. Eight others were rebuffed at the polls as soon as they had to face the voters.

Anderson knew all this when he decided last winter to grab Mondale's seat himself instead of appointing either a caretaker or a serious contender to the job. But like others before him, he was convinced he could overcome voter resentment.

There are signs that he may have miscalculated.

Throughout his six years as governor, Anderson always drew higher positive than negative ratings in periodic public opinion polls conducted for the Minneapolis Tribune.

But last month, in the first Minnesota Poll measuring his performance in the Senate, 40 per cent of those surveyed gave him only fair to poor marks, compared with 32 per cent who said he was doing a good or excellent job. An unusually high 28 per cent had no opinion.

Republicans, both in Minnesota and in Washington, seized upon the new poll with glee. "I think Anderson is in big trouble. We've got our best shot in a quarter of a century to elect a Republican to the Senate next year," said the outgoing GOP state chairman, Chuck Slocum.

Democratic-Farmer-Labor Party officials in Minnesota readily concede that state voters, including members of their own party, are still miffed at Anderson for appointing himself.

But they believe he can overcome the handicap to defeat any primary challengers or GOP candidates who go after him next year.

The most likely Republican opponent is Rudy Boschwitz, GOP national committeeman and millionaire owner of a popular plywood concern. Although Boschwitz is not a favorite of party regulars, who would prefer Rep. Bill Frenzel, R-Minn., he is widely known statewide because of his company's massive advertising — most of which features none other than Rudy Boschwitz.

Ironically, Anderson's biggest problem at the moment may not be Republican Rudy Boschwitz so much as Democrat Rudy Perpich — his former lieutenant who succeeded him as governor.

Perpich has proven astonishingly popular as governor, running a wide open state house with a free-wheeling personal style that contrasts sharply with the closed, tight-knit Anderson operation.

Although Anderson is an effective and attractive television campaigner, he is somewhat stiff and reserved in person. Minnesotans seem to be captivated by the easy-going Perpich, and Anderson has suffered in comparison

Anderson insists he is not concerned about his own sagging pool readings, nor about Perpich's apparent success. "The governor is on TV and in the papers constantly, whereas I seem to have dropped from sight simply because I have to be here in Washington so much," he said.

"I'm not at all alarmed or concerned. At some point, people will have to weigh my qualifications against a specific opponent and when that day comes, I think I'll be elected," the senator said.

Maybe so. But despite expected strong support from Hubert Humphrey and Mondale, Anderson will have to make his own peace with the voters of Minnesota. His Senate race next year could be one of the nation's liveliest contests.

Just in jest

Rapid Transit District officials recently raised bus fares from 35 to 40 cents. — Forty cents to ride a bus! To one who in the days of his youth rode a streetcar for five cents and, what was more, also got a transfer for that money, the business of living is daily becoming more and more incomprehensible.

Did I say incomprehensible? Scratch that and substitute downright ridiculous. Consider the dire and foreboding threats we have recently been receiving from water conservation officials. A week ago they were telling us that if we didn't cut down on our use of water, we would not only be fined but, if worst came to worst, would probably eventually die from thirst and dehydration. — But now, in Alameda County, the Water District officials are asking residents to resume normal usage of water; and in San Francisco the Water Department is urging people to continue watering their lawns. And why this sudden reversal on the part of those public officials who guide us so profoundly when a crisis arises? Well, apparently when the public's loyal conservation efforts suddenly start playing havoc with the water companies' revenues, the almighty dollar invariably takes precedent over conservation.

Being a member of the beerage rather than the peerage, naturally it's not mine to question why, it's just mine to do or die as directed by the official aristocracy that, because of its superior wisdom, always knows all the answers.

A look at state's future

By EARL G. WATERS

Californians, concerned about the future of the state, should study closely the Urban Development Strategy report just completed by the Office of Planning and Research. While of itself it changes nothing, since it is merely recommendations for meeting impending growth, it must be considered a blueprint of things to come. For, as it states, it is intended to "articulate the state's policies on growth, development and environmental quality."

As it stands it represents the combined thinking of the Urban Development Advisory Committee and the Task Force of intra-state agencies on Urban Development.

Now in draft form, the OPR is conducting a series of forum workshops in urban centers through July and August to broaden the perspective before presenting the final draft to the governor this fall. From these discussions undoubtedly some changes will result in the report but overall the die has been cast.

Forecasting a near 50 per cent potential population growth by the year 2000, it finds that 240,000 housing units and 20,000 jobs must be provided yearly in the next four years just to meet the 1980 expected population needs.

While such predictions may be music to the ears of speculators, Realtors and developers, the report asserts that "today, we at last recognize that land is a valuable and limited resource, not just a commodity."

It is a realization which many will think has dawned at least 30 years late but it omens ever tighter restrictions on land use for the future.

For, although many still thinking of California as an agricultural state have yet to awaken to the fact, "California's 21 million residents comprise the most urban state population in the nation and are now the symbol of urban sprawl throughout the world."

To halt the continuing spread across undeveloped lands and thus insure the continued production of agricultural land which "can support a civilization for many thousands of years," the report has come up with some hard remedies.

Too numerous to recount in detail, the emphasis is on urban renewal including "backfill." The latter is the development of vacant land within existing urban areas, most often found in deteriorated neighborhoods. Urban expansion would be confined to land immediately adjacent to established areas.

The report strongly heads in the direction of regional government and recommends property and sales tax revenue sharing within such regions, as well as financial pressures from federal and state governments to enforce the strategies. Whether the ideas are too Utopian, and too drastically change the authority of local government, for ready acceptance by the legislature remains to be seen.

Even as the plan is put forth, there is disagreement among those who participated. Perhaps none more clearly than Mayor Thomas Porter of Visalia who said he "remains somewhat uncomfortable with the final draft."

"I am worried about the potentiality of local governments being reduced to subservient arms of state government; I am strongly opposed to state funding of the Council of Governments which would transform them . . . to agents of the state; what I really fear . . . is that the proposals will reduce the better communities to the level of the minimum ones . . ."

Porter also objected to giving the state the power to make unilateral decisions regarding industrial siting. He said he doubted the ability of California to attract new industry under a process which would force an industry into a location it considered unsuitable.

Ann Landers

Mother gives sound advice

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is to the three 16-year-old girls who spend all their spare time fantasizing, "What if we got pregnant?"

What kind of roulette are you playing, girls? The stakes are higher than you think. Abortion is now considered safer than childbirth, but it is still 100 per cent fatal for the fetus. Do the unborn have a voice in the game?

Releasing a child for adoption may not be your decision alone. Courts are now recognizing the rights of the father. You'd better call in the unlisted players.

If you opt for raising the child alone, can you raise the "bread?" Are you ready to take on the responsibility for the daily care of another human being? Or are you assuming that your family or society will pick up the tab? If so, they too should be consulted. The right to "do your own thing" does not include the right to impose on others.

Marriage may not be the answer either. If you are a minor you would need parental consent in some states. What is your boyfriend's gut reaction? Have you consulted him? Will he scuttle school and career plans for a menial job to support you and your baby? Or will he be a rabbit and run? If he stays and "takes the punishment" remember that a captive mate often slips the noose when he gets fed up. What will you do then?

There are two ways of ending the gamble: Stay away from sex altogether or learn how to use contraceptives responsibly. Perhaps these should be the topics for your next gabfest, girls. -- Fantasy Child's Mother In Des Moines

Dear Mother: Thank you for some sensible advice. I couldn't have done better myself. In fact, probably not as well.

Dear Ann Landers: My boyfriend Hal and I just had a fight over something stupid. We have known each other for several years and are now considering marriage.

President Carter stated recently that he might start the "draft" again. Hal says he will not have to go because of his police record. Five years ago he was involved in burglary and grand larceny. Six months ago he was arrested for the possession of an ounce of marijuana.

Please give us the correct information. — Mad In New York

Dear Mad: At this writing a new draft is being considered, but there is no draft law on the books at present. So quit fighting, already. (P.S. Hal sounds like a real winner.)

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is for "Tomato Face" — the girl who was miserable because the men in the office told off-color jokes and used shocking language — they loved to watch her blush.

Honey, I'm a 33-year-old male who used to be a blusher, too. A friend proved to me that involuntary responses can be controlled. If you will do some programming you can prevent the blush mechanism as I did. An appropriate message to repeat to yourself might be: "CANCEL THE BLUSH, I WILL NOT PUT ON A SHOW FOR THESE JERKS." — V-8

Dear V-8: In technical language your suggested approach is called "bio-feedback." If it can lower one's blood pressure (and it can), it certainly should be able to squelch a blush. The technique must be learned from a professional, however. Check with a physician.

Dead mouse, not live one

DEAR DR. MILLER: Benny, my boa constrictor, has been beaten up twice by mice I've tried to feed him. Benny's very upset about this, but he won't eat anything else. What can I do? — G.T.

DEAR G.T.: If you think Benny's upset, what about most of the mice? If mice must be fed, it shouldn't be hard to get Benny to accept a humanely dispatched, dead mouse instead of a live one. He might well be relieved to receive such a safe supper. (Some such snakes can even be taught to eat meat and supplements in lieu of little warm bodies.)

DEAR DR. MILLER: What's the ideal pool temperature? For goldfish, I mean, not people. — W.D.

DEAR W.D. — Goldfish prefer a 60 to 70-degree water temperature, but can cope nicely with 80 degrees. Temperatures above this are progressively less comfortable and more dangerous.

DEAR DR. MILLER: My mother-in-law wants to move in with us, and our house is large enough. She loves our children, and they her. It could work out except for one thing. She'd be bringing her German shepherd along. The children want a dog anyway, but I've read scary stories about big dogs attacking children. Are dogs like this German shepherd really safe around kids? — G.N.

DEAR G.N.: Probably. As a rule, children are safe with large dogs, usually far safer (and happier, too) with them than without them. Children should be taught from the beginning how to treat and handle the dog properly, and the dog, too, should have guidelines on "childcare." The dog's natural protective instincts, intelligence and affection for children may make any such training unnecessary, yet it's best not to count on this, for there are individual German shepherds, or other dogs, who do not like children — sometimes for good reason.

There are a few individuals of any breed who, because of poor breathing and/or undesirable environment (and this includes some deliberately "trained") are neurotic, unstable animals, unsafe around humans generally and children in particular.

Still, for every child endangered by such a dog, there are many others who have been spared from danger by canine companions. Because of their strength, these dogs should be initially evaluated with special care, preferably by an expert. Most prove to be happy choices. The mother who fears all large dogs because a very few are potentially dangerous, might well fear humans for the same reason. I'd hope the number of children subjected to this particular philosophy is small.

Things are fine at the library

Some months ago I was privileged to take a tour through Honnold Library of the Claremont Colleges, and I was awed to learn that they have computerized the whole tower of academic lore so that any student or professor can immediately locate any book in the million-volume castle and pinpoint any book in any library in the United States. How does that grab you?

Tremendously efficient to the scholarly world, of course, but with the increased efficiency has come a loss that I regret. Since our public libraries are also going over to printouts, the loss has become even more pervasive. You go to the library, fill out a withdrawal blank, and your book pops out of a chute in less time than it takes you to fill in your zip code. But that rich lode of small town rumor and gossip that once was available to all on the card pasted in the front of the book is no longer there.

In earlier times, the observant could read — er, volumes from the library cards. You note that Bill Masterson recently had out "Tom Jones" and that Timmy Masterson, his 15-year-old son had it out the next month — checking up on the old man or thumbing through for the salacious passages? You see that Mrs. Parker had "Better Gardens" out for a month, and you can imagine what agony poor old Jack Parker is going through in his back yard. John Drake had taken out "Care and Upkeep of Swimming Pools," so you figure John is still having trouble with his new pool. The Blair family, Lucy, Mac, and the two kids, Billy and Janet, have taken out four books apiece — it's obvious that their television is broken.

The old library cards were full of surprises. Fancy old Miss Luella Painter with her nose buried in "Lolita" and "Valley of the Dolls" and "Fannie Hill." Janie Thompson is an Agatha Christie buff — her name is on the card of every one of the mysteries, sometimes twice. The Rev. Charles Hough turns out to be a science fiction freak, his gracefully penned signature appearing on the cards in "Dune," "More Than Human," "Childhood's End," "Stranger in a Strange Land" and others. And Grandma Barclay is revealed as a closet athlete — she took out "The Boys of Summer" (twice), Jimmy Bartlett's "Great Moments at Green Bay" and Joe Garagiola's baseball reminiscences.

The withdrawal of do-it-yourself books tells a lot about the activities in your home town. Jack Davis took out "Painting: Inside and Out" and was on a ladder with bucket and brush all spring. The Parkingtons got help from Graham's "Patio Installation," as their new brick and potted plant addition attests. The books were not always successful, as you know. Fred Hale had "Home Plumbing Made Easy" out for two months, but he made a disaster of his new bathroom and ended up paying $385.65 in plumber's bills and library fines.

The biggest surprise, I guess, came to 12-year-old Johnny Sullivan, who collects moths. He trudged home from the library one day with a book entitled "Advice to Expectant Mothers."

No one can cure Hopi leg cramps

It's not always a good idea to disabuse superstitious people of their odd convictions. Take the Hopi Indians, for instance. They used to believe they'd get pains in their legs if they stepped across the path of a snake. They relied on witch doctors to cure them, and those cures seemed to work. Then in World War II, the army doctors convinced them that the witch doctors were no good. The Hopis still got the leg pains, but the witch doctors couldn't cure them anymore. And neither could the army doctors, because the Hopis had no faith in them, either.

NOAH'S ARK

Q. "Noah's ark was to be 300 cubits long, 50 cubits wide and 30 cubits high. But how big is that?"

A. Call it 450 feet long, 75 feet wide and 45 feet high. A cubit was supposed to be the distance from the elbow to the tip of the middle finger, or about 18 inches.

Q. "What are the ideal measurements — if any such standard exists — of the Las Vegas showgirls?"

A. Height, 5-feet-9½ inches. Weight, 134 pounds. Tapes, 37-25-37.

Brain cells malfunction

DEAR DR. LAMB — Will you please write about hardening of the arteries? Every time my husband is in the hospital or in bed for a few days he gets confused, doesn't know where he is or what he does or says. It's awful.

He is 74 years old and has been sick for a long time with several different things. I would like to know all I can about the confused way he gets. You can't reason with him then, and he thinks he's not at home when he is.

DEAR READER — This is a very common condition in our society. Whenever the brain cells are not functioning properly you may have confusion. One can see this when the brain cells are affected by medicine or drugs, as may occur even with excess alcohol.

Fatty deposits in the arteries build up and interfere with the normal blood flow to brain cells. This is the same disease that occurs in arteries elsewhere in the body. This may cause significant changes in personality, confusion and changes in behavior. The artery disease really decreases the oxygen supply to sensitive brain cells.

There are studies being done on how to cope with these conditions but I must say there is very little that can be done at present. It is probably important to spend time trying to help the person relate to reality. Be firm in saying what the facts really are. In other words insist that he is home when his mind is playing tricks on him and he thinks he is not. Enforce the idea that a visitor is not some imagined person from the past. These people have a hard enough time determining what is correct without re-enforcing their fantasies.

Good medical care helps. Any anemia may decrease the ability to supply oxygen to the brain and make matters worse. Careful attention to nutrition and providing as normal an environment as possible is about the best that can be done.

The best approach is to prevent these problems as far as possible. That means preventing atherosclerosis, the fatty-cholesterol deposits. Small strokes may also cause this condition and can best be prevented by controlling high blood pressure, avoiding obesity, eating a low-fat low-cholesterol diet, avoiding cigarettes and having a sensible exercise program.

I am sending you the Health Letter number 2-5 (Stroke: Cerebral Vascular Accident — Cerebral Thrombosis) to give you more information on problems of circulation to the brain. Others who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019

DEAR DR. LAMB — My boys, ages 7 and 9, pop their knuckles probably 10 times a day or more. I have heard this will cause them to have large knuckles when they are older and also that they could get arthritis from it. Is this true or is it one of those tales we hear?

DEAR READER — No, it is not true. I suspect the person who has to listen to this habit thinks they should be punished in some way. A few years ago a physician and his son did a survey on knuckle poppers and arthritis. There was no evidence that knuckle popping caused any problems of any kind.

So it seems the biggest danger is that some exasperated parent or grandparent may be driven to commit mayhem if they do it too often.

Your Birthday, July 14, 1977

A lot of things are in store for you this coming year, especially socially. However, be careful about entering into speculative ventures with people you meet.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) While you're certainly not a loner today, you should choose your company carefully. A pal prone to be silly could do something you'll have to pay for. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In family situations today you're better off to go along with what the majority wants to do. Let compassion overrule your logic.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Keep an air of mystery about you if you meet someone new today. If you let her know a little bit, she'll be eager to learn more.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Friends may think an idea of yours is a hare-brained scheme. If you feel strongly about it, go ahead — you could have the last laugh!

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Where others may fail, you have the knack today for adding a little touch to what you do. It could be the factor that spells success.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're better off not asking people for favors today. Your needs are already known — they'd rather act of their own volition.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A good friend wants to act in your behalf today, but don't seek her advice unless she's an expert in the field. She could unwittingly steer you wrong.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) An unambitious associate or one whose ideas clash with yours could mar your chances for success today.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Praise goes a long way with those working for you today. A few encouraging words will do more good than a bonus.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The end results could be less than satisfactory to you today. You could well make last-minute changes and foul up the detail.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) For some inexplicable reason, you may say something that rattles your mate today. The antidote: A nice, unexpected gesture.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You might have an idea for a do-it-yourself project today. Study it before beginning, for you could come up with a money-saving method.

Opening lead — K♣

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

You are playing in a tournament and find yourself in a very normal six-spade contract. You are a little disappointed with the dummy. It has a mirror of your own distribution, so you must lose a club and may have to lose a diamond.

In any event you win the club lead, draw trumps, play out the ace, king and queen of hearts and lead your jack of clubs.

West wins with the queen and plays the queen of diamonds!

He has stayed out of the heart and club traps and not given you the ruff and discard you hoped for. He also hasn't led a low diamond. The lead of the queen or jack would have been automatic for most players with just one diamond honor while the lead of the queen would be automatic for any expert who had been dealt queen plus some small diamonds.

If you think that West is an expert you should go up with dummy's ace and finesse against East for the jack because from queen-jack he might well have led the jack. If you don't think he is an expert let the trick come around to your king and play West for the jack. Or, better yet, take a peek at the East-West cards and see what to do.

Ask the Jacobys

A New York reader wants to know what he should rebid with:

♠ K J x x ♥ x ♦ K x x ♣ A K x x x.

He has responded one spade to partner's one heart opening and partner has rebid two hearts.

There is no correct rebid. He should have responded two clubs to start with whereupon he could bid spades next.

Two join staff at McKinley Home

Two social workers have joined the staff of McKinley Home for Boys in San Dimas.

Marianne J. Downing and Joan A. Keith are now filling the positions vacated by Paul L. Urlie and Anne E. Urlie who have moved to northern California.

As social workers they are closely involved with the relationships between McKinley boys, their parents, schools and placement agencies. Miss Downing is in charge of Cottage 3, 13 to 15 year olds, and Mrs. Keith is responsible for Cottage 1, 8 to 13 year olds.

For the past two and a half years, Miss Downing has been employed by the Los Angeles County Superintendent of Schools as the McKinley Home school-liaison worker. She has served as the contact between public school administrators and teachers and McKinley staff members in resolving any problems involving McKinley youths. From 1970 to 1974, Miss Downing was a deputy probation officer for Los Angeles County assigned to the Juvenile Hall in Sylmar.

Miss Downing received her B.A. and teaching credential from Hamline University, St. Paul, Minn., and will begin work on her master's degree this fall.

Mrs. Keith received her M.A. and B.A. from the USC School of Social Work. She did her USC internships at the Pasadena Child Guidance Clinic and at the Los Angeles County Department of Adoptions District Office.

Man tries rape of 12-year-old

A man posing as a maintenance worker forced his way into an apartment complex on Lehigh Street in Montclair Monday afternoon and attempted to rape a 12-year-old girl, according to Montclair police.

Police said the man knocked on the apartment door and ask the girl if he could fix a sink in the kitchen.

The man then entered the apartment and forced the girl into a bedroom and onto the bed, police said. She began screaming and the would-be rapist turned and fled.

The girl described her assailant as a white, approximately 25 years of age, 6 feet 1, 175 pounds with dark curly, medium-length hair and a darker medium-red moustache.

He was wearing a purple flowered shirt and blue Levis.

The girl was not harmed.

3 injured in Pomona traffic

Three persons were injured in separate Pomona traffic accidents Monday with one of the victims a bike rider who rode into the side of a semi-trailer truck, police reported.

The rider, Charles L. Kraft, 13, of Pomona, was entering Reservoir Street from a driveway north of Seventh Street when the accident occurred just before 3 p.m. Truck driver Phillip D. Weber, 40, of Sepulveda, was driving southbound. The victim was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

An hour later Richard William Faustin, 24, of Pomona, was injured when the car he was driving hit a utility pole along Philadelphia Street east of Garey Avenue. Police arrested him on a drunken driving charge after he was treated at the hospital.

Shortly after midnight, Edward Pratt, 46, of Pomona, was arrested on the same charge after his car hit a parked car at Kellogg Park Drive west of Glen Eagle Avenue.

A person in the parked car, Marmont M. Edson, 34, of Pomona, was injured slightly.

Person-to-person

MARIANNE PERLOT has joined the development staff of Claremont University Center as senior development counselor.

Her main concerns will be endowments and major gifts of individuals. She will work with Richard D. Stine, vice president for development. The university center is the central coordinating institution of the Claremont Colleges, and Claremont Graduate School is its academic arm.

Mrs. Perlot has been a fund-raiser for seven colleges and universities. Her latest position before coming to Claremont was vice president for development at California Institute of the Arts in Valencia, where she planned, supervised and managed the institute's development and public affairs program.

PEGGY HEDRICK is the new admissions officer for the La Verne College Law School.

The admissions officer is a new position for the law school, which is expanding its operations on the school's move into new facilities.

Mrs. Hedrick has served as admissions assistant since 1976, and made the transition into the new position July 1. She is now responsible for development, implementation and effective management of the admission program.

Prior to her coming to La Verne College, Mrs. Hedrick worked for three years in Egypt on archaeological projects, public relations and photography. Her work there with the Nag Hammadi Project of the Coptic Museum, Cairo, Egypt, was sponsored by UNESCO and funded by the Smithsonian Institute through the American Research Center in Egypt.

Use of handicapped veterans urged

The U.S. Department of Labor, in cooperation with the state Employment Development Department and other veteran-oriented agencies, is calling upon all valley employers to give special consideration to the training and hiring of handicapped veterans.

At the same time, veterans are being urged to make themselves aware of the many opportunities available through local organizations.

Local employers with federal government contracts are required by law to take affirmative action as to the hiring of handicapped veterans.

Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties, the prime sponsors of the Comprehensive Employment Training Act program, are dedicated to the placement of veterans in public service jobs.

The Veterans Administration offers job counseling, the local Reemployment Action Committee holds periodic veteran job-seeking seminars, and the State Employment Development Department has a veteran specialist assigned to each local office.

Dog shots, licensing clinic set

A West End area dog licensing and rabies vaccination clinic will be held next Saturday to allow county residents a final opportunity to have their dogs vaccinated and licensed before the Aug. 1 deadline.

Dogs may be licensed at $10 each and vaccinated at the reduced clinic rate of $2 for both males and females. Dogs which are spayed or neutered may be licensed at only $5, provided a spay or neuter certificate is presented.

County residents who own dogs four months of age or older are urged to have their animals vaccinated and licensed now to avoid the high costs and penalties that go into effect Aug. 1. At that time license costs will be raised to $15 and vaccinations must be obtained from private veterinarians.

In the West End area the make-up dog licensing and rabies vaccination clinic will be held at Alta Loma High School, 8880 Base Line Road, from 9 a.m. to noon.

Cumin used

Knife wielder to woman driver: 'take me to Disneyland'

A Montclair woman was forced at knife-point to drive a thin, pale man to Disneyland in Anaheim from the Stater Bros. market at 9575 Central Ave., Montclair, Monday, police reported.

The woman told police the man approached her in the market parking lot and produced a large, black-handled hunting knife.

She said the man ordered her to drive to Anaheim. She complied, arriving at Disneyland Monday afternoon. She said the man then ran from her car towards the park entrance.

The woman then drove to the Anaheim Police Department to report the incident.

She described her abductor as a white, 30 years of age, 5 feet 11, with short blondish-brown hair. He was wearing a black woolen cap, a gray jacket and green pants.

Faces hearing on robbery charge

A young Montclair resident faces preliminary hearing Thursday in Pomona Municipal Court on a robbery charge related to the holdup June 21 of Claremont restaurateur Joseph T. Nammour.

Nammour, 52, owner of the Claremont Grill at 148 Yale Ave., was robbed of his briefcase containing $450, a calculator and several credit cards and other personal belongings.

The suspect, Lewis Varner, 18, was arrested later after an unidentified man went to the police department and told of seeing a young man fleeing with a briefcase. He said the man ran to a car and was driven away. The witness gave police the license number of the vehicle and it was traced to the parents of two others arrested in the case — a 16-year-old girl and a 15-year-old boy. Their arrest led to the arrest of Varner, according to Detective Ted Kamena.

Nammour was robbed as he sat in front of his restaurant waiting for his wife that evening. He said a young man threated him with a knife, grabbed the briefcase and ran.

The juvenile boy and girl are being handled by probation department authorities, Kamena said. The girl was released to the custody of her parents, but the youth was held in Juvenile Hall.

The pickle is 'fickle'

LOMBARD, Ill. (AP) — Hard water makes soft pickles, according to researchers at the Water Quality Association. They report that the calcium and other minerals in hard water interfere with the fermentation and pickling process. Soft or softened water, on the other hand, they explain, produces crisp, hard pickles.

AN EXPANSION TEAM? — The Brown Bears and the Chimpanzees are still in training and so far they don't offer much of a threat to any of the present hockey leagues, but they just might bring new excitement to the sport.

Birds of a feather hatch new link in U.S., Soviet detente

BARABOO, Wis. (AP) — Like the entire era of Soviet-U.S. detente, the latest venture linking Moscow and America is egg-shell delicate.

First there were negotiations. Then there were transportation problems to be worked out. But it all jelled this week with the incubator hatching of Vladimir, the first Siberian crane born in captivity.

Researchers supervising the University of Wisconsin Biotron incubator in Madison had a name ready for a second egg they hoped would hatch today. If the bird is hatched, she will be called Yita.

Vladimir, a little brown ball of feathers with a beak when he emerged from his brown shell on Sunday, will one day be a large bird of striking plumage and visage. But there are few of his kind left, and that problem led to the international cooperation.

The International Crane Foundation located here said nine Soviet scientists waited for weeks on the frozen Siberian steppes for the eggs to be laid by the twins' mother, one of the last 350 Siberian cranes in the world. The Chinese and Indian marshes, where the cranes spend their summers, are drying up.

The eggs went by jet from Siberia to Moscow to London to New York to Madison.

The chicks were to stay in the incubator for 30 days before being transferred to special foundation-operated quarters in Baraboo, where they would live indefinitely.

George Archibald, director of the foundation, said it was hoped Vladimir and Yita would themselves produce eggs which could be shipped to Moscow for placement in nests of non-endangered common cranes next year.

Scientists hope the common cranes will raise Siberian cranes as their own and teach them to migrate to marshes in Iran, where the environment can make room for additional bird life.

Siberian cranes do not nest until June because of the cold weather, while common cranes nest two or three months earlier, Archibald explained. It is hoped that the midwestern climate will help get the Siberian crane eggs hatched earlier next year.

Archibald, predicting the little cranes will be available for public viewing in about a month, said he thinks the time, trouble and $3,000 spent by the foundation is worth it.

"Cranes have been on the earth for at least 60 million years," he said. "If this experiment works and we establish a breeding flock in western Asia, we'll have kept a particularly beautiful species from becoming extinct."

Singing in same choir for 75 years

SHELBURNE, Vt. (AP) — No foolishness was allowed during choir practice at Trinity Episcopal Church here in 1902. When the choirmaster told 9-year-old Jack Ockert to sing, he sang.

Ockert still is singing, 75 years later, in the same choir.

"I probably won't quit," he says.

Ockert fondly recalls when he first joined the Shelburne choir, just after the turn of the century. His first choirmaster, Cecil Egg, took the job quite seriously.

"There was no fooling around," says Ockert. "He'd say: 'Sing, you fools! Sing!'"

Choir practice then was on Monday night with a service Friday night followed by another practice session. Then there were the usual Sunday services, morning and evening.

"We didn't miss practices, either winter or summer," he says.

During the three-quarters of a century Ockert has lent his voice in song, he has missed few choir sessions. Most of those absences came during World War I, when he served in the Army.

"I was stationed nearby, so sometimes I'd be home on the weekends. I'd take my place in the choir just like I was never away," he says.

Church is an important part of life for Ockert, who served as parish secretary for 25 years and was choirmaster himself for a good many years.

"It's never been any chore for me to get up and go to church," he says. "We were brought up to go to church."

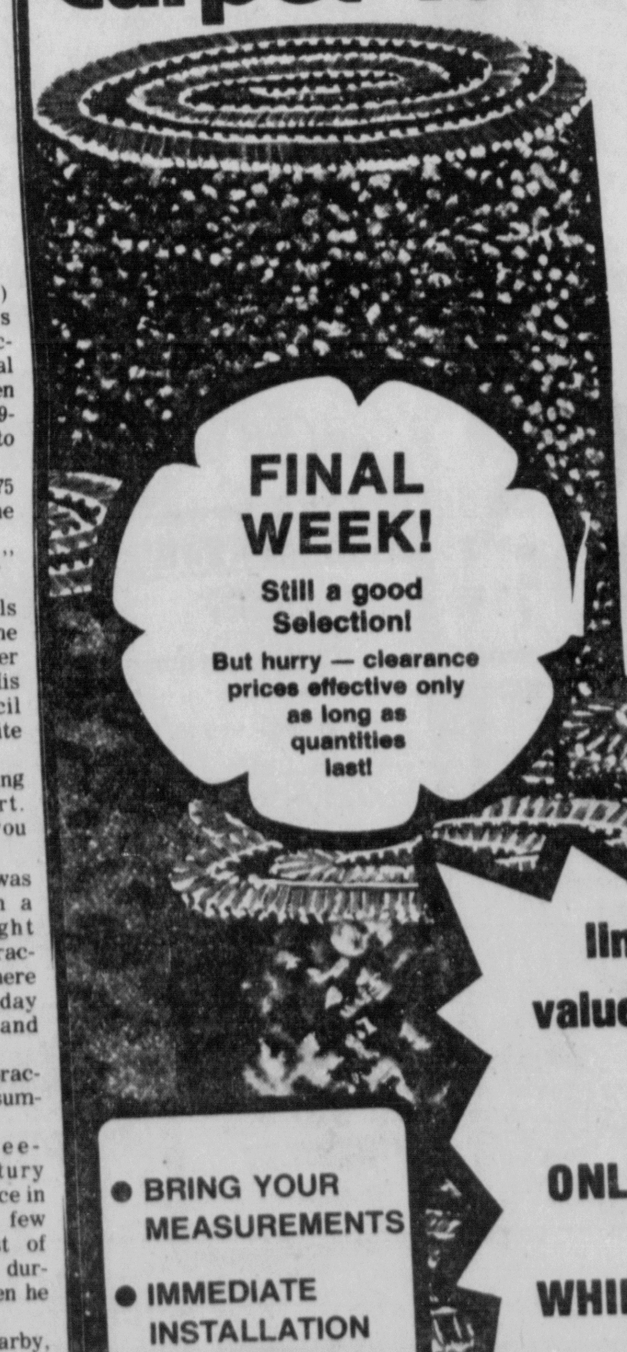

The church gave Ockert a silver cross 25 years ago to mark his 50th year in the choir. Recently, there was another ceremony to commemorate the 75th anniversary.

"He's a regular old fire horse," said the Rev. Charles Lawrence, rector of Trinity Episcopal, of Ockert's devotion to the choir.

Ockert never has had a music lesson. But that doesn't bother him, just as long as he can don his robe and white surplice each Sunday and sing.

"I think the music — church music — plays a big part in the service," Ockert explains. "The service — oh, I wouldn't say it's dull — but it wouldn't be as satisfying as it is with good music."

Government would make it tougher for students to get aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government is proposing changes in the definition of a financially "independent" student to make it tougher to get this classification and qualify for additional college aid.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare says the proposed revisions would help plug loopholes by which increasing numbers of students are being declared independent. The proposals will be published in the Federal Register.

Students are classified either financially independent or dependent on parents to participate in federal aid programs for postsecondary school. If classified dependent, a student applying for assistance must show that the family income isn't sufficient to meet his needs.

Peter K. U. Voigt, director of the student grants division of HEW's Office of Education, says more "independent" students means more people to share a limited amount of grant money. This could deny aid to those who need it the most, he added.

"The basis for student financial programs is the assumption that parents are responsible for the education of their children," Voigt said.

"In the past seven years in a number of areas of the country, particularly the coasts, there has been an increasing trend in the number of children being declared independent," Voigt said.

"There is a general unease among those in financial aid that parents and students are planning ahead not to declare the student as a dependent so that he is eligible for more aid," he said.

The rewards for being declared independent and in need can be substantial. Under the federal basic grants program, funded for $1.5 billion during the 1976-77 school year, a student can get up to $1,400 a year depending upon family contributions to his or her education.

During the last school year, 1.9 million students received basic aid grants, which cannot exceed half of the students total education costs.

Under the proposed revisions, which would go into effect for the 1978-79 year, an independent student could not be claimed as a federal income tax deduction by parents for two years prior to applying for aid. This is one year longer than the current exemption rule.

Current regulations limit residency of an independent student with parents to two consecutive weeks yearly. Under the proposal, the student could not have lived with parents for more than a total of six weeks during any year in which aid is requested for the prior year.

Rules governing financial assistance from parents would remain unchanged. To be independent, a student may not receive more than $600 in the year during which aid is requested or in the prior year.

"These proposed changes don't affect truly low income families who are eligible for aid anyway, and aid officers can use discretion to help in special cases," Voigt said.

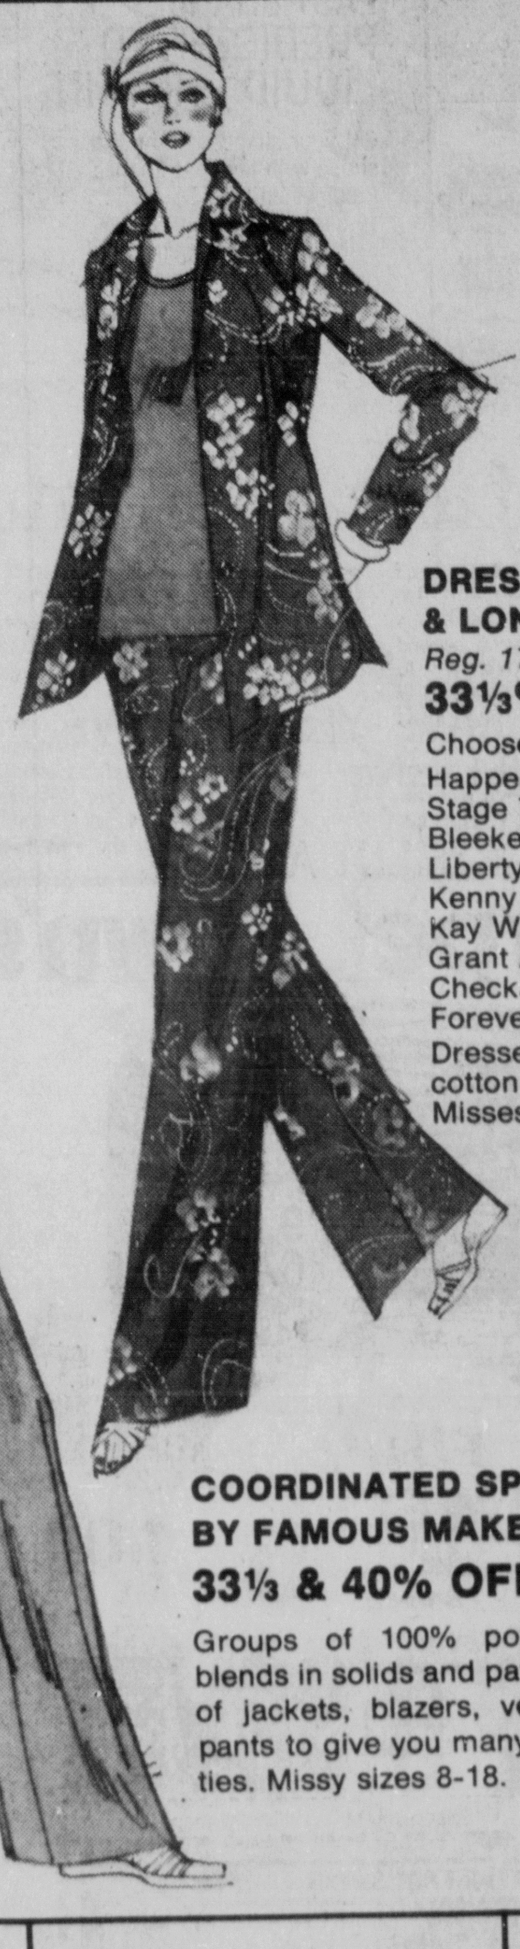

"The net effect would make it slightly more difficult for middle class students to be classified independent."

HEW will accept public comment on the proposal for 45 days and a public hearing will be held on Aug. 8 in Washington before final regulations are drawn up.

Union peace sought

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Bringing peace and democracy to his troubled union remains the primary goal of United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller, the apparent victor in a race for the next five-year term as the union's leader.

In an interview with The Associated Press, Miller said he hopes to provide his eventual successor with the opportunity to direct the union without the problems he has faced.

"I don't want to leave the division we have now. I want to establish majority rule in this union from top to bottom. I think we've made good progress there" already, Miller said, but added there is still much more to be done.

In the face of a challenge by opponent Lee Roy Patterson, Miller's election has not yet been certified by the union's tellers. But Miller is confident of his ultimate victory, and has already made plans for the union's direction in the next five years.

Miller was aware when first elected in 1972, he said, that bringing democracy to the union would be a difficult task.

"We've run this union — the past leadership did — in a total dictatorial manner. And it may have worked at that particular time. But it wouldn't work today," Miller said.

"We'll probably have to go through the electoral process a couple of times before we really establish democracy. It won't be easy — it hasn't been easy. We're going back through the procedure now and we elected, I think, a better standard of leadership than we did the first time (in 1972)."

He continued, "We'll have to have contractual changes and constitutional changes to establish majority rule at the local, district, and international, and I think — overall — it's progressing well."

"It has become evident that the major vehicle for solving (our) labor problems is a limited right to strike which establishes majority rule at the local level. And I've said this must have a provision.... that if somebody tries to violate majority rule, they'll be dealt with severely."

Miller has numerous other goals he hopes to achieve for the union's membership through contract negotiations. Miller negotiated the 1974 contract, and — if his election is certified — will be responsible for negotiating a contract this year and again in 1980.

In addition to the right to strike, Miller hopes to negotiate improved pension benefits, better safety conditions, and training programs. Many of his goals will take at least two contract negotiations to accomplish, he believes.

"We've got some serious problems in the pension program," Miller said. "It'll probably take this contract and another one to reach the ultimate goal there.

"I've got to raise the retirement benefits of our membership. He made a start on that in '74.... Now I've got to get those covered under the 1950 trust up to the same (benefit) level." Miller also said he wants to raise widows' pensions to the same level as the others.

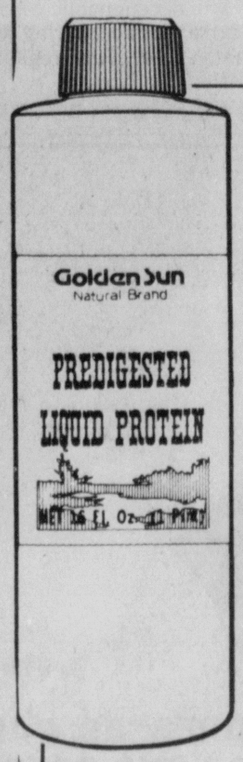

On safety, Miller said, "We're not going to reach the ultimate goal of safety until we get more cooperation from federal regulatory agencies and the state regulatory agencies. We may be close to the point where we have to provide safety for our own membership.... we don't feel like we should be charged with the responsibility of doing it, but in the absence of someone else doing it, we damn sure will do it."

Miller said he would like to establish a paramedic program in the mines. He said the program is already under way in some states.

Miller also hopes to negotiate training programs for his membership.

Employe pensions: too big a burden for big business

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's 100 largest industrial corporations owe their employes at least $38 billion more in pensions than the companies have put aside to pay retirement checks.

This massive potential debt is more than the companies' combined profits of $32 billion in 1976, one indication that it could pose a major problem for some companies and for their employes.

The bill collector won't come around next week or even next year to collect this debt. Piece by piece, like a home mortgage, the companies have to pay off the debt.

And if the companies fold or can't pay their pension debts, the government will step in.

Paying off these long-term debt obligations plus funding the pension checks due now is quite a burden already for some companies, since it is a business expense that must be paid out of income and thus lowers profits.

For example, Uniroyal's pension costs of $79.4 million were almost four times its $20.1-million profit. McDonnell-Douglas, the aircraft company, made a $108.8 million profit in 1976, but that is overshadowed by the $115.6 million it paid for employe pension costs.

Others among the top 100 whose profits were lower than pension costs include Lockheed, Republic Steel, LTV and Litton.

Together, the top 100 firms paid $9 billion for pensions last year — both in current costs and paying off the $38 billion liability.

That's up $1.4 billion from 1975 costs, a 20 per cent rise in one year.

These totals come from an Associated Press study of annual reports and other official reports to the Securities and Exchange Commission by the largest 100 industrial corporations, as ranked by sales.

Despite the huge dollar figures, individual workers' pensions generally are not threatened. A semi-government agency, the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp., now insures pensions for millions of workers, assuring them of retirement benefits up to a certain dollar limit, even if the company is unable to pay the benefits.

The $38 billion figure is the total of the so-called "unfunded liabilities" of the pension plans of the top 100 companies. These liabilities are estimates of how much the firm must pay in pensions for all its workers, minus what it already put in the bank and what it plans to put in the bank in the future to pay retirement benefits.

These are estimates based on extremely complicated assumptions, such as future salary increases, inflation in future years and how the stock market will perform.

In terms of total unfunded liabilities, General Motors is No. 1 with an estimated liability of $7.3 billion dollars. Next is Ford with a $3.3 billion burden and Chrysler with $2.04 billion.

In order, the rest of the top 10 in pension burden are U.S. Steel, $1.2 billion; Bethlehem Steel, $1.13 billion; Dupont, $959 million; International Harvester, $920 million; Republic Steel, $837 million; Union Carbide, $830 million, and Westinghouse, $817 million.

Each firm uses different assumptions in determining its "unfunded liabilities," based on each company's particular view of economic conditions and its own pension experience. Although this means company pension liabilities are not strictly comparable to one another, all the figures in this report are those provided by the companies, based on whatever assumptions each chose

Assumptions on which these figures are based may not form an accurate picture of future economic conditions, so some of these billions may never actually be paid out to retired employes in pensions

But the federal Employes Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA) requires companies to pay off each year a portion of this estimated liability, enough to eliminate it over 30 or 40 years.

Companies also must pay each year for the pension checks going out. Company-bycompany, the pattern of annual pension costs is similar to that of total unfunded liabilites.

General Motors spent the most last year on pensions and paying of the unfunded liabilities — $1.07 billion. Next came IBM, with $590 million; Ford, $505 million; Western Electric, $400 million; Exxon, $291 million; Chrysler, $277 million; Bethlehem Steel, $261 million; General Electric, $240 million; U.S. Steel, $221 million; and Dupont, $212.8 million.

Many factors affect a company's pension costs.

—The more workers a company has, the higher the pension costs.

—Generally, the more employes represented by a strong union, the higher the pension benefits negotiated in collective bargaining.

—The younger the work force, the smaller the current pension liabilities: the workers simply haven't worked long enough to build up their pension rights.

—The more conservative the accounting policies, generally the smaller the pension liability. For example, Western Electric has the fourth highest annual pension cost. But its accounting policies since the 1940s have required full funding of pensions, its own experts say. Western Electric has no unfunded liabilities.

—The more profitable a company is, the more money it has to pay in fringe benefits, including pensions, and the more likely it is to fund its pension costs fully.

"Unfunded liabilities" are estimates, the basic elements of which are:

—Pension benefits due already retired workers.

—Pensions that each individual worker has earned through his accumulated years of service with the company.

—Pensions that each worker will earn over the rest of his years working for the company, adjusted for salary increases.

Offsetting to some degree these liabilities can be these assets:

—The value of money and investments in the pension fund.

—An estimate of how much the company will put into the pension fund over the working lives of the employes.

—A projection of how much other income the fund will earn over the working lives of the employes, including employe contributions and investment income.

Pension costs for top firms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is a list of the annual pension costs and the unfunded pension liabilities of the top 100 industrial corporations in the United States, as reported by the companies.

The companies are ranked in order by total sales for 1976.

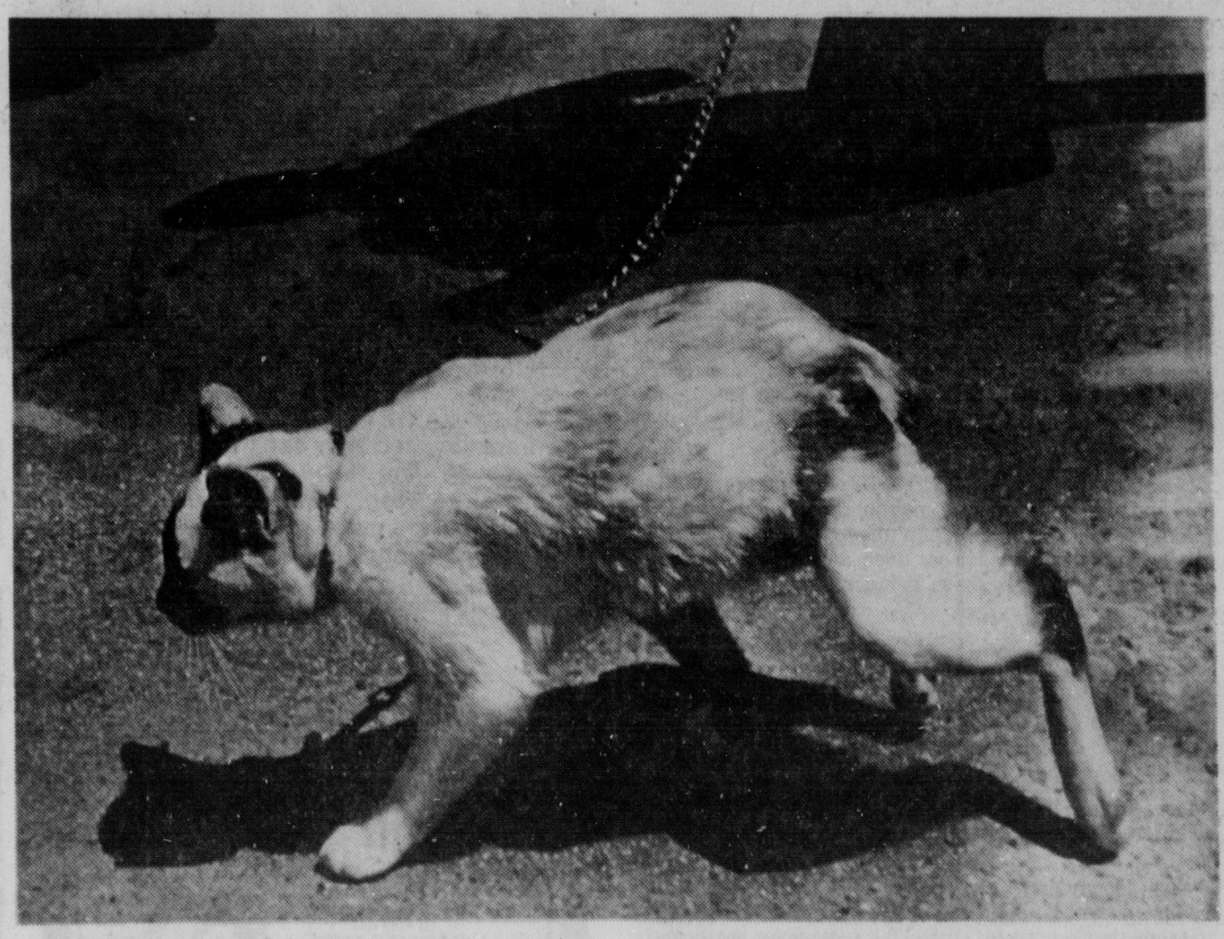

The first figure is cost of employe pensions for the latest year, usually 1976, in millions of dollars. The second figure is the unfunded liability for pensions, also in millions of dollars.

The vested liability is that for those pensions that are guaranteed to the workers. The prior service liabilities are those that have been earned for the workers, including those which have been guaranteed.

"Notsg" means the company reported the liability is not significant to the company's finances.

IT'S CALLED A CABBIT — Val Chapman has a pet he says is cross between a cat and a rabbit. He calls it a cabbit. Chapman says he and his wife found the animal last January in New Mexico where they run a trading post. While it eats vegetables and meows like a cat, according to Chapman, officials at the Los Angeles Zoo claim cross breeding of the two animals is impossible.

Woodcock to China by late next week

DETROIT (AP) — Former United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock, now chief U.S. envoy to the Peoples' Republic of China, will leave for the liaison office in Peking on July 21.

In a speech before taking his oath of office Monday, Woodcock said he will follow orders in working for normalization of relations between the United States and mainland China. "I'll do what I'm told. The President has stated publicly, and no different to me privately, that his aim is full normalization of relations."

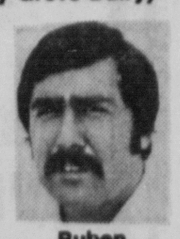

A compromise could be reached despite the insistence of both Taiwan and mainland China that the United States not deal with both, he said. But he would not predict how long that might take.

President Carter appointed Woodcock — the first major labor leader that endorsed Carter's candidacy — on May 12, a week before the end of his seven-year tenure as UAW president.

Captain and Tennille

Singers nix variety shows

By PETER J. BOYER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When television discovered that Sonny and Cher drew good ratings in prime time, tube executives were ecstatic. Here, they thought, is a mother lode of potential family hour filler; thus was born the bubble gum song-and-jokes variety show format.

Executives weren't sure whether it was Cher's navel or the couple's musical talents that brought in the viewers, but that didn't really matter — Tony Orlando and Dawn, Captain and Tennille and Donny and Marie Osmond were quickly drafted to come up with shows of their own.

The plan, like so many television ideas, sounded better than it worked. It turned out that folks really were tuning in to see Cher's navel, and after they had it memorized, well, the talents of the famed divorced couple didn't quite sustain them.

But perhaps the worst consequence of the soft-pop variety show was experienced by the musicians-turned TV performers themselves. Tony Orlando couldn't buy a hit record; Sonny and Cher might have bought Sonny and Cher records, but nobody else did; Donny and Marie didn't suffer as much in sales and neither did the Captain and Tennille, but ask that latter couple what they think of TV variety shows and then cover your ears.

"It was hell," says Toni Tennille, the pretty, smiling half of the teenybopper's notion of the ideal couple. "Because of television we didn't have time to write. We'll never do another series in our lives, at least till I'm 55 and do a Dinah Shore talk show. It was really hell. It was not fun."

"It can be fun," says Daryl Dragon, the inevitable captain's hat pulled down over his eyebrows. "But I'll tell you what's wrong — variety shows are all based on formulas. They say, 'Well, let's do it like Donny and Marie, that show's successful.' They've never come up with a variety show that's different."

The Dragons think that television may have been worse for them — in terms of their music careers — than for the others.

"See, Donny and Marie, Sonny and Cher were just kind of 'hit and miss' singles artists," says Toni, "every now and then they'd get a hit single, but they never really were big album artists. We have been. People have come to expect quality stuff from us, and we didn't have time to write."

They think the problem is not that pop singers can't transfer successfully to TV but that "the networks are brainwashed into a certain format," Daryl says.

"Yeah," Toni joins in, getting excited, "you have to have certain guests on because they draw. They were going to take our last two shows and make them SPECIALS," pronouncing the last word with disdain.

"And that's real cute. They wanted one to be an Easter special ("What's wrong with the Easter Bunny?" Daryl jokes). And as an opening number, they suggested a disco version of "Here Comes Peter Cottontail!"

NO MORE VARIETY — The Captain and Tennille have decided they can't be serious about their writing and have a weekly television variety show, too. Toni Tennille says the schedule was too much so they've called off the show and gone back to being recording artists.

Artist group slates exhibit

The Starving Artists will have an exhibit and sale of more than 5,000 oil paintings at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds from 1 to 5 p.m. Saturday. Admission is free.

The collection includes a wide variety of sea and landscapes, still lifes, florals, classic nudes and representational portraits.

A highlight of the show will be a children's art corner where visiting youngsters can create their own works of art.

JIM STAFFORD, singer, writer and guitarist, will perform at the Orange County Fair in Costa Mesa next Wednesday. The fair runs from Friday to July 24. Two of Stafford's recent hits are "Swamp Witch" and "Spiders and Snakes."

Brendel to play five concertos

Pianist Alfred Brendel will play all five of Beethoven's concertos with the Los Angeles Philharmonic in the Hollywood Bowl July 26, 28 and 30.

With the orchestra under the direction of Lawrence Foster for the three concerts devoted entirely to the music of Beethoven, Brendel will perform Concertos Nos. 2 in B Flat and 3 in C Minor on July 26; Nos. 1 in C and 4 in G on July 28; and No. 5 in E Flat ("Emperor") on July 30 (the Bowl's now-traditional Beethoven Spectacular).

Brendel's international fame rests upon a combination of virtuosity and intellectuality rare in a musician of any period. The New York Times said "Few pianists define music with such specific clarity as Alfred Brendel, and the crystalline purity of his playing is paramount. Brendel's approach yields unequivocally superb results." Chicago Today said "Alfred Brendel is one, alone and incomparable in the world."

'My Sister, My Sister'

Actors Theater hits

By MAE TATE

"My Sister, My Sister" at the Los Angeles Actors Theater is an intense and powerful psychological drama. It elicits brilliance from its cast and demands close scrutiny from the audience.

Each word, each statement is linked to a future or past word or statement, making concentration and comprehension essential and compelling.

The cast is categorically outstanding, individually and collectively, as members move through the scenes of Ray Aranha's play.

Dianne Oyama Dixon, in the lead role of Sue Belle, has the most demanding characterization, skipping from the impish child to a naive but inquisitive girl to the hard and soft moods of a woman fighting with life and herself to the split personality of her older sister Evelina. Miss Dixon dives into Sue Belle with the full force of a hammer hitting a blacksmith's anvil.

The setting is the rural South of the 1950s, before black awareness, before black pride as an unified feeling. The days when you were either Baptist and good; or nothing and wicked. It is about blackness — race and attitude; yet it is laced with the memorabilia of the 1950s — the ponytail, black and white oxfords, shoestring ties, "Blue Moon" in rock and roll.

Miss Dixon goes from kitten to cat, cat to kitten. Yesterday and today are transposed and intermingled within her personality. She is battling the good and evil that exists in us all, but that conflict is magnified because of its coupling with self-hatred, poverty, fanatical religious upbringing, guilt and the taunting memory and presence of her sister.

Tanya Boyd is Evelina, Sue Belle's sister and tormentor. She is full of anger and sass, jealousy about being on the short end of her father's love, sullen and resentful. She reminds one of the days when hot pants was a condition, not a fashion. Her hardness evolves into a cheap harshness, a garishness in dress and mannerisms.

Betty Bridges as Mama presents the fire and strength, hope and faith of dramatic excellence. Words are screamed from her mouth, swirled with her hands, stomped with her feet, swayed with her body. The message is clear that religion is first in her life, even above her children and husband.

Ian Foxx, doubling in the roles of Daddy and Sue Belle's boyfriend Eddie, is the necessary icing on the cake. He sets the scene for the rivalry between the two sisters by giving more love and attention to the younger Sue Belle. His is the frustration of a real-live man wanting a wife and not a saint; the confusion of grappling with the constant time and space changes of Sue Belle. He pours forth lines that grab you at a basic level with simplicity and wisdom.

"My Sister, My Sister" plays through July 30.

Academy launches black film collection

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Material on the career of Academy Award winner Hattie McDaniel is the first acquisition in a collection of material on blacks in films established by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

The initial acquisition in the Black American Film History Collection will become part of the academy's Margaret Herrick Library.

Miss McDaniel, who appeared in 74 films between 1932 and 1949, won the Academy Award as best supporting actress for her role as Mammy in "Gone With the Wind" in 1939.

STRIKING SCENE! — Actor Sylvester Stallone, foreground, and David Huffman share a laugh in a scene from "F.I.S.T.," a film about a union organizer who becomes a powerful labor leader.

JOHNNY WONDER

If you ever lived near a pond, then you are sure to have heard the croaking of frogs on warm, damp evenings during spring and summer.

The croaking or singing is produced by the male frog. The chief reason he is singing is to attract the female frog.

Male frogs are equipped with special vocal sacs on their throats. When calling, the male frog inhales, closes his mouth and forces the air back and forth several times between the lungs and this special vocal sac.

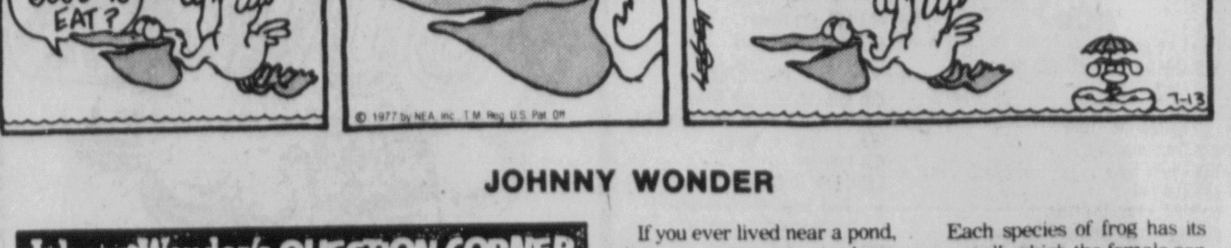

Each time, it passes through the voice box in the frog's throat and produces a loud croaking sound.

Each species of frog has its own call, which the female can distinguish from the songs of other kinds of frogs in the pond.

The ears of frogs show as big circles of skin just behind their bulging eyes. The circles of skin are flat eardrums, called tympanic membranes, and they transmit sound vibrations to the inner ear.

Good tasting, priced right

Marinated rotisserie rump roast has tantalizing aroma

In both city and suburbia the smell of burning charcoal is joining the scent of newly mown lawns. And what could better supplement the scene than the tantalizing aroma of a beef roast cooking on the rotisserie!

A good meat choice for the rotisserie is a boneless beef rump roast. Since this is a compact roast that's been rolled and securely tied, it will balance well on the rod, and is an ideal shape for rotisserie roasting. Another attractive feature of a rump roast is that it's one of the most economically priced of all boneless beef roasts.

Since the rump is a less tender roast, marinating it overnight in the refrigerator before cooking is suggested. A delightful marinade, along with complete directions for rotisserie roasting, is provided in the recipe for Marinated Rotisserie Rump Roast. The marinade will help tenderize and adds a special zippy flavor to the beef. The extra sauce can be thickened for a delicious gravy to serve with the sliced meat.

To cook the roast, just center the meat carefully on the rotisserie rod so it rotates evenly. Then cook at a moderate temperature over ash-covered coals to rare or medium. Once balanced on the rod, the roast will need little attention so you'll be free to mingle with guests or prepare other foods. Basting with the marinade gives even more flavor to an already tasty roast.

MARINATED ROTISSERIE RUMP ROAST

4 to 6-pound boneless beef rump roast, rolled and tied
1 cup tomato juice
1/3 cup lemon juice
¼ cup oil
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon minced onion
½ teaspoon ground cumin
½ teaspoon ground marjoram
Flour for gravy, if desired

Combine tomato juice, lemon juice, oil, sugar, minced onion, salt, cumin and marjoram in small saucepan. Cook 5 minutes, stirring occasionally; cool. Place roast in plastic bag and add marinade. Press out air and seal bag securely. Place in pan and marinate in refrigerator overnight, turning several times. Remove meat from marinade; reserve marinade. Insert rotisserie rod through center of roast and test for balance by rotating rod in the palms of hands. Tighten spit forks so roast turns only with rod. Insert roast meat thermometer (at an angle so it will clear the cooking unit and drip pan) so the tip is centered in the roast and does not rest in fat or on the rod. Place on rotisserie and roast at low to moderate temperature to desired degree of doneness: 140 degrees F. for rare; 160 degrees F. for medium. Allow 30 to 40 minutes per pound. Brush roast with reserved marinade during cooking. Thicken remaining marinade with flour for gravy if desired.

Note: When you're planning an outdoor roast, think outdoors for the rest of the menu too. Corn on the cob can be wrapped in foil and cooked over the coals. Cole slaw and potato salad, straight from the refrigerator, are always welcome side dishes during the summer months. Provide bread, rye or white, for those who would like to make roast beef sandwiches. Finish the dinner with ice cream topped with fresh fruit.

MARINATED ROTISSERIE RUMP ROAST

Vegetable casserole with eggs

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

An all vegetable casserole takes on new meaning when it is tossed together with a combination of fresh and frozen ingredients. Start with frozen South style hash browns, add hard-cooked eggs, fresh mushrooms, frozen peas, some grated Swiss cheese and condensed cream of chicken soup with seasonings for an easy-to-make dish with a good blending of flavors. Serve with a fresh green salad and fresh melon wedges.

EGGS PARMENTIER

2 cups sliced fresh mushrooms
½ cup frozen chopped onions
¼ cup batter
1 package (10 ounces) frozen peas
1½ teaspoons salt
4 cups frozen Southern style hash browns
6 hard-cooked eggs, halved lengthwise
1 can (10¾ ounces) condensed cream of chicken soup
½ cup milk
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
¼ cup chopped pimiento
½ cup grated process Swiss cheese

Melt butter. Add mushrooms and onions and cook until onions are soft. Add peas, and saute 2 to 3 minutes longer. Stir in one-half teaspoon salt. Mix potatoes with remaining teaspoon salt and arrange in even layer in greased one and onehalf quart baking dish. Spoon vegetables over potatoes and arrange halved eggs on top. Mix soup, milk, lemon juice and Worcestershire sauce together. Stir in pimiento. Spoon over all and sprinkle with cheese. Bake in a 350-degree oven for about 40 minutes, until hot and bubbly, and potatoes are tender. Makes 6 servings.

Exotic cuisine regular feature

Bulgarian mousaka, Ali Baba and 40 thieves chicken set

The diversity of tastes in the United States is probably the most extensive in the world. Where else could you visit any number of families in one town and find such divergent breakfasts as: cereal with diet-cola, Eggs Benedict, mayonnaise sandwiches and orange juice or possibly filleted mackeral with hominy and cheese.

Consider, however, the task of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus chefs who have to please not only the Americans, but also the Bulgarians, Romanians, Germans, French, English, Italian, Mexican, Colombian, Czechoslovakian, and Australian performers every day, three meals a day. Not an easy assignment.

The 107th Edition of the Greatest Show on Earth opens at The Forum on July 19 for a 29-show engagement running through August 3.

Tickets to the Circus are available at The Forum Box Office and Ticketron and Mutual Agencies with all seats reserved at $4.50, $5.50, $6.50 and $7.50. Children 12-years old and under receive a $2 discount for all weekday performances and the two 10:30 a.m. shows on Saturdays. The circus will present matinee and evening performances Tuesday through Friday, three shows on Saturday, and two on Sunday.

Located about mid-way on the 37 car train, the Pie Car serves the performers and working people all day long with the biggest meal prepared after the last show of the day, sometimes as late as 12:00 midnight. Provisions are bought in each city and for the seasoned chef, the best buys in town are no secret — he's either been there before or the Circus grapevine has provided the particulars. Fresh beets for borscht, banana peppers for enchiladas, fat mushrooms, bristling greens, German sauerkraut and pounds of the Circus staple — coffee.

Even though Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus now plays in modern indoor arenas and seldom stays in a town for less than three days the chores and demands remain the same as 30 years ago: work bus at 4 a.m. for the riggers who will turn the arena into a Circus; work bus at 6 a.m. — polar bears, lions, horses, ponies, elephants, llamas and camels have to be washed and fed; performer bus at 8 a.m. for clowns who take over an hour to put on make-up and others who want to practice. The buses run all morning and cooks are up at 3 a.m. making breakfast. The menu offers everything from Polish sausage to hashbrowns and eggs. Between shows Pie Car Jr., an elaborate lunch counter backstage, sets up shop to provide the proteins and fruit juices the performers need. It also offers the only milkshake-size cup of coffee in the world!

Finally, after the last show, while starry-eyed children are being tucked away to dream of the glories of laughing elephants and dancing bears, the performers ravenously await the Big Payoff — dinner at the Pie Car. One night, Beef Wellington, another, Sauerbraten, another, Bulgarian Mousake. The international culinary delights of The Greatest Show on Earth are unsurpassed in quality. After all, having performed the fantastic feats of daring and grace that have made Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus famous for so many years, the performers (and their stomachs) maintain the highest place of prestige in this beloved American tradition.

BULGARIAN MOUSAKA

1½ cups of oil
1 medium onion, chopped
1 medium green pepper, chopped
1 peeled tomato, chopped
1 lb., hamburger meat
2 teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons pepper
1 Tablespoon parsley
4 to 6 potatoes, chopped in 1-inch pieces
1 cup plain yogurt
2 eggs

Heat oil in a deep skillet. Add onion, pepper and tomato. Cook for 5 minutes, add meat, salt, pepper and parsley. Cook for another 5 minutes. Add potatoes, cook another 5 minutes. Place the entire mixture in baking dish in the oven and cook for 20 minutes at 400 degrees. In a separate bowl, combine yogurt and eggs and mix until thick. When mousaka is cooked (when potatoes are done), remove from the oven, pour yogurt and egg mixture over it. Put back into the oven at 350 degrees and cook until it is brown on top.

ALI BABA AND 40 THIEVES CHICKEN

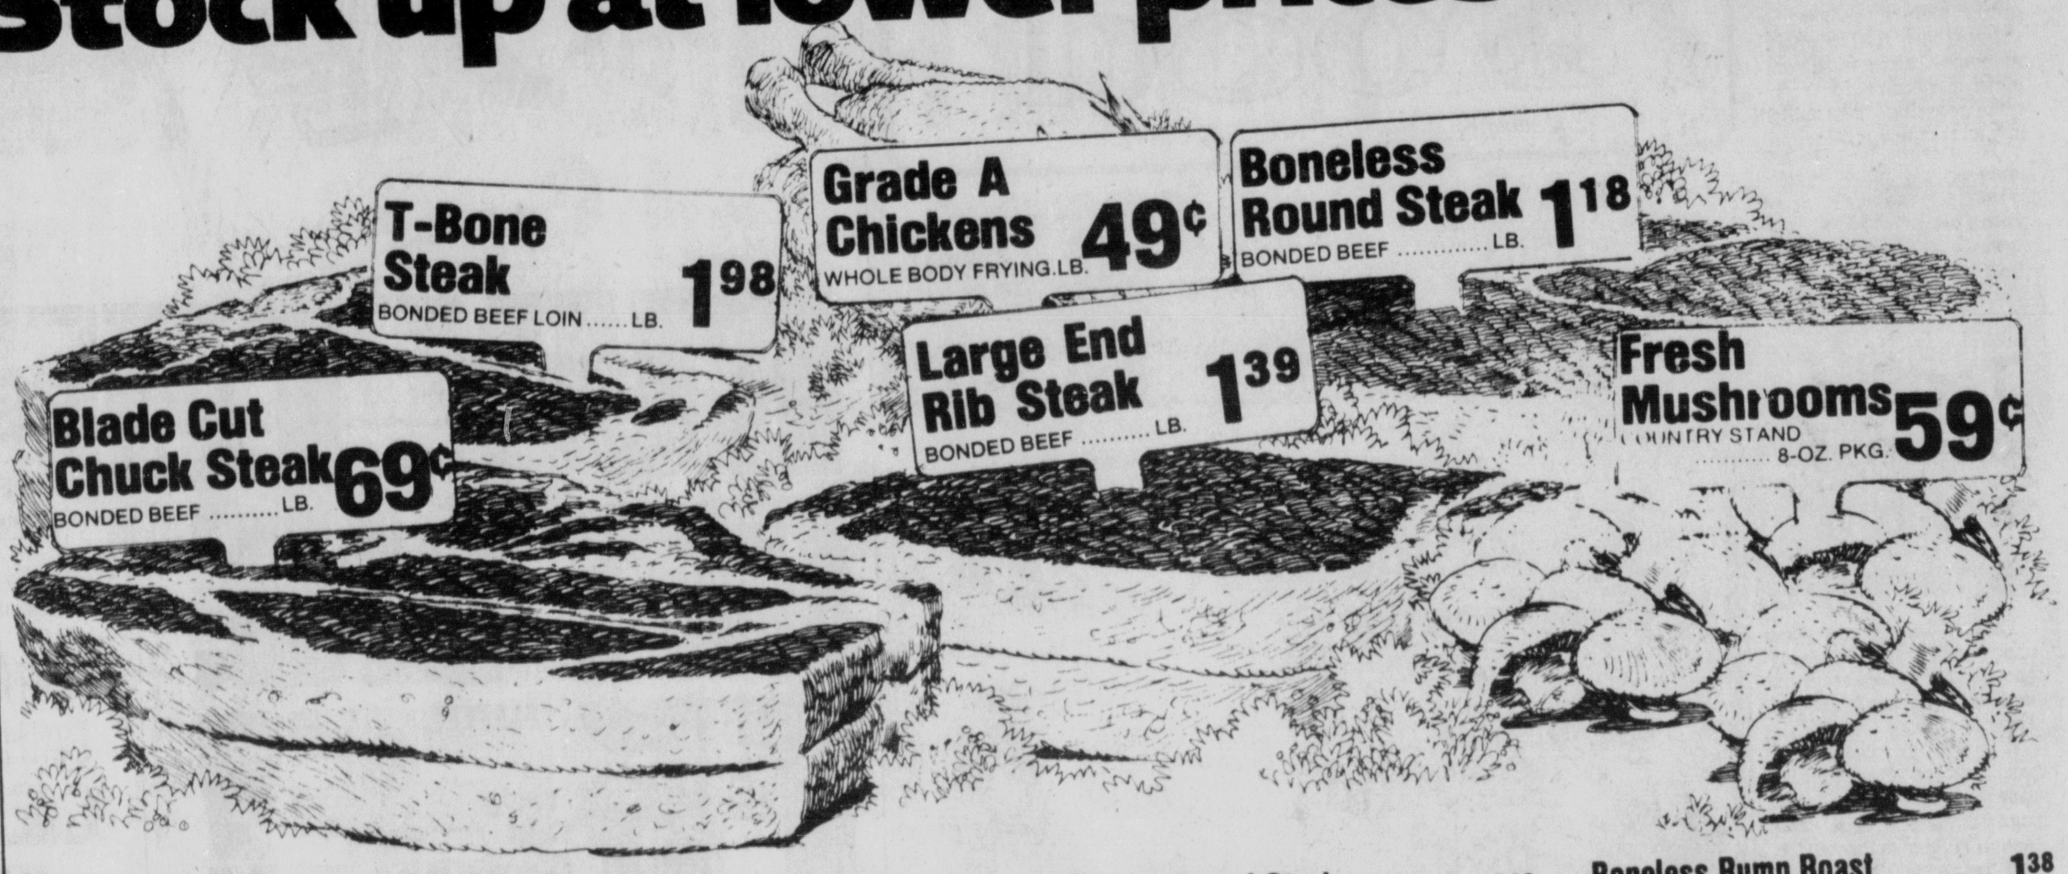

1½ pounds chicken
2 tablespoons flour (seasoned)
1 stick butter
15 fresh mushroom buttons
Table wine
40 whole peeled cloves of garlic

In a bag, lightly flour chicken parts. Remove from the bag and brown in butter in a skillet for about five minutes on each side. Line casserole with foil, allowing enough to cover completely. Place chicken, mushrooms and all 40 cloves of garlic in the casserole, add some wine and seal lid tightly (the secret!). Cook 2 hours at 300 degrees. When it's done, the cloves will be soft and buttery to be eaten with the mushrooms.

Walnut Sauce

Why not double the specialness of fresh asparagus with this walnut-crunchy sauce? First, toast the California walnut kernels to enhance that good texture and sweet, mellow flavor. Blend together 1 can (10¾ ounce) undiluted cream of asparagus soup with ½ cup milk. Heat with 1 tablespoon each instant minced onion and chopped pimiento, 1 or 2 teaspoons lemon juice, and 1/16 teaspoon ground marjoram. Salt and pepper to taste. Before serving, stir in 1/3 cup chopped toasted walnuts. Makes about 2 cups to pour over fresh cooked asparagus or try it over green beans or cauliflower.

Variation of an old classic

Bouillabaisse, and Turkish lamb stew borrows from French

The Provence region of France is considered by many unchallengeable for a dazzling cuisine that is rich, robust and garlicky, and brimming with fresh fish from the seas outside the port of Marseilles, the picturesque waterfront city.

As all dishes, bouillabaisse, a provencal fish stew, is synonymous with this city of fishermen. A classic bouillabaisse is a hearty meal in a bowl, a combination of many seafoods such as mussels, crab, cod, shrimp, and others, and a profusion of flavors and aromas.

Our version of this venerable fish stew is special because it's quick, uncomplicated, and done in a chafing dish over canned heat. A 2⅝ ounce can will burn for 45 minutes to keep the bouillabaisse warmed for second portions.

To achieve this seafood masterpiece in a chafing dish combine the tomatoes, onions, and tomato paste and seasonings and simmer. Then add the mussels, and simmer until they open. For an impressive main course you can add the remaining fish, wine and butter at the table and simmer them for about 10 minutes while eating an appetizer.

Serve this classic stew as the French do, in a deep, wide soup dish. The bowl is filled with the seafood and the liquid is poured over. Accompany with a crusty bread and add a green salad to round out your menu.

The Turkish, with an infinitely varied and lavish cuisine, inspired by both Asia and continental Europe, also have a tantalizing soup that's so hearty it can be a meal. It's called Dugun Corbasi, a Turkish lamb stew.

Dugun Corbasi is also known as a Turkish wedding soup because its elaborate preparation usually reserves it for a special occasion like a matrimonial feast.

Our simplified version of this stew is as deliciously tart and meaty as any other and makes an occasion a special event. It calls for lamb cubes simmered in chicken broth and then served at the table in a chafing dish over canned heat. At serving time egg yolks beaten with lemon juice and broth are stirred into the stew. Then, at the moment of serving, a melted butter, flavored and deeply colored with fragrant paprika and cinnamon, is drizzled into this dramatically different stew.

BOUILLABAISSE

¼ cup olive oil
4 cups chopped tomatoes (about 5 medium tomatoes)
1 cup chopped onion
3 cloves garlic, minced
1 bay leaf
2 tablespoons tomato paste
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon dried leaf basil
½ teaspoon dried leaf thyme
¼ teaspoon fennel seed
¼ teaspoon pepper
⅛ teaspoon saffron
2 cups water
1½ dozen scrubbed mussels or small clams
1 pound cod fish fillets, cut into 2-inch strips
½ pound king crab pieces in shell
¾ pound shrimp, cleaned and deveined
½ cup dry white wine
¼ cup butter

Heat oil in a large chafing dish over canned heat. Add tomatoes, onion, garlic, bay leaf, tomato paste, salt, basil, thyme, fennel, pepper and saffron; simmer 10 minutes. Add 2 cups water and mussels; simmer an additional 15 minutes or until mussels open. Add cod fillets, crab, shrimp, wine and butter and simmer until fish flakes, about 10 minutes.

Yields 6 to 8 servings.

DUGUN CORBASI (Turkish Lamb Stew)

1 pound lamb shoulder, cut into 1-inch cubes
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons olive oil
6 cups chicken broth
1 marrow bone, cracked
1 onion, halved
1 carrot
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
4 egg yolks
3 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ cup butter or margarine, melted
1 tablespoon paprika
½ teaspoon cinnamon

Coat lamb cubes with flour. Heat oil in large saucepan; add lamb and brown on all sides. Add chicken broth, marrow bone, onion, carrot, salt and pepper. Bring to a boil, cover, reduce heat and simmer 2 hours, until lamb is tender. Remove bone, onion and carrot. Transfer stew to large chafing dish and place over canned heat. Just before serving, beat egg yolks with lemon juice. Stir in a little broth from the stew and slowly return to chafing dish, stirring constantly. Do not boil. Drizzle with melted butter and sprinkle with paprika and cinnamon.

Yields 6 servings.

Tortilla cookies are fun snacking

Lookin' for an afternoon snack that's fun and easy enough for youngsters to make? Then look at this Tortilla Cookie.

It's a crazy cookie that has a buttered flour tortilla base topped with a brown sugar-cinnamon "goo" and then sprinkled with raisins and peanuts. Baked 10 minutes the cookies will delight your youngsters and their friends!

Though not as plentiful as last year, raisins are available and this is a good time to the most of them in creative snacks.

As a snack, raisins supply fuel as well as important nutrients. They're portable, quick and convenient — there's nothing to peel, cook or throw away. Individual snack packs are perfect for school lunches, after school munching or weekend play.

GORP — "good old raisins and peanuts" has become a popular snack for youngsters as well as campers, backpackers, bikers and other active people. GORP can be made by mixing raisins in equal amounts with nuts and/or packaged cereals, chocolate candies, popcorn, miniature marshmallows or whatever your heart desires.

TORTILLA COOKIES

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 egg, beaten lightly
½ cup flour
8 flour tortillas, lightly buttered
1 cup raisins
1 cup peanuts, chopped

Melt butter in skillet. Remove from heat. Stir in brown sugar. Mix in egg, flour and vanilla. Spread about 2 tablespoons of the mixture on each tortilla. Sprinkle a tablespoon of raisins and peanuts on each. Arrange on cookie sheets. Bake in preheated 375 degree oven, 8 to 10 minutes. Cool on rack before serving. Makes eight cookies.

Note: If mixture becomes to firm to spread, warm over very low heat. On standing overnight, tortilla cookies will curl, but can be reheated. Good warm or cold.

Food bill

When evaluating the cost of food, it's important to remember that you are paying for much more than just the actual value of the farm product, says the National Live Stock and Meat Board. A recent report from the USDA shows that labor costs accounted for 51 per cent of what Americans paid for food in 1975. This figure rose 11 per cent in 1975 after a 13 per cent gain in 1974. There was only a 5 to 7 per cent rise in 1976. Transportation made up 13 per cent of the total marketing costs in 1975 while packaging accounted for another 13 per cent.

Lemon 'n spice back ribs pork pleasers

LEMON 'N SPICE BACK RIBS

Pork pleasers on the grill are many. Leading the parade of popular cuts are thick, juicy chops, followed by succulent rolled roasts, blade steaks and cubes for kabobs. But surely one of the most favored pork cuts to be broiled over the coals is ribs. Meaty back ribs, packed with flavor and cooked to tender perfection, are truly one of the joys of summer.

Ribs broiled on the grill are traditionally brushed with a spicy barbecue sauce. Of course you can buy bottled sauce, but throughout the summer you'll want to try a recipe or two for sauces you can make yourself. This can be especially rewarding, as you'll discover when you sample the recipe for Lemon 'n Spice Back Ribs which pick up tangy flavor accents from a lemony marinade that's expertly seasoned with dry mustard, cumin, garlic and bay leaf. With the addition of catsup, the marinade becomes a basting sauce for the ribs.

It's the long, slow broiling process that assures full flavor development and maximum tenderness of the ribs. To prevent the ribs from becoming too brown before they are broiled to the well done stage, they should be placed five to seven inches from the source of heat, cooked at a low to moderate temperature, turned occasionally and brushed with sauce only near the end of the cooking time.

Back ribs are cut from the prized loin section of the pig and are similar in appearance to spareribs which come from the underneath section. In most recipes, either back ribs or spareribs can be used, the choice depending upon availability and price as well as individual preferences. Since ribs have a high proportion of bone to meat, allow one to one and a half servings per pound.

LEMON 'N SPICE BACK RIBS

4 to 6 pounds pork back ribs
¾ cup lemon juice
1/3 cup water
1/3 cup sugar
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
2½ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon cumin
1 large clove garlic, minced
1 bay leaf
1/3 cup catchup

Cut ribs in serving-size pieces and place in large bowl. Combine lemon juice, water, sugar, Worcestershire sauce, salt, mustard, cumin, garlic and bay leaf, stirring to dissolve sugar, and pour over ribs. Cover bowl and place in refrigerator to marinate 2 hours or more, turning ribs several times. Remove ribs from marinade, reserving marinade. Place ribs on grill over ash-covered coals or on rack in broiler pan so surface of meat is 5 to 7 inches from heat. Broil at low to moderate temperature 1 hour, turning occasionally. Pour marinade into saucepan, remove bay leaf, add catsup and cook 5 to 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Brush ribs with sauce and continue broiling 20 minutes or until done, turning often and brushing with sauce.

Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Raisin 'beer' cookies

Man or woman, boy or girl, no matter the age, we all love cookies — especially homemade cookies hot from the oven — no one can resist them!

These cookies are chock full of nutritious goodies such as nuts, coconut, raisins and beer! Yes, cookie lovers, beer is an ingredient that adds a lightness and moistness that is unsurpassed in other cooking liquids. Remember, the alcohol evaporates in the baking process so it's fine to serve the children.

Homemade cookies also make nice gifts, as nothing is more appreciated than something from the kitchen and it needn't be the holiday season for you to have an excuse. After all, anytime can be cookie time!

RAISIN BEER COOKIES

1 cup raisins
1 cup beer
1 cup brown sugar
½ cup butter or margarine
2 eggs
2 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup shredded coconut
½ cup chopped nuts
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine raisins and beer in saucepan. Simmer for 5 minutes, then cool and drain. Reserve ½ cup liquid. Cream sugar and shortening. Add egg and beat well. Sift flour, baking soda and salt together. Add, alternately with reserved raisin liquid to creamed mixture. Stir in nuts, raisins, coconut and vanilla. Drop by teaspoonful on greased cookie sheet. Bake at 350 degrees for approximately 12 minutes. Makes 6 dozen.

VICHYSOISSE POTATO SALAD

Try an old favorite

Vichysoisse potato salad refreshing summer treat

As temperatures rise, everyone is on the lookout for recipes that will make the squeeze into last year's swimsuit a little easier.

So, when planning your next beach party or backyard barbecue, why not include the popular favorite, potato salad, a delicious dish that can be surprisingly low in calories.

Even when you're dieting, potatoes should be an important part of that diet. A medium-size potato (3 per pound) is only about 100 calories, and with a little care in preparation you can keep extra calories to a minimum.

Besides being low in calories, potatoes contribute significantly to your daily nutritional needs. Potatoes are an excellent source of Vitamin C, providing about one-half the U.S. Recommended Daily Allowance of this important vitamin. Potatoes also supply B vitamins and small amounts of important minerals like iron.

When dieting, we often eliminate valuable nutrients from our diet while trying to lower calorie intake. Including potatoes, which give good nutritional return for the calories, in your diet can help insure good nutrition along with sensible weight loss.

Vichysoisse Potato Salad is a great example. This refreshing summer salad combines two recipe favoriets — France's ice-cold potato soup and America's traditional potato salad. The result is a wonderful flavor that will delight your family and friends.

Besides being easy to prepare, this salad is versatile, allowing for the use of either a yogurt or buttermilk dressing. Your own favorite vegetable can also be substituted for the shoestring beet topping. Best of all, Vichysoisse Potato Salad is only about 135 calories per serving, making it an ideal dish to serve the calorie counter or any summertime guest.

VICHYSOISSE POTATO SALAD

- 6 medium potatoes (about 2 pounds)
- ½ cup sliced green onions
- 1 cup buttermilk or plain yogurt
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon seasoned pepper
- 2 teaspoons dried tarragon
- Salad greens
- 1 can (16 oz.) shoestring beets, drained

Cook potatoes until tender. Peel, then dice. Put in bowl, with onions; cool to room temperature. In measuring cup blend buttermilk, lemon juice and seasonings. Pour over potatoes, tossing to blend. Press mixture into 1½ quart mold. Chill. Unmold on platter, garnish with greens, if desired. Mound beets on top.

Makes 6 servings.

20 million—that's a lot of people

Nutrition research for elderly is just beginning

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Twenty million — that's a lot of people!

"Unfortunately, careful research aimed at determining requirements of most nutrients specifically for the elderly is just beginning. At present, neither U.S. nor international dietary allowances include separate recommendations for any nutrient for the elderly," writes Dr. Myron Winick, director of Columbia's Institute of Human Nutrition, in the June issue of Contemporary Nutrition.

In a subsequent interview Dr. Winick says: "Actually so little has been done in this particular field. Yet it is definitely one of the most important fields for those attempting to find ways of slowing the aging process. With what information is at my disposal, I shall try to outline an over-all diet for people — more than 20 million over 60 — with the hope that it makes living easier, their health better and their spirits good.

"It is certainly true that a number of bodily changes take place as the years accumulate. These changes wear on the organs and digestive processes. Which is why older people need about the minimum daily requirement for protein that a healthy young adult needs. The protein is required to repair worn out tissues. So provide the elderly with enough poultry, fish, soft cheeses and eggs (not more than three a week), lean meat and some whole grains and protein from certain vegetables. But serve them in small portions. It is better for the elderly to be fed four or even five times a day. But they must get their full requirements.

"Due in part to our affluent society's low intake of calcium foods, many older people suffer a los of bone matrix. This condition progresses more than twice as fast in women as in men. It is called osteoporosis.

"So I suggest foods rich in calcium for osteoporosis sufferers — milk and milk products, cheese, ice cream and yogurt for those who enjoy it," says Dr. Winick.

Because the stomach may secrete less hydrochloric acid with age, digestion and absorption of nutrients are impaired. The elderly may be more prone to anemia due to poor iron absorption and absorption of vitamin B-12. Therefore, foods such as red meat, liver and fortified cereals should be included in the diet.

Diverticulitis is an intestinal inflammation.

"There is evidence that suggests that it may be related to the amount of fiber in the diet," Dr. Winick states. "This is probably because of the decreased digestion time it produces and constipation which follows. Since constipation is a serious problem in many older people, I suggest an increase in bran in the diet.

"But not an irrational turning to bran as though it is a cure-all. No, I would say a few grains of bran scattered over your regular cereal might be enough."

Forage food

It is often claimed that grains that could be used for human consumption to combat hunger are the main source of feed for livestock. This is not true, says the National Live Stock and Meat Board. Actually, 78 per cent of a beef animal's diet is composed of materials that humans would not eat. Cattle primarily eat grasses and forage and by-products such as stems and stalks. Cattle convert these "non-edibles" that would not come to the supermarket into meat for human consumption. Who wants forage for food!

Make use of fresh vegetables

Chilled picnic ratatouille, corn oysters are timely

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Are you taking advantage of the fresh vegetables of the season? Here are some different recipes for dishes to enjoy during this bountiful time. All are good for picnics, family cookouts or company buffets. A picnic ratatouille, for example, combines eggplant, tomato and zucchini for a very special side dish. Corn oysters make use of fresh corn on the cob, while spiced scalloped fresh tomatoes will please even the most picky of tomato fanciers.

CHILLED PICNIC RATATOUILLE

¼ cup salad or olive oil
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 onion, sliced
1 green pepper, seeded and cut in strips
3 medium unpared zucchini, cut into ¼-inch slices
1 medium eggplant, pared and cut in cubes
2 teaspoons dried leaf basil
1 teaspoon dried leaf oregano
1½ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
3 tomatoes, peeled and cut in wedges

Heat oil in large skillet, add garlic, onion, green pepper and zucchini. Cook about 3 minutes or until onion is tender, stirring frequently. Add eggplant, basil, oregano, salt and pepper. Cover and cook over medium heat 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add tomatoes wedged, cover and cook 5 minutes longer or just until tomatoes are heated. Refrigerate several hours or overnight. Pack in container with a tight lid to carry to picnic. Makes 6 servings.

(Note: to remove skins from tomatoes, plunge tomatoes one at a time in saucepan of boiling water for about 30 seconds. Remove. Skins will slip off easily.)

CORN OYSTERS

1 cup fresh corn cut from cob
2 eggs, separated
¼ cup sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1/16 teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon grated onion
Bacon fat or shortening

Mix corn and egg yolks in medium bowl. Mix flour with baking powder, salt and pepper. Stir into corn and egg yolks. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold in. Drop from teaspoon onto a hot griddle greased with bacon fat or shortening. Cook until brown. Serve 4 corn oysters per serving. Makes 5 servings or 20 corn oysters.

If bacon fat is used, cook 4 strips of bacon for sufficient fat.

SPICED SCALLOPED FRESH TOMATOES

¼ cup butter or margarine, divided
¼ cup chopped fresh onion
3 cups fresh bread cubes
3 tablespoons dark brown sugar
1 teaspoon salt
¼ plus ⅛ teaspoon ground cloves, divided
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
4 tomatoes, peeled and sliced

In large skillet melt 3 tablespoons butter, add onion and cook until tender about 5 minutes. Add bread and toast to a light brown color. Stir in brown sugar, salt, one-fourth teaspoon cloves and cinnamon. In a greased 1-quart casserole place half of bread cube mixture, then a layer of tomatoes, repeat with remaining bread cubes and tomatoes. Dot with remaining 1 tablespoon butter and sprinkle with remaining one-eighth teaspoon cloves. Bake in 350-degree oven 30 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Barbecued miniloaves for spring

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

If spring is here, outdoor barbecuing is not far behind.

Until the winter chef stirs from in front of a warm TV set, here is a quick barbecue miniloaf recipe for him to practice on in the kitchen.

A full meal when served with your favorite rolls, a salad or refreshing fruit-of-the-season dessert, the miniloaves are ground beef extended with rolled oats and mixed with corn, onion and green pepper. Baste with a favorite barbecue sauce and bake. The miniloaves also are a good way to stretch the teenage entertainment budget when several hungry young people are involved. Once the barbecue grill is back in regular action outdoors, broil these over charcoal or bake in a smoker for a different taste sensation.

BARBECUE MINILOAVES

1½ pound ground beef
¾ cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
2/3 cup barbecue sauce
1 can (7-ounce) whole kernel corn, drained
½ cup chopped onion
¼ cup green pepper, chopped
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Combine all ingredients; mix well. Shape to form 6 individual loaves; place in shallow baking pan. Bake in preheated 375-degree oven about 30 minutes, basting with additional barbecue sauce during baking. Makes 6 servings.

Barbecue beef

For best results in grilling less tender cuts over the coals, marinating or pretenderizing is recommended by the California Beef Council consumer information specialists. Blade bone chuck steaks, short ribs, rib lifters and barbecue ribs are all economical choices. More tender cuts may be grilled as purchased or marinated for extra flavor. If in doubt about the tenderness of a particular cut, it's wise to grill only to medium rare, then slice across the grain to serve.

Garden vegetable 'medley' a growing season favorite

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

It is time to consider putting up garden vegetables as the home growing season gets into full swing.

Those who haven't planted a garden may be lucky recipients of surplus vegetables from friends and neighbors. Also, summer is a good time for day-trippers to pick up fresh produce from roadside stands. By planning ahead you can freeze a variety of vegetables for use during the week, when there is no time to shop and you're in the mood for a vegetable dish, and for use in late fall and early winter.

A garden vegetable medley may include many different taste combinations — zucchini, carrots, green beans and onions; corn, tomatoes, green peppers and green beans or broccoli, cauliflower, carrots and onions. Pack these for freezing with a butter sauce dressing. When serving, reheat with different seasonings such as dill weed, mint, orange or lemon peel, almonds or walnuts. Each brings its own special flavoring to your basic garden vegetable medley.

GARDEN VEGETABLE MEDLEY

- 4 quarts (1 gallon) water
- 2 pounds zucchini, unpared, cut into 12-inch slices
- 1 pound carrots, washed, pared and cut into 12-inch pieces
- 1 pound green beans, washed, trimmed and cut into 2-inch pieces
- 4 medium onions, sliced, cut slices into quarters

Pour water into large kettle, bring to a boil over high heat. Place 1 pound zucchini in a cooking basket. Plunge into rapidly boiling water, when water returns to a rolling boil, cook 3 minutes, remove basket and plunge immediately into ice water for 3 minutes. Repeat procedure for remaining zucchini. Repeat procedure for carrots and green beans, 1 pound at a time, reducing time to 2 minutes for blanching and ice water bath. Combine all vegetables in a large bowl. Pack into 8 (1 pint) freezer containers, leaving one-half-inch headspace. Add 2 tablespoons Butter Sauce to each container. Freeze. To serve, place 1 pint frozen vegetables in large suacepan, add 1 cup water. Simmer over medium heat, separating vegetables with a fork and stirring frequently until sauce is blended. Stir in one-eighth teaspoon dried dill weed. Reduce heat. Cover and simmer 3 to 5 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

BUTTER SAUCE

- ½ cup butter or margarine
- ¼ cup cornstarch
- 3 teaspoons flavor enhancer
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon celery salt
- 4 packets (.19 oz. each) powdered chicken flavored broth
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg

In medium saucepan, melt butter over low heat. Remove from heat, stir in remaining ingredients. To serve, in a saucepan, place 1 pint frozen vegetables and 1 cup water. Bring to a full boil over medium heat, separating with fork and stirring frequently until sauce is blended. Season with one-eighth teaspoon dill weed. Reduce heat. Cover and simmer 3 to 5 minutes. Serve hot. Makes 4 servings.

Other Conbinations: Green beans, broccoli, chopped onion, mushrooms; cauliflower, carrots, green beans, onions; carrots, green beans, onions; carrots, peas, green beans, cauliflower; corn, tomatoes, green peppers; green beans or broccoli; cauliflower, carrots, onions.

Suggested Seasonings: Dill weed, chives, mint, parsley, oregano, thyme; almonds, walnuts; orange or lemon peel or packaged broth seasonings.

Fresh peach malted recipe

Creamy blender drinks featuring fresh peaches are a delicious way to lure even the most artful breakfast dodger! They offer a refreshing change-of-pace — quick and easy, yet nutritious, too!

Here's a morning eye-opener using the fresh peaches from California orchards which are now filling our produce departments. Blended together with eggs, ice cream and malted milk, sweet, juicy peaches become a glass full of energy and nutrition. One five-ounce peach has only 40 calories and provides significant amounts of the viatmins A and C needed in our daily diets.

For peachy-fresh breakfast treats, remember to dip cut peaches into an ascorbic acid mixture or lemon or orange juice to keep the fruit bright and appealing. The easiest way to peel a peach is to place it in boiling water for about a minute; then transfer with slotted spoon to cold water. The skins will slip right off. And, to pick a perfect peach in the first place, be sure to choose fruit with an overall creamy yellow background color to the skin. Avoid peaches that have any tinge of green or that are bruised or damaged in any way. It's best to refrigerate ripe peaches to keep them fresh for several days.

Peachy breakfast ideas don't stop with blender drinks, though. Fresh California peaches 'n cream are a perfect pairing. Or top crisp waffles, a stack of pancakes or a slice of French toast with golden peach slices gilded with sour cream and brown sugar or a cloud of whipped cream. Add a whiff of cinnamon or allspice for a fragrant finish.

In a hurry? Simply top hot or cold cereal with fresh peach slices and a bit of brown sugar or maple syrup.

FRESH PEACH MALTED

- 1 fresh California peach, sliced
- 1 egg
- 1 scoop vanilla ice cream
- ½ tablespoon instant malted milk

In blender jar, blend all ingredients. Pour into tall glass. Serve with spoon and straw. For shake, leave out the malt and add ¼ teaspoon almond or vanilla extract.

Makes 1 serving or 1 8-ounce drink.

Apricot berry trifles tasty

By Cecily Brownstone
AP Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: At a dinner party recently there was a discussion about what should go into the dessert called Trifle. One of the guests said he didn't like it because "it was usually an excuse to make stale sponge cake into a soggy mess." However, I've tasted some delicious Trifles and would appreciate having a recipe that wasn't "a soggy mess!" — DESSERT FAN

DEAR DESSERT FAN: There are many ways to make a decent Trifle. Some good recipes call for sponge cake layers, some for ladyfingers. Sometimes crumbled macaroons or slivered almonds go in. Sometimes a jam, jelly or preserve is used. The Trifles we like best are made with fruit. At this time of year you might like to try the following recipe calling for fresh apricots and strawberries. It's a dessert an acquaintance of ours enjoys serving because she says her guests have always approved of it. — C.B.

APRICOT BERRY TRIFLE

- 2 packages (3¾ oz.) vanilla pudding mix
- 3 cups milk
- 1 cup heavy cream
- 1 package (4 oz.) ladyfingers
- ¼ cup apricot preserves
- 2 pounds fresh apricots
- 1 pint strawberries
- ¼ cup cream sherry
- ¼ cup slivered blanched almonds

Cook the pudding mix according to package directions using the 3 cups of milk instead of the 4 cups the directions call for. Cool to room temperature, stirring often. Whip the cream until stiff; without washing the beater, beat the pudding until smooth; fold in cream; refrigerate while you attend to the next steps.

Sandwich each pair of ladyfingers together with the apricot preserves.

Dip the apricots into boiling water until the skins are loosened — 30 to 60 seconds. Remove the skins and pits and discard; slice the apricots. Rince, hull and halve the strawberries.

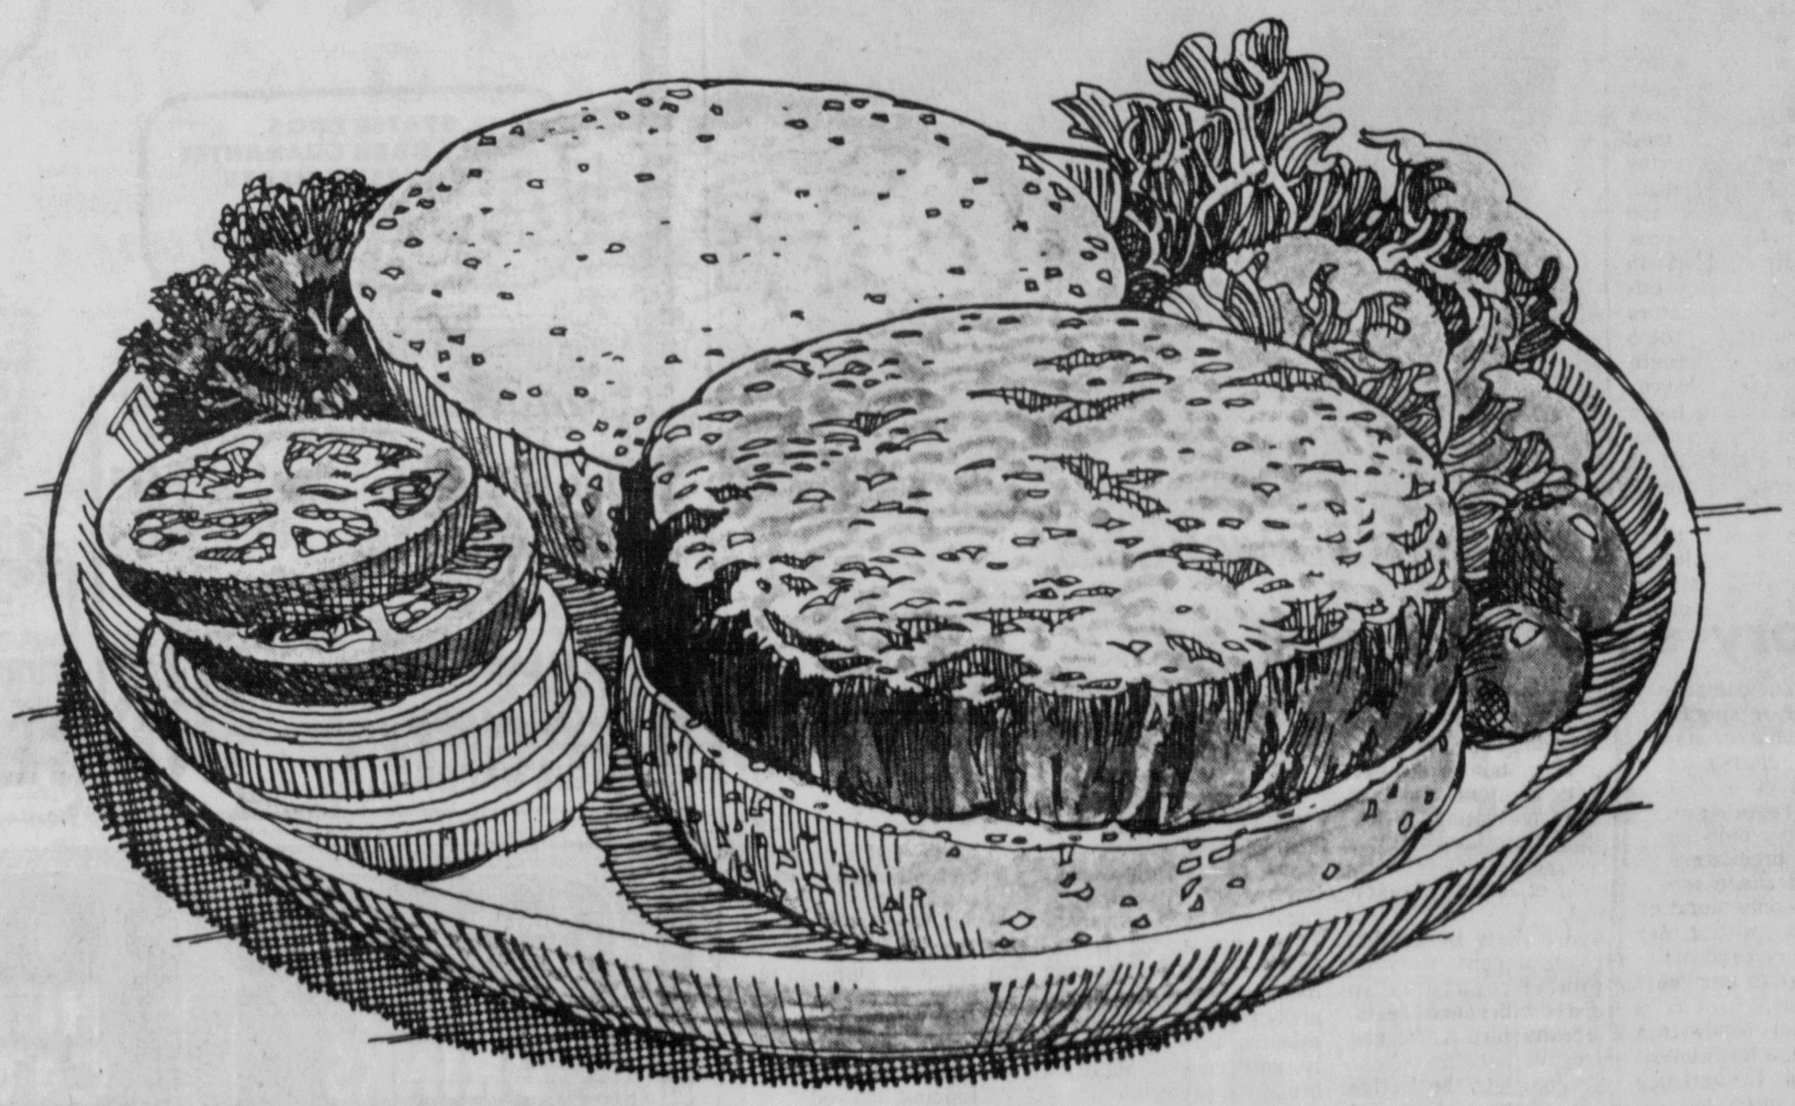

Arrange half the ladyfingers in the bottom of a serving bowl preferably glass and straight-sided that is at least 2½ quarts. Sprinkle with half the sherry. Top with half the apricots and strawberries. Sprinkle with half the almonds. Pour on half the pudding mixture. Repeat the layering. Chill at least 3 hours.

Garnish, if you like, with additional apricots, strawberries, whipped cream and almonds.

Makes 10 to 12 servings.

Mexicali Prune Nibbles

Try this appetizing biteful at your next get-together. Stuff plump sun-sweetened pitted prunes with a heated bean dip and Cheddar cheese cubes. Offer on picks. Also have tortilla chips and crisp chilled vegetable relishes on hand for munching.

Herring cole slaw is a unique 'variation'

By Aileen Claire NEA Food Editor

Cole slaw is an American dish which originally was raw, shredded white cabbage dressed with a homemade mayonnaise. It got its name from "cole" which refers to all members of the true cabbage family.

Since its first serving, cole slaw has gone through many variations dreamed up by cooks in different regions of the country. A herring cole slaw, for example, also has red and green cabbage and apple for a good mix of flavors and textures. Cabbage and carrot slaw is a favorite of many families and here is one that also includes some fresh orange sections as an added treat. Always keep these salads chilled when taking them on picnics, especially if the dressings and ingredients include mayonnaise or other egg or dairy based toppings.

HERRING COLE SLAW

1 jar (1 pound) herring party snacks in white sauce or herring tidbits in wine sauce
6 cups shredded green cabbage
4 cups shredded red cabbage
2 carrots, shredded
1 green pepper, chopped
2 apples, cored and diced
½ cup salad oil
¼ cup wine vinegar
1 teaspoon dill seed
Salt and pepper to taste

Drain herring. Dice herring and chop onions from jar. Combine all ingredients and toss until all particles are coated. Add salt and pepper to taste. Let stand for 30 minutes at room temperature and then toss again. Serve in a large bowl lined with the large outer red and green cabbage leaves. Makes 6 servings.

CABBAGE AND CARROT SLAW

½ cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon sugar
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
6 cups shredded cabbage
2 cups shredded pared carrots
1 cup fresh orange sections

In a large bowl blend together mayonnaise, sugar, lemon juice, salt and pepper. Add cabbage, carrots and orange sections; mix well. Cover and refrigerate several hours. Makes 6 servings.

Peach streusel pie set

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Desserts are always welcome no matter the season. Those that take little preparation time seem most welcome as families find themselves outdoors more now that spring has finally arrived. A peach streusel pie serves to put the pastry chef at the head of the most appreciated list while a one-bowl fruit cake provides sturdy nibbling for all members of the family.

PEACH STREUSEL PIE

1 9-inch pan frozen peach pie filling
¼ cup butter or margarine, softened
1/3 cup packed brown sugar
1 tablespoon grated lemon peel
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1-1/3 cups shortbread cookie crumbs (about 20 cookies)
Heavy cream (optional)

Bake frozen peach pie filling in 425-degree oven for 45 minutes. Meanwhile, cream butter and sugar. With finger tips or fork, blend butter-sugar mixture with remaining ingredients. When filling has baked 45 minutes, remove from oven. Sprinkle streusel mixture on top. Return to oven and bake 20 to 25 minutes more, or until streusel is golden. Serve warm, with cream, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

ONE-BOWL FRUIT CAKE

2¼ cups cake flour or 2 cups all-purpose flour
1-1/3 cups sugar
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1½ teaspoons ground allspice
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground cloves
1 can (10¾ oz.) condensed tomato soup
½ cup shortening
2 eggs
¼ cup water
1 cup chopped dates (tossed with flour)
1 cup chopped walnuts

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Generously grease and lightly flour a two and one-half-quart bundt pan. Measure dry ingredients into large bowl. Add soup and shortening. Beat at low to medium speed for 2 minutes (300 strokes with a spoon) scraping sides and bottom of bowl constantly. Add eggs and water. Beat 2 minutes more, scraping bowl frequently. Fold in dates and walnuts. Pour into prepared pan. Bake 1 hour or until done. Cool 10 minutes; remove from pan. Sprinkle with powdered sugar.

SAVORY SANDWICH GRILL

Savory sandwich grill set

Next time your calendar is circled for a special birthday or anniversary how about a change of pace? Instead of a dark windowless restaurant, why not consider enjoying cool summer breezes under a big old shade tree with an adults-only picnic.

For a picnic with real flair, try Savory Sandwich Grill. It is sure to intrigue your taste buds.

This unusual sandwich features lamb, a traditional European favorite. Lamb is too often overlooked in this country, yet can provide renewed variety and interest for tired menus.

Choose economically priced shoulder lamb chops and marinate them in a savory blend of lemon juice, oil, and catsup, with an envelope of mushroom gravy mix for a delicate balance of flavor. In addition to enhancing the flavor of the lamb, the marinade also tenderizes the chops.

For ease in eating, remove the bone from the chops, and trim the meat into convenient squares before marinating. After grilling these tasty tidbits, serve them piping hot atop slices of crusty french bread.

Add a Zesty Beet Salad for an accent to your menu. Prepare it in minutes with canned beets, Worcestershire Sauce and onions.

To complete the festive mood, pack a checkered tablecloth in your picnic hamper, along with a chilled fruit punch or a bottle of rose wine, and a basket of fresh fruit.

SAVORY SANDWICH GRILL

4 to 6 lamb shoulder chops
1 envelope (¾-oz.) mushroom gravy mix
½ cup oil
¼ cup lemon juice
1 tablespoon catchup
Worcestershire sauce; stir to dissolve sugar. Add beets and onion. Cover; chill. Serve on lettuce.
Yields 6 servings.

Tarts

1 package (3⅜ oz.) butterscotch pudding and pie filling
½ cup beer
1½ cups milk
1 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice
1 teaspoon instant coffee
6 baked tart shells
1 cup frozen whipped topping, thawed

Cook pudding as directed on package using beer and milk for liquid. When pudding has thickened, stir in spice and coffee. Cover pudding and let cool. Arrange tart shells on serving dish; beat pudding with a spoon or wire whisk before filling tarts. Chill tarts until icy cold. Serve with whipped topping and if desired a sprinkling of pie spice. Yield: 6 servings.

Nourishing banana treats

'Hi there' cookies, cananas for campers' care pack

No sooner than you have the kids packed and off to summer sleep-away camp then you're off packing again. This time it's the traditional camper's special, the camp "care" package from home brimming with goodies that satisfy appetites raised by endless activity and remind your far-away offspring of home.

We have two really amusing ideas for this year's camper's "care" package: "Hi There" Cookies and Cananas. "Hi There" Cookies are big, round, banana oatmeal cookies with funny faces made with halved banana slices and raisins. "Hi There's" are perfect travelers because they're made with mellow, honey-like bananas that lend their own natural moisture and sweet goodness. Pack fresh tasting "Hi There's" between layers of waxed paper to prevent sticking or breakage. You'll probably want to make a double batch of these funny faces, one to mail to the kids and one to keep for your family at home.

Cananas are clever banana cakes that are baked in greased six ounce juice cans, combining all the textures and flavors children love: spicy ginger and cinnamon, semi-sweet chocolate morsels, smooth, delectable bananas, plus the crunchiness of walnuts.

After baking remove the Cananas from the juice cans to cool completely. Then return them to the can for easy, safe packing in your camper's "care" package.

Nourishing banana treats are ideal for kids at camp. And when you send them to your camper you're offering a treasury of nutrients. The Banana Bunch, an industry-sponsored center for consumer information about bananas reminds us that bananas contain a good supply of Vitamins A, B6 and C, important to the growth of children. And healthful bananas are low in sodium and practically fat-free.

So make your next camper's "care" package say "I care" with bright, nourishing banana treats.

CANANAS

1/3 cup soft butter or margarine
2/3 cup sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ginger
1 egg
1 and 2/3 cups sifted all-purpose flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1½ cups mashed ripe bananas (about 4 medium)
1 package (6 oz.) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
½ cup chopped walnuts

In a large bowl cream butter, sugar, cinnamon and ginger until light and fluffy. Beat in egg. Mix flour, baking powder, and salt; blend in alternately with bananas. Stir in chocolate pieces and nuts. Half fill 10 greased 6-ounce juice cans or 18 greased 2-inch muffin cups. Bake in 375 degree F. oven 25 to 30 minutes, or until cake tester inserted in center of cakes comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes, remove from cans or muffin cups and cool completely on cooling racks.

Yields 10 can cakes or 18 muffins.

"HI THERE" COOKIES

½ cup soft butter or margarine
1 cup packed light brown sugar
1 egg
1½ cups mashed ripe bananas (about 4 medium)
1 cup uncooked otas, quick or regular
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 banana, sliced
¼ cup raisins

In a large bowl cream butter and brown sugar. Beat in egg. Blend in bananas, flour, oats, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg. Drop by rounded tablespoons onto a greased baking sheet and spread with the back of spoon into 2- to 2½-inch circles, 1-inch apart. Cut banana slices in half and arrange with raisins to make a face on each cookie. Make eyebrows, nose and mouth with halved banana slices and use raisins for eyes. Bake in 375 degree F. oven 15 to 20 minutes.

Yields 2 dozen cookies.

Peanut Butter and Jelly Turnovers

PEANUT BUTTER AND JELLY TURNOVERS

Your youngsters may enjoy helping make these.

1 package (10 ounce) refrigerated flaky biscuits
Peanut butter
Thick jam

Separate biscuits and flatten each slightly. In the center of each put ½ tablespoon of peanut butter; drop ½ teaspoon jam on each mound of peanut butter. Fold over so edges meet; firmly press edges together with fork tines. Place 2 inches apart on an ungreased cookie sheet and bake in a preheated 400 degree oven until browned — 8 to 11 minutes. Makes 10.

SKILLET CABBAGE PLUS

Quick to cook and filling.

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
2/3 cup thin strips bacon
2/3 cup coarsely shredded carrot
1½ cup thinly sliced celery
1 quart firmly packed finely shredded green cabbage
½ cup thin strips green pepper
½ teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon instant chicken
¼ cup water

In a 12 inch skillet in the hot butter, gently cook the onion, carrot and celery until slightly softened — about 5 minutes. Add cabbage, green pepper and a mixture of the sugar, chicken granules and water; mix well. Cover tightly and simmer just until tender crisp — 8 to 10 minutes. Mix well and serve at once. Makes 6 servings.

MORNING REFRESHER

Zucchini Cake
Coffee, Tea or Orange Juice

3 large eggs
2 cups sugar
1 cup corn oil
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 cups flour
2 cups coarsely shredded loosely packed unpared zucchini
½ cup chopped medium-fine walnuts
½ cup dried currants

In the large bowl of an electric mixer at low speed and constantly scraping side of bowl, beat together for ½ minute the eggs, sugar, oil, baking powder, soda, salt, cinnamon and vanilla. At medium speed and constantly scraping side of bowl, beat 1 minute longer; mixture should be smooth. With a wooden spoon, gradually stir in the flour, keeping smooth, then the zucchini, nuts and currants. Pour into a greased and floured 10-inch angelcake pan. Bake until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — about 70 minutes. Let stand on rack for 15 minutes, then loosen edges and around tube and turn out on a wire rack. Cool completely.

COMPANY BROWN RICE

The flavors blend so well that your friends may not be able to figure out the ingredients.

2 and 2/3 cups water
1 cup long-grain parboiled brown rice
1 cup chopped peeled raw apple
¼ cup chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup slivered blanched almonds
2 tablespoons butter
½ cup chopped dried apricots, soft and room temperature
1 to 2 tablespoons honey

In a medium saucepan bring the water to a boil; stir in brown rice, apple, onion and salt; bring to a boil again; cover tightly; cook over low heat until water is absorbed — about 50 minutes. In an 8 inch skillet lightly brown almonds in the butter; stir almond-butter mixture, apricots and honey into hot cooked brown rice. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Eggplant, macaroni combined

Eggplant may be claimed by the Turks, Greeks, Italians and French as their own special vegetable. But here in America, we like it too. It's easy to grow (for all you new gardeners), inexpensive to buy and goes well with other summer vegetables. This time, we've made up a great main dish with plenty of substance and flavor simply by combining it with a convenient canned macaroni. The macaroni has its own little meatballs and plenty of well-seasoned tomato sauce which compliment the eggplant. Try this for a luncheon change of pace.

MACARONI PEPPERONATA

1 medium eggplant or 2 small ones
1 tablespoon salt
2 green peppers, chopped
¼ cup chopped onions
¼ cup salad oil
1 can (15 oz.) macaroni with little meatballs in tomato sauce
3 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

Cut eggplant in half lengthwise. Scoop out eggplant pulp with a large spoon. Salt pulp and allow to stand for 15 minutes to remove excess water and bitterness. Dry with absorbent towel. Blanch eggplant shells for 5 minutes in boiling water. Saute pepper, onions and eggplant pulp in oil until soft, but not brown. Add little meatballs in sauce and cheese. Fill blanched eggplant shells with meatball mixture. Cover tops with aluminum foil. Bake in 350 degree F. oven for 20 minutes. Serves four.

Supermarket Sweepstakes cost YOU money. It's a Game Alpha Beta won't play!

Buyer, beware. Markets are giving away everything from trips to luxury cars. And guess who pays for all this? You do. At the cash register.

To prove our point, we asked our spokesman, Alan Hamel, to personally shop at the market that's promoting an extravagant new sweepstakes. He bought those items that most people are likely to buy on an average shopping trip: meat, produce, canned goods, detergent, and so on. The total came to $71.49.

Alan then bought exactly the same things at Alpha Beta. The same items came to a total of $65.13. That's $6.36 less!

Taping job works for Doug Rau

Mike Brossart
Progress Bulletin Staff Writer

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

HOUSTON — A bit of trainer's tape did wonders for Doug Rau — and the Dodger pennant hopes — Tuesday night in the Astrodome.

Rau, who posted a 16-12 mark and a 2.57 earned run average last year, had been struggling all of the '77 season with a sore ankle. It had affected his pitching to the extent that, despite a 9-1 mark going into Tuesday's game, his ERA had soared to well over 4.00 and he had completed only one game in 17 starts.

However, all that turned around Tuesday.

Rau had, by his own admission, been hit freely all year prior to Tuesday's outing under the Astrodome. However, the revamped taping job by Dodger trainer Bill Buhler on Rau's sore left ankle seemed to make all the difference in Tuesday's outing against the Astros.

"Bill decided to tape the ankle more tightly this time around," Rau said after the win. "As a result, I got a lot more push off of it and was able to make their righthanded hitters respect me.

"Tonight I was able to jam them, to keep them from digging in on me. I hit the inside part of the plate with my fastball consistently. That's the first time all year I've been able to do that."

Rau fanned six and walked four in the victory, which both he and Dodger manager Tommy Lasorda agreed was by far his finest outing of the campaign.

"It's been a real struggle before tonight," Rau recalled. "I just thank God our club got me a lot of runs to work with. I think I'm on the right track now."

If Rau was pleased with the win, Lasorda was clearly estatic.

"That's the best Dougger has pitched all year, that was the Rau of old out there tonight," the Dodger manager proclaimed after the win, which enabled the Dodgers to stretch their lead in the N.L. West to 9½ games over the Cincinnati Reds.

"It was very encouraging to see him throw like that," continued Lasorda. "The complete game was a very timely one for our staff, we are kind of hurting in the bullpen right now."

The Dodger offense also brought a smile to Lasorda's face. The team touched up Astro starter Joe Sambito and relievers Joe Niekro and Bo McLaughlin for 13 hits good for the eight runs.

Teddy Martinez, subbing for Davey Lopes, and Bill Russell paced that attack with three hits apiece. Martinez scored three of the runs and drove in one, while Russell scored once and had two RBIs.

The keystone duo also turned in another flawless effort afield.

"Heck no, Martinez is no surprise to me," Lasorda told a Houston writer when quizzed about Teddy's play Tuesday. "I managed him for four years in the Dominican Winter League so I KNOW what he can do. The only surprise was that we were able to draft him this winter. I didn't think he would be available."

The Dodgers, who put together single runs in the first and second off Sambito, put the game on ice with a five-run third inning, aided in that frame by a couple Astro errors and key singles by Martinez and Russell.

John Hale's leadoff homer in the fifth, a cannon shot into the rightfield seats, ended Dodger scoring in the game.

The closest the hosts came to denting the plate off of Rau was in the second. With two away, Jose Cruz drew a walk and Jim Fuller slammed one off third baseman Ron Cey's glove.

Fuller's shot caromed into foul territory in left and Cruz tried to take third on the play. However, he was gunned down on a quick throw from Russell to Cey covering.

As things turned out, no other Astro ventured as far as third vs. Rau the rest of the night.

DODGER DATA — Pitching matchups for the rest of the Houston series are Burt Hooton (8-3) vs. Mark Lemongello (1-11) tonight and Tommy John (9-4) vs. Joaquin Andujar (9-5) on Thursday. Floyd Bannister was originally slated to pitch tonight for the Astros but has experienced stiffness in his pitching elbow and has been scratched for the series.

John had been suffering from the flue and was given a couple days off by Lasorda but has been given the green light to pitch on Thursday.

Lee Lacy made the trip with the Dodgers and is expected to come off the disabled list prior to the All-Star break. Speculation is that the Dodgers will cut either veteran Boog Powell or utilityman Ed Goodson, but Lasorda refused to commit himself other than to indicate the club probably won't cut a pitcher to make room for Lacy.

Montclair's Ricky Adams is off to a quick start with the Sarasota Astros in the Florida Rookie League. Adams, Houston's number-one pick in the June free agent draft, went five-for-eight at the plate Monday to lead Sarasota to a sweep of a doubleheader. Adams, playing shortstop, also sparkled afield.

Lopes, still nursing a badly bruised left hand, missed the starting call Monday for the sixth straight game. His status for the rest of the series is doubtful. Reggie Smith, hobbled by a bad knee, is also a doubtful starter for the series.

Rick Monday is healthy but was given a rest by Lasorda with southpaw Sambito on the hill for the Astros. Monday should return to the starting lineup tonight. Manny Mota made his first start of the year in place of Monday.

Byrnes explains new grid format

CIF commissioner Tom Byrnes explained, and to some extent defended, his positions on the new CIF-Southern Section playoff format, which will be in effect this fall, to a small group of Southland prep writers at a luncheon in Lakewood Monday.

That new format abolishes the traditional 4A, 3A, 2A and 1A playoff groupings (for football only) and replaces them with eight conferences drawn up more or less along geographical lines.

The San Antonio and Hacienda leagues, for example, will be two of the five members of the Southeastern Conference, which will also include the Desert Valleys, Montview and San Andreas leagues. Sixteen teams from those five leagues (three teams guaranteed from each league and one at-large squad) will be involved in the Southeastern Conference playoffs, which will require four weeks of play to find a champion of the 38 member schools.

So the 1977 football season will produce eight CIF champions in 11-man football plus one eight-man champ.

"The two main complaints that we hear about the new setup," said Byrnes, "are that it will dilute the importance and prestige of a CIF football championship and that the CIF has made the change just to make more money by having more playoff games.

"First off," said the commissioner, "if all we wanted to do was generate more income by holding more playoff games, we would have increased the 1A bracket to 32 teams instead of 16. That would have been the obvious thing to do and we wouldn't have got any flak about it. That would have given us 124 games rather than the old 108; with the new format we'll have 120.

"But the important thing is that this way there will be only a four-week playoff season. There's been a great hue and cry in the past that the 14-week season is too long for preps."

'Dilution' favored

Byrnes admitted that the prestige of a CIF title will be reduced by the new format, but argued that dilution is not such a bad thing.

"As it was, we've had four championships for almost 400 CIF member schools, or a championship for every 100 schools," he said. "In the L.A. City Section they have two championships for 50 schools, or one title for every 15; in the San Diego County Section its one per every 30 schools.

"I feel that the most important thing is increased opportunity for young people to be CIF champions. When we instituted the four-division setup, we had about 100 fewer schools than we have now."

Another very important feature of the new eight-conference playoff format, according to the commissioner, is the regional aspect of the new conferences.

"We've been able to do a better job of geographical groupings under the new system," Byrnes said. "Obviously it's easier to pay attention to geography when you have eight divisons to play with instead of four.

"Now, for example, there will be very few instances where a team have to travel through Los Angeles itself for a playoff game. Travel costs are becoming increasingly important — they tell me that it now costs $1.83 per mile to use a bus.

"Intersectional games may be highly desirable but we're entering an era of limited school resources and we can no longer afford the luxury of long-distance travel."

Preps losing ground

Byrnes hopes the new format will reverse a trend of the last several years, wherein prep football has been losing ground in terms of interest and revenues to major football: the Rams, USC, UCLA and the many college and pro games that are televised each week of the grid season.

"Years ago," he said, "people would come from all over Southern California to see a championship game." (In 1956, for example, 41,383 watched Anahaim play Downey in the CIF finals at the Coliseum. The following summer, the Shrine Game drew 85,931, also in the Coliseum.) "Now fans see so much football on television that you don't see those huge crowds at high school games.

"But we're hoping that, in a more limited area, prep championships will be able to compete more favorably with with major national football."

To that end, championships of the new divisions will be decided regionally rather than at the Coliseum or Anaheim Stadium. The Southeastern Conference title game, for example, may well end up at Citrus College or MSAC. A Pomona-Bonita matchup or something of the sort should draw a considerable crowd to the finals.

RISE TO GREATNESS?

Rookie running back Tony Dorsett of the Dallas Cowboys works on chinning bar. The 1976 Heisman Trophy winner expects to win a starting position and gain 1,500 yards.

Dorsett no 'Superman'

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — "Some people think I'm a Superman," said a certain Heisman Trophy winner recently. "I'm not. Some people in Dallas think I can lead the team to the Super Bowl alone. I can't."

That's Tony Dorsett talking down the super-expectations others have been puffing up for him.

"If I'm starting, I'm hoping to surpass 1,500 yards this season."

That's also Tony Dorsett, puffing up a few expectations of his own.

Dorsett, the Dallas Cowboys' million-dollar baby from Pitt, doesn't like to talk about championships — those are the doings of teams, not hotshot rookies. What he has been talking about here in the Cowboys' training camp is what Tony Dorsett expects of Tony Dorsett this season. Such things as:

—Beating veteran Preston Pearson out of a job.
—Gaining 1,500 yards.
—Making the NFL forget such folks as O.J. Simpson and Walter Payton.

Here's how he plans to do it.

"First I want to make the starting unit," he says. "Pearson is an 11-year veteran. I'm young and full of go. Everyone's job is on the line. Whoever is there, I'll be pushing him for a job."

Next, he says, "I want to stay healthy — if I do, I think I'll have a successful first year. One-thousand yards would be a good year. With the personnel here, I feel I can have a good year and gain 1,500 yards (something O.J. didn't accomplish until his fifth NFL season). But I've got to start."

He's a little man, as National Football League players go, so Dorsett has been lifting weights. "I weighed 188 this morning. I hope to go over the 190 barrier this year. I'm not a big person physically so I have to be strong.

"I don't lift weights for weight — I don't want to be a Greek God — I lift for strength."

Dorsett, who for awhile seemed bound for Seattle, which had the No. 1 draft choice, considers himself "the luckiest person in this year's draft."

"I didn't want to go to Seattle," he told reporters Monday. "I couldn't have been much help to them. I really tried not to join up with them."

With Dallas, of course, he has a much better line that will probably be opening a few more holes than he would have seen in Seattle. And that just might make some of Dorsett's dreams come true.

"I am a competitor," he says. "I want to be one of the best, if not the best."

Lakers plan 'big news'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers have called what they term a "major press conference" for today amid speculation that they've signed Jamaal Wilkes, star forward for the Golden State Warriors.

Laker owner Jack Kent Cook, who called the press conference, would not talk about Wilkes, but Warriors' spokesman Gordon Stirling said Wilkes-Lakers deal "is certainly possible."

"It is certainly possible it could involve Wilkes," Stirling said from Chicago. "It could be. We have negotiated with him, of course. But I assume he has negotiated with other people too. There have been continuing references about his going to the Lakers, so like I say, I suppose it's possible."

Wilkes has played out his option with the Warriors.

The Lakers are in need of a solid forward, and that is a need Wilkes could fill. The No. 1 draft choice of the Warriors in 1974 started his rookie year and has been a starter ever since.

If the former UCLA AllAmerican goes to Los Angeles, the Warriors and Lakers must agree on "fair compensation" under NBA rules. If they fail to reach an agreement, league commissioner Larry O'Brien makes the decision.

Angels now lose Tanana

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

ANAHEIM — The Angels won a game but lost another player Tuesday night.

Nolan Ryan hurled the Halos to a four-hit shutout, 3-0, over the Minnesota Twins. Ryan struck out eight and did not break Sandy Koufax's record of 97 games with 10 strikeouts or more.

The win, second in a row under new manager Dave Garcia, was marred by the knowledge that Frank Tanana will not pitch again until after the All-Star game next Tuesday.

Tanana, who was taken out of Monday night's game in the sixth inning because of a "stiffness behind his left elbow," was examined Tuesday by Dr. Joseph Triggs.

Tanana (12-6 with a 2.15 earned run average) has an inflammation of the triceps tendon where it attaches to his pitching elbow.

"I overdid it," Tanana said. "Going nine innings all the time every fourth day was too much. I'm in excellent condition, but I overdid it. It's strained that's all. But my arm is hurting me.

"I thought it would be in the best interest of the team and the American League not to pitch in the All-Star game. I'd love to play. But I'm not going out there with my arm feeling the way it does."

In order to try and pick up some ground on the division leaders, former manager Norm Sherry had gone to a four-man pitching rotation about 10 days ago so that aces Ryan and Tanana would pitch every fourth day.

When Garcia was named manager Monday, he announced that Paul Hartzell would be taken out of the bullpen and returned to the starting rotation and that the club would return to a five-man rotation.

Bobby Bonds helped Ryan join Tanana and Chicago Cubs' pitcher Rick Reuschel as the major leagues' only 12-game winners.

Bonds got two singles, drove in his 54th run of the season to take the club lead from the injured Joe Rudi and stole his 21st base.

Two games into the second half of the season, Bonds has 18 home runs to go with the stolen bases. He wants to become the first player in major league history to hit 40 homers and steal 40 bases.

"I'll get the 40 stolen bases," he said. "The 40 home runs will be much more difficult especially with Rudi and (Bobby) Grich out and Don (Baylor) struggling at the plate."

Baylor went hitless in two official at-bats Tuesday and is hitting just .221 with 30 runs batted in.

The Angels, like the Twins, got only four hits in the game. Luckily the visitors handed them two unearned runs in the first inning without a hit.

Gil Flores walked. Jerry Remy sacrificed and reached base on an error by pitcher Paul Thormodsgard. As Bonds struck out, Flores and Remy worked a double steal.

Tony Solaita grounded to Rod Carew who threw wildly to the plate allowing Flores to score and when the ball bounced out of the photographer's well, the runners were given an extra base allowing Remy to score.

The other run, the only earned run in the game, came in the sixth.

Flores singled, advanced to second on Remy's sacrifice and scored on Bonds' single.

Carew, baseball's leading hitter, had another tough night. Besides the error allowing the runs to score, he went hitless in four attempts.

In the two games, Carew was 1-for-9 and now is "down" to .393.

ANGEL ANGLES — Hartzell (3-6) draws Dave Goltz (9-6) in tonight's series' finale.

Gary Nolan was taken off the disabled list Tuesday night and will start in one of the games against Seattle.

Gary Ross, who has a sore right elbow, was placed on the 21-day disabled list.

Rod Carew top choice

NEW YORK (AP) — Maybe it was Rod Carew's near-.400 batting average. Perhaps the close races in both American League divisions caused it. Or maybe major league baseball is just more popular than ever.

Whatever the reasons, more than 12½ million fans cast votes in All-Star balloting and that enabled five American League players to top the three million mark in votes. The biggest beneficiary of the voting increase was Carew.

The Minnesota first baseman, having his greatest season in an already-illustrious career, gathered 4,292,740 votes, more than any player in the eight-year history of the fan balloting, according to the final tabulations released Tuesday by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Boryla will get his challenge

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Mike Boryla, the newest member of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, says he likes a challenge. He'd better. He's the sixth quarterback the year-old Bucs have hired.

The former Philadelphia signal-caller signed a four-year contract Tuesday with the Bucs, ending what he said was two months of indecision about his future. The Eagles got an undisclosed future draft choice in return, but Tampa apparently didn't have to give that much.

Boryla, who would not comment on published reports that his contract was worth about $600,000, said he told the Eagles in December he would not play another year with them.

"I did not come out and say it publicly, but I told management how I felt," he said, complaining specifically about the coaching last year, his third with the Eagles. "I did not want to play for the Eagles. I asked to be traded."

Boryla, 25, said his option wasn't renewed anyway, making him a free agent.

Eagles General Manager Jim Murray said late Tuesday that the failure to renew was an oversight. He said the Eagles failed to send a letter notifying Boryla of an intent to renew his contract, which under league rules would have made him their property for another year.

"I could give you about 100 excuses but not one good reason why Mike Boryla did not get his option letter, but the bottom line on the thing is that by my act of omission, I gave him his freedom," Murray said.

"He became a free agent without compensation because I did not exercise his option. If I had exercised his option, the Eagles would have gotten a lot for more Mike Boryla than they will receive..."

Boryla said he gave a lot of thought to the idea of hiring on with the Bucs after Tampa's 0-14 season in the team's initial year. He reportedly chose Tampa over an offer from Washington Redskins.

"I've had a lot of time to think and there's two ways of doing it. I decided to go to a new team with no winning tradition. I like them. I think they know what they're doing. I like going with a young team. I like a challenge. And this is a situation that has captured my imagination."

The Bucs also have acquired quarterback Gary Huff from the Chicago Bears. He was expected to have the inside edge for the starting role.

"No one ever told me I was guaranteed to start," Huff said of the Boryla addition. "In the NFL, you have to earn what you get."

Also competing for the quarterback slots are Parnell Dickinson, a second-year man recovering from knee surgery; rookie Randy Hedberg from Minot (N.D.) State, the club's eighth-round draft pick, and free agents David Jaynes and Scott Gardner.

Boryla said he would report to the Bucs camp Friday and be on the practice field Saturday.

"I'm a very good quarterback," said Boryla. "As far as saying I'm No. 1, I don't like to be a mouthy guy. I'd rather prove myself."

Scouts taking tourney entries

ENTRIES ARE DUE BY FRIDAY for the Boy Scouts' third annual Sunny Skies Classic, a mixed doubles tournament scheduled July 23 at the Claremont Tennis Club. The scouts' Old Baldy Council is sponsoring the event to raise funds for general operations which serve 7,000 scouts in 20 communities in east Los Angeles and west San Bernardino counties.

The day's program will begin with registration at 10:30 a.m., with round-robin competition beginning at 11 a.m. in four classifications — A, B, C and novice. Play will continue until 5 p.m. and trophies will be awarded afterward.

Each player will receive a free sun visor, donated by the Independent Insurance Agents Association of Western San Bernardino County, and refreshments, a souvenir program and tennis balls for the matches also will be provided.

Players can obtain entry forms by calling Ron Brundage at 626-3551 or Harry Gousha at 626-7196. The fee is $18 per team. Tournament committee members are Howard Wiener, general chairman; Gousha, participation; Frank Lansford, arrangements; Lee Lott, prizes; and Lee Jackman, public relations. Officials said proceeds from the tournament will go toward training youth and adult leaders, leader recruitment, organization of new scout units and camping programs.

NAMES, NOT TEAM PERFORMANCE, are the best attraction the Los Angeles Strings can offer these days. Besides trumpeting the team's new star singles player, Ilie Nastase, the Strings also are getting publicity mileage out of Tracy Austin. The moppet of Wimbledon made a surprise appearance in the line-up Friday night, losing to San Diego's Kerry Reid. Now as a prelude to tonight's Strings-Indiana Loves match at the Forum, 14-year-old Tracy will play a 7:30 p.m. exhibition against Jimmy Pugh, a top-ranked 13-year-old from Southern California.

The Strings' management seizes on such promotional material. There's little choice. The club is now 3-22 for the season, having lost all four matches since the Wimbledon break. That was supposed to have been a turning point. The Strings' record remains the sorriest in World Team Tennis.

The Indiana team brings a couple of bright names of its own to the match starting at 8 tonight. Vitas Gerulaitis and Sue Barker, both semifinalists at Wimbledon, figure to be singles opponents of Nastase and Rosie Casals.

On Thursday at Anaheim Convention Center, the Strings will meet the team with the second worst WTT mark, the Soviet Union. Back at the Forum, they play Chris Evert and Phoenix Friday, then the Soviet Union again Sunday.

TENNIS CLASSES for adults and teen-agers have been scheduled by the San Gabriel Valley YWCA this summer. Adult sessions are on Wednesday evenings, Tuesday and Thursday mornings and Saturday afternoons, teen lessons on Saturday mornings. Fees are $13 adults, $10 teens . . . Latest on the tennis racquet market: a titanium alloy racquet, said to be available in low weights previously considered to be impractical. They're now in pilot production at Zirtech in Albany, Ore.

Weed Patch makes finals

Pomona Weed Patch (Ted Greene) advanced to the finals of Pomona's 1977 Little League City Playoffs by defeating McDonald's (National), 5-1, Tuesday night at Montvue Park.

Pomona Weed Patch will face the Pomona Police Association (Southwest L.L.) for the city Little League championship Thursday night. The contest is slated to get underway at Montvue Park at 5:30 p.m.

McDonald's fell behind early to Pomona Weed Patch in the contest. The Weed Patch squad scored single runs in the second and fourth innings to claim an early 2-0 advantage. A three-run sixth stanza iced the contest for Weed Patch.

McDonald's only run came in the fourth on some sloppy fielding by the Weed Patch outfit. Steve Castro began the inning with a ground ball to the Weed Patch shortstop. Instead of retiring Castro, the shortstop threw the ball past the first baseman for an error. Castro advanced to second on a stolen base and went to third when the catcher threw the ball into centerfield. He scored on a wild pitch.

Karry Belcher and Rob Carter set up the first two Weed Patch runs with base hits. Belcher scored both runs in the early frames as he banged out two hits in three trips to the plate. Carter was (2-for-3) with an RBI single in the second inning.

In the sixth, the first batter for Weed Patch drew a walk and went to third on a base hit by Carter. It was a close play at third as the umpire ruled the Weed Patch runner out. But after a conference with the other umpires, the runner was ruled safe. Both runners scored when Andre Bond's drive to left was dropped by the leftfielder. Bond scored the third run on an error by the McDonald's second baseman.

Kevin Johnson went the distance for the Weed Patch squad as he allowed McDonald's batters only three hits in the contest.

Fregosi wants that gold

By Associated Press

All that glitters for Jim Fregosi is not really gold. He hopes to make it so this year.

Fregosi, who never has played on better than a third-place team in his 17 years in the major leagues with four teams, nevertheless sports an 18-karat gold ring which he calls "my World Series ring."

"I was never in the Series, so I went out and got my own ring," said the 35-year-old reserve infielder.

He would like to exchange the somewhat phony jewelry, which he has had for four years, for the real thing this season with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Tuesday night, Fregosi pulled the third-place Pirates within six games of first-place Chicago in the National League East with a 12th-inning homer that lifted Pittsburgh to a 5-4 victory over the Montreal Expos.

Fregosi, obtained by Pittsburgh from the California Angels June 15, has been in 19 of the Pirates' 27 games since then with a .341 batting average and 11 runs batted in.

"I've gotten a little sore doing this much playing, but it's a good sore," said the well-traveled Fregosi. "Playing is the fun part of this game."

While the Pirates were winning, the front-running Cubs were losing to the New York Mets 4-2 and the second-place Philadelphia Phillies were moving within four games of first place with a 5-4 decision over the St. Louis Cardinals.

While Fregosi has expressed delight at being with the Pirates, outfielder Dave Parker has not. Parker, one of the league's leading batters, said Tuesday he was having a problem with the club's management, and if it could not be solved, he wanted to be traded after the season. He did not elaborate.

In addition to Fregosi, Phil Garner homered for Pittsburgh, connecting with one on.

Mets 4, Cubs 2

"It's good to be back on the list of the living," said New York's Jon Matlack after ending a seven-game losing streak with his first victory in two months, against Chicago's Rick Reuschel, the NL's only 12-game winner.

Rookie Steve Henderson's two-run homer—only the fourth off Cubs' relief ace Bruce Sutter in 78 innings—provided the winning margin. Henderson's drive followed a single by Lenny Randle off Reuschel in the eighth.

Phillies 5, Cards 4

Philadelphia rookie Randy Lerch also gained his first victory in two months, allowing nine hits against St. Louis. Afterward, he said, "How I needed this one. Every games means a lot, but they were getting bigger and bigger each time, trying to break what I call a curse."

The curse seemed to be haunting Lerch again when he surrendered a two-run homer to Mike Tyson in the ninth inning, tying the score 4-4. But in the bottom of the ninth, the Phils' Mike Schmidt, the major leagues' home run leader, slammed his 26th homer of the season. But Schmidt, who had missed the three previous games with a hairline fracture of the right ring finger, said he did not think he would play the next couple of games because the finger was bothering him again.

The Phils' Mike Schmidt, the major leagues' home run leader, slammed his 26th homer of the season. But Schmidt, who had missed the three previous games with a hairline fracture of the finger was bothering him again.

Braves 4, Reds 3

Tom Paciorek's sacrifice fly in the ninth inning produced the winning run and Phil Niekro and Rick Camp collaborated on a five-hitter as Atlanta handed Cincinnati its third straight setback. The victory was the ninth for Niekro since May 17, when he was 0-7.

Padres 7, Giants 3

Jerry Turner drove in three runs, Gene Richards knocked in two and Mike Champion and Dave Winfield each collected three hits, leading San Diego past San Francisco. Dan Spillner saved the victory for rookie Bob Owchinko with four innings of scoreless relief.

Bird's injury concerns fans

DETROIT (AP) — An All-Star berth vanished for Mark Fidrych.

But more significant are the victories and spectators that may disappear from the Detroit Tigers if the shoulder injury to "The Bird" is really serious.

Fidrych—the greatest spectator draw in the history of the American League team—left 25,000 fans dismayed Tuesday night as he exited the game against Toronto in the first inning with the injury.

"The doctor said it's just a tired shoulder," Fidrych said, looking and sounding somewhat discouraged.

The Bird, who won six consecutive games before losing the next two, was trailing the Blue Jays 1-0 when the ailment struck.

He had given up an unearned run and was pitching to Ron Fairly with two outs when, on a 3-2 pitch, he motioned for Tigers Manager Ralph Houk to come to the mound.

He told Houk the problem and was immediately replaced by Jim Crawford, who pitched shutout ball the last 8 1-3 innings as the Tigers nipped Toronto, 2-1.

"I threw one pitch (to Fairly) and it (the shoulder) semi-hurt," Fidrych said. "Then I threw another one. Then another one. I said, 'Hey, that isn't me.'"

Houk said it was "a hard thing to figure out ... This Mark thing is almost unbelievable. He had no problem warming up."

According to Dr. David Mitchell, one of the team physicians, "it was nothing serious," Houk said. "It appeared to be a slight muscle pull. There was no tear that would cause a swelling in the arm.

"I'm sure he won't pitch until after the All-Star game. We have to play it by ear."

Fidrych, 6-4, seemed the likely candidate to represent the Tigers on New York Yankees Manager Billy Martin's AL All-Star squad. Each team must have at least one representative.

Congressional measure cost set in billions

NEW YORK (AP) — A Congressional bill aimed at reducing sex discrimination in employe benefit plans could present employers and workers with an unexpected billion-dollar bill annually, insurance sources claim.

They believe that much of the business community is unaware of the bill's provisions, which they say could impose costs that might damage the competitiveness of companies with benefit plans. Companies without plans are not affected by the bill.

While the conflict is over a particular bill, the issues involved were inevitably coming to a head because more women than ever are now in the work force, many of them as primary breadwinners.

The bill, introduced in March by a bipartisan group headed by Sen. Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., and Rep. Augustus F. Hawkins, D-Calif., fails to distinguish between disability income benefits and medical expense benefits.

As a consequence, say representative of the American Council of Life Insurance and the Health Insurance Association of America, it would require insurance plans to pay not only disability income but medical expenses for childbirth.

In effect, pregnancy and childbirth would be treated in the same manner as infections and accidents.

The bill for the medical expenses alone, the insurance industry maintains, would add $1 billion a year to premiums on policies it sells, a figure that some say would be matched by additional Blue Cross-Blue Shield expenses.

The bill originated in an effort to rectify what was felt to be a weakness in the Civil Rights Act of 1964, brought to light by a 1976 Supreme Court ruling in the case of Gilbert versus General Electric.

The court declared it wasn't sex discrimination for an employer to decline disability income for pregnant workers on the same terms and conditions as sickness and accident benefits provided to all workers.

Under many company plans a set amount, generally ranging from $600 to $800, or roughtly one-half the cost of a typical pregnancy, is provided as a medical benefit. No disability income is included in the typical plan.

Supporters of the bill set out to reverse the effect the Supreme Court ruling and enable women to receive disability income for pregnancy and childbirth, a payment that usually comes to about 60 per cent of regular income.

In the process, however, they moved into the area of medical benefits, using wording in the bill that would construe pregnancy to be similar to an illness or accident, and thus make the individual eligible for potentially much higher benefits.

The Senate and House versions of the bill make no attempt to mandate payments where disability or medical plans do not exist. But they do say that in existing plans the limitations in regard to childbirth are discriminatory.

The life and health insurance industries suggested to the Senate Labor Subcommittee last April 29 that the medical expense benefits be removed from the bill, and that disability income be limited.

"Employe benefit plans are designed to protect an individual against losses arising from an unpleasant, unforeseen, unplanned and relatively infrequent event," said Alan Lazarescu, a spokesman.

"In contrast," he said, "pregnancy is commonly desired and generally planned. The resulting expenses are usually predictable and can generally be budgeted for."

Women's groups, civil rights advocates, labor and others countered by asking why women should be penalized, economically, psychologically and socially, while providing, it might be argued, an economically necessary function.

In announcing his bill, Williams commented that the Supreme Court decision "poses a serious threat to the security of the American family unit" and causes some households financial devastation.

Concerned that the industry might be considered opposed to women's rights, one insurance official said this week "We don't oppose protection for women — we sell it."

He said, "We'd be very happy if any company that can afford it buys our childbirth benefits. But we don't think the purchases should be mandated." The added costs could be a severe burden, he said, and might endanger some plans.

Market activity

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market headed lower early Wedneeday in moderate trading, driving the Dow Jones industrial average near its low for the year.

Shortly before noon EDT, the closely watched Dow average was off 2.97 points to 900.44. Its low for the year — also a 16month low —was 898.66 on May 31. The Dow lost 2.12 points Tuesday.

Analysts said institutions have been selling basic-industry stocks represented by the Dow because many observers believe the economy will slow down later this year from the strong gains made in 1977's first six months.

Some investors were waiting for the Federal Reserve Board's money supply report lae Thursday, which many expect to show a large increase that could lead to higher interest rates.

Other investors retreated to the sidelines to seek more information about the Justice Department's price-fixing investigation of the steel industry, which was revealed early in the day.

Breadth figures reflected some investor uncertainty about the course of the market. Declines led advances, 614 to 453, among the 1,603 issues crossing the tape. There were 536 unchanged issues.

New York Stock Exchange volume at the two-hour mark amounted to about 8,900,000 shares, compared with 9,210,000 traded during the same period Tuesday.

Lockheed was the most active NYSE issue, up 1⅛ to 17⅛. Texas Utilities followed, unchanged at 21⅜. Caterpillar Tractor was third, off ⅛ to 54¾.

Allis Chalmers was ahead ½ after the company reported its second quarter earnings rose to $2.10 a share from $1.69 a year ago.

Inernational Paper was off ⅝ after the blue-chip firm reported its second-quarter net fell to $1.26 a share from $1.88 a year ago.

Superscope was off ½. The company said late Tuesday it expects to report sharply lower second-quarter earnings.

Owens-Illinois was off ½. The company reported second quarter earnings of $1.12 a share, compared with $1.01 a year ago.

Prices were mixed in active trading of American Stock Exchange issues. Tuftco was ahead ¾ after the company reported its second-quarter net rose to 75 cents a share from 38 cents on more shares a year ago.

Resorts International A stock was off ¾, but the B stock was ahead ¾. The Amex set a 100 per cent margin requirement for trading in both stocks.

NEW PRODUCT FOR GASOLINE SAVING — Gerry Keller, Atlantic-Richfield Co. manager of engine oils research and development, holds up graphite, produced by ARCO, during a press conference in New York. Atlantic-Richfield Co. officials say their new product of motor oil fortified with graphite will improve gasoline mileage and reduce engine heat.

Motor oil with graphite introduced

NEW YORK (AP) — A pitchblack motor oil containing graphite was introduced Monday by Atlantic Richfield Co. (ARCO) officials who said the new product reduces engine wear and can improve gasoline mileage.

The new product, called "ARCOgraphite," can improve gasoline mileage by a maximum of a little over one mile per gallon, ARCO spokesmen said, but the average saving, based on a fleet test of 300,000 miles of city, suburban and highway driving, is about one-half mile per gallon.

Gerry Keller, ARCO's manager of engine oils research and development, said the gasoline savings, plus reduced engine wear of about 45 per cent, result from the unique lubricating properties of graphite, a crystalline form of carbon commonly used by itself to lubricate such things as locks.

ARCO is selling the oil for $1.55 a quart, compared to $1.25 for comparable premium-grade oil without the additive.

The graphite, produced by ARCO from petroleum coke, is ground to microscopic-sized particles before being mixed with high-quality motor oil. Keller said extensive tests have showed that the particles remain suspended in the oil and pass easily through oil filters.

But the additive turns the oil black, and company officials fear that might cause marketing problems.

"There are people in the company who fear that people will look at this oil (after it is in the engine) and change it just because it looks black and dirty," he said.

To combat that, special stickers and dipstick labels are being prepared to remind consumers that the product is supposed to be black. The company recommends crankcase oil changes at automaker-recommended intervals, rather than the common practice of changing oil when it appears dirty.

A similar product is being marketed in France and Belgium by a French firm, but no other oil with a graphite additive is believed available in the U.S.

Mobil Oil Corp. markets what it calls "a synthesized motor oil" called Mobil 1. That product, based on crude oil that is chemically altered to help reduce engine friction, sells for $3.95 per quart. Mobil says it saves an average of about one-half mile per gallon.

ARCO marketing officials said their new product already is available at the firm's gasoline stations in more than 30 states, primarily on the East and West coasts. It also will be sold at some retail stores.

Keller said development of the new product began just after the Arab oil embargo of 1973 and cost about $2 million to produce.

ARCO, which merged with Sinclair Oil in March 1969, is the eighth largest U.S. oil firm. The firm's 1976 sales were $8.9 billion; net income was $575 million, including a sale of Canadian assets.

Mother glacier

The Jacobshavn glacier on the west coast of Greenland is one of the largest in the Western Hemisphere and the world's fastest. It flows at a rate of more than 100 yards a day and "calves" giant icebergs as often as every five minutes.

Automakers claim tax on gas-guzzlers unfair

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Big Three automobile manufacturers argued Tuesday that President Carter's proposed tax on gas-hungry cars is unnecessary interference which would weigh most heavily on low and middle-income families.

"In spite of all the phony rhetoric about monstrous gas-guzzlers, the fact remains that the proposed system of taxes ... would, in 1985, levy a $575 fine on a family of six who buys a car that averages 22 miles per gallon," said S.L. Terry, vice president of Chrysler Corp.

Terry referred to a tax approved by the House Ways and Means Committee. The committee's tax is a modified version of the one proposed by Carter as a basic part of his energy program.

Terry and representatives of General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Corp. criticized the gas guzzler tax in testimony before the Senate Commerce subcommittee on science and technology.

All three manufacturers maintained there are enough incentives to improve the fuel efficiency of their cars without adding a new layer of taxes.

Under present law, the full production of each car manufacturer is required to average 18 miles per gallon for 1978 models, rising to 27.5 mpg by 1985. For each mile per gallon that the fleet falls below the target, the company must pay a penalty of $50 for every car it makes.

It is likely that most of this penalty ultimately would be passed along to the new-car buyer.

The Carter administration contends the existing penalties are not enough to discourage production of gas-hungry cars. Thus, the President proposed a gas-guzzler tax to be paid directly by any purchaser of an inefficient car, starting with 1979 models.

At the start, the tax would be $339, for cars that get between 14 and 15 mpg. By 1985, the tax would begin at $397 for models in the 23 mpg range, rising to $3,856 for those below 12.5 mpg.

Henry L. Duncombe Jr., vice president of General Motors, told the Senate subcommittee the most obvious effect of the gas-guzzler tax would be to price out of the market many middle-income families that need a five-or six-passenger car.

Herbert L. Misch, vice president of Ford, said his company will meet the existing fuel-economy standards "not because of the enormous penalty we would otherwise face but because the law requires it.

VW chief urges U.S. bounty for old cars

DETROIT (AP) — The man in charge of building Volkswagens in the United States says he believes the federal government should offer a bounty to get motorists to scrap their old gas-guzzling cars.

Replacement of those cars by more efficient models could save 1.7 billion gallons of gasoline a year, James W. McLernon told a symposium sponsored by Automotive News on Monday night.

McLernon is president of Volkswagen Manufacturing Corp. of America, which is completing a plant in Pennsylvania to manufacture the VW Rabbit.

He said he particularly had in mind cars built before 1975.

"Unfortunately, the older cars, now one of every four on the road, are owned by lower income groups who cannot afford to buy a new car," McLernon said.

If the government wants to improve mileage, "these cars must be replaced by more efficient models. While the government is considering rebates to conserve fuel, they should recognize the need for an incentive program to encourage owners of old cars to scrap their present cars," he said.

Homes today show owners' lifestyle

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Even armed with 28 years of interior design experience acquired in homes, hospitals and offices, Hazel Korper was "taken aback" when she got to Houston and saw that a new kind of grand lifestyle was emerging.

A liaison for Horizon '77, the theme of this year's annual conference of the American Society of Interior Designers, she was planning a Houston house tour for the meeting, July 22 to 25.

"Houses are being designed with things people enjoy, whether it is two swimming pools, a television room with a big screen or a museum. They aren't decorated as status symbols — the things are acquired because they make people personally happy. Color is a personal thing, although there is a trend to subtlety," she said.

"Some ceilings in new homes are 14 feet tall with wood doors that go right to the ceiling. Houses are electrified for sound and buttons are pushed to make all kinds of things happen. In one home three rooms are used to display a very large collection of oriental art. In another home a second pool off a master bedroom was built into an outside enclosure."

A contrast was a charming home that was furnished with inherited antiques from Oklahoma's pioneer days, done with magnificent pastel backgrounds. In children's rooms little drawings done by the children were used almost as wallpaper treatments, she explained.

Old town houses are being gutted to get some interesting two-story effects with handsome circular staircases. One house had a ceiling that was electrified to provide a sculptured look. A dining room on a balcony overlooked both a living room and an enclosed garden pool. The roof of one house had a garden of vegetables and flowers..

Unlike Houston, Dallas is still into status symbols, in her opinion, "and they like it that way." Some homes have beautiful collections of art and some are done with great traditional feeling.

Mrs. Korper has been an interior designer in Connecticut as well as New York, and recently spent several months in Washington, where she observed that most people do not live with their own furnishings because the city "is an extremely transient one."

"They choose homes or apartments that are good for entertainment and they decorate mostly for parties. If homes aren't suitable for social events, they entertain in restaurants," she said.

And this flexible lifestyle isn't confined to those who can afford opulence. If you don't have what you want — you make it happen. In houses and apartments with smaller rooms, a lot of good ideas are being tailored to fit, whether it means removing a wall or adding an embellishment.

"For example, condominiums and cooperative apartments provide more opportunity to do your own architectural thing," she said.

"Draperies are almost a thing of the past in tall buildings. Some windows are designed like stage sets to bring in views.

"People are into an uncluttered look now with fewer, but choicer, things and even in Chicago more people are choosing contemporary furnishings, which can provide an uncluttered look."

The Houston conference will be consumer oriented with outstanding speakers, including Joan Mondale, Mrs. Korper said.

There will be more than 30 workshops. One, the Industrialization of Space over the next 25 years, will be conducted by NASA's Jesco Von Puttkamer. Another, on future developments in architecture and interior design, will be given by William Jenkins, dean of architectural studies at the University of Houston.

Other workshops include those on restoration and lighting. Health, Education and Welfare officials will give workshops on work environments.

More than 2,200 members of the design organization are expected to attend the four-day conference.

Joyce Brothers

Too much for one

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: Both my husband and I work at full-time jobs and have for a number of years. The extra income has provided us a comfortable life (we have no children), but it has placed a double burden on me. My husband absolutely refuses to help in any way around the house, with the shopping, or even making incidental telephone calls about wrong bills or late deliveries. Frankly, I'm worn out. My job is as demanding as his and I can't see any reason he can't help. Can you? — H.W.

DEAR H.W.: No. It sounds like your mate is one of those old-time chauvinists who believes that helping with the housework is undignified for a man.

You are quite right that he should be of assistance — exchanging your working for his helping. Probably your husband's mother stayed at home and picked up after her family. That's obviously not the situation in your home and you should let him know it in no uncertain terms. Your energies are being expended to contribute to income and there should be a sharing of responsibility as well.

Two thoughts come to mind: Threaten to quit your job so you can stay at home and attend to the housework, or hire a part-time housekeeper. The later won't free you of all chores but should take some of the load from you. If your husband balks, lay it on the line and tell him you can't handle it alone. He might be surprised to discover he enjoys certain aspects of housework or shopping. Many men do.

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: My husband and I divorced two years ago amicably. He came to the house quite often under liberal child visitation rights and he and our 9-year-old son got on famously. About six months ago, my ex took a job in a distant state and we haven't heard from him since. It has been particularly hard on the boy, and he now has me worried. He seldom sees any of his friends as he did before, doesn't want to go to school and is extremely despondent. Where do I turn? — G.K.

DEAR G.K.: Unfortunately, absence doesn't always make the heart grow fonder — or so it would seem is the case with your ex-husband's attitude toward your son. His thoughtlessness can be extremely harmful to the boy.

The immediate need is to contact your ex and let him know how his indifference has affected his son. Divorce is difficult enough for a child to comprehend. When one of the parents, especially one with whom he had a close relationship, suddenly disappears from the scene, it can be doubly upsetting.

Stress to your ex that a phone call, letter or, preferably, a short visit would reaffirm the boy's faith in himself — and in his father. Unless the boy is made to realize soon that the breakup of your marriage and the departure of his father were in no way his doing (children often blame themselves when their parents divorce) he may require professional assistance to deal with emotional distress.

In the meantime, talk to the school guidance counselor, contact some group, such as the Police Athletic League that can provide substitute father figures, or ask a male acquaintance to befriend the boy. At his age, the need for male companionship is important.

Mrs. Breitkreutz marks 100th year

A celebration with Holy Communion recently noted the 100th birthday of Mrs. Emma Breitkreutz of Diamond Bar.

Officiating at the ceremony at Norwalk Inter-Community Hospital were the celebrant's two pastors, the Rev. Tobias Joeckel, a former pastor of Redeemer Lutheran Church, South Gate, and the Rev. William H. Ilten of Mt. Calvary Lutheran Church, Diamond Bar. Family and friends from Minnesota and California were present.

Mrs. Breitkreutz was born July 2, 1877, the daughter of Ferdinand and Louise Lenz at Danube, Minn. She was married to Paul F. Breitkreutz in 1902 at Emmet Township, Minn., where they lived until his death in 1934. In 1941 she moved to California to live with her daughter, Mrs. Geraldine Radde, first in South Gate and since 1973 in Diamond Bar.

She has two other daughters, Mrs. Irene Larsen in Minnesota, and Mrs. Ruth Zosel in Hemet. A son is deceased. She has eight grandchildren, 27 great-grandchildren and eight great-great-grandchildren.

Among the congratulatory messages she received were those from President and Mrs. Jimmy Carter; the governors of Minnesota and California, the president of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, the president of the Southern California District of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, and numerous relatives and friends.

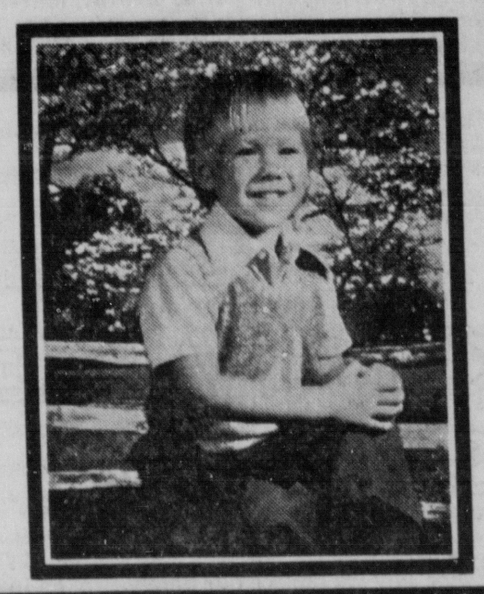

Meeting scheduled Thursday

The Montclair Heights Business and Professional Women's Club will discuss plans for the annual Fun and Fund project when the group meets at 8 p.m., Thursday, at the Gallup Realty Co., 8980 Benson Ave., Montclair.

FAMILY CIRCUS

"Why did you make that knothole?"

Candle prophesy

Fortunes once were told and futures read in the shapes found in the drippings of candles, says Hallmark researcher Sally Hopkins. A triangular shape meant success. A tear-shaped drop of wax indicated sorrow and curves represented false friends. Like the shapes formed by tea leaves, the wax drippings were used to prophesy life, death, marriage, prosperity and long journeys.

Fast food operations enjoying fast growth

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — By 1980 about half of the food consumed in this country will be prepared away from home, predicts a Purdue University professor.

"The future for fast food operations is very bright," says Lee M. Kreul, assistant professor in the School of Consumer and Family Sciences.

"People now spend one of every three food dollars in restaurants and fast-food outlets, and by 1980 they will be spending one of every two food dollars for food away from home," the restaurant, hotel and institutional management expert says.

The reasons for this increase may be attributed, he says, to there being more people living alone, more women working and an increase in disposable income.

Kreul says that people are shedding their guilt complexes about eating out.

"In the past, many had feelings of guilt when they spent hard-earned cash to go out and eat. Eating out was a luxury they enjoyed only once in a while. Now there are more people working and the cost can be justified. More wives are working and don't have time to cook at home."

"And," he says, "this trend toward buying food prepared away from home is hurting supermarkets' income. Grocery stores are selling no more than they were about five years ago.

"There also have been quite a few changes in fast food menus," Kreul says. "Fast food outlets are doing more experimenting with additional features such as salad bars and fish items to supplement menus."

More emphasisis is being placed on self-service, with more drive-up windows being added by fast-food operators, he points out.

Kreul also says that quick-service restaurants, in addition to expanding menus, are expanding sit-down space inside. "And they are placing more emphasis on quality," he adds.

A recent survey by a research firm, he says, shows that what people want most of all in fast-food service is quality and cleanliness.

There is a move to the fast-food type in the military, too, according to Kreul.

"The military has found that their recruits have grown up on fast foods and their food in the service has to reflect this type menu and service," he says. "The military is picking the brains of the industry to find out how to cope with the problem."

How to get clean wash in a drought.

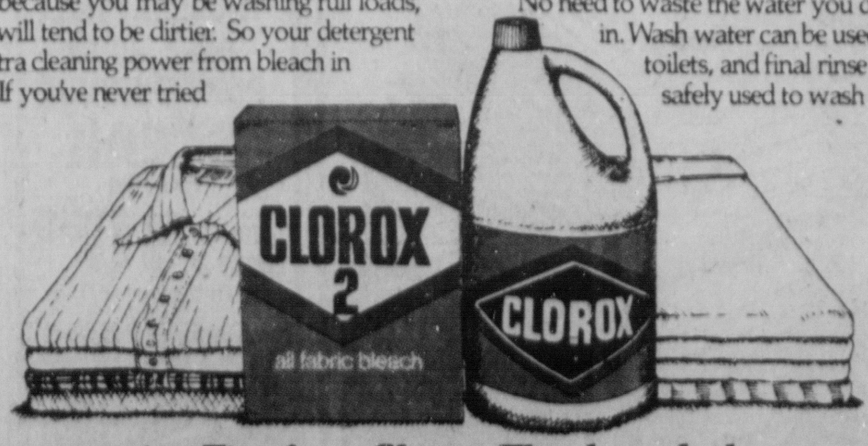

1. Try to do full loads. It will take more planning, but it means no waste—and that's what conservation is all about.
2. Don't overload. Follow your machine's instructions. A few too many items and your machine can't agitate properly and clothes won't circulate enough to get clean.

Give your detergent some cleaning help.

1. Because your family may be wearing clothes longer, and because you may be washing full loads, those loads will tend to be dirtier. So your detergent will need extra cleaning power from bleach in every load. If you've never tried Clorox® Liquid Bleach or Clorox 2® All-Fabric Bleach, you will be pleased to find how effective they are on the dirt and stains in these tougher loads.
2. Make sure you add enough Clorox Liquid. Normal usage is 1 cup—follow package instructions for dirtier, full loads.
3. For Clorox 2 loads, again be sure to use enough. Normal usage is ½ cup—follow package instructions for dirtier, full loads.

One more thing.

No need to waste the water you do your wash in. Wash water can be used for flushing toilets, and final rinse water can be safely used to wash cars and pets.

Conservation Tips from Clorox–The clean clothes people.

FUNNY BUSINESS By Roger Bollen

Budget chief has financial problems, too

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is coming to the support of his budget director, Bert Lance, whose personal financial difficulties could prove embarrassing for an administration pledged to balancing the federal budget.

Carter's press spokesman, Jody Powell, said Monday there is "absolutely not" any chance that Lance will resign. Asked whether Carter thinks Lance's financial difficulties pose a serious problem for him, Powell replied, "No, he does not."

When Lance appeared on the verge of indicating recently that he would resign over his troubles, if Carter wished him to, the President told him to "forget it," Powell said.

But these affirmations of support do not mean Lance doesn't have financial problems. He does, and he freely admits them.

The budget director confirmed in an interview he stands to lose considerable money, hypothetically as much as $1.7 million, if forced to sell his stock holdings in the National Bank of Georgia at its current low price. Lance was president of the bank before coming to Washington with Carter.

He also said he might ask the President for an extension of the Dec. 31 deadline for disposing of the bank stock, which Lance placed in a blind trust, along with his other financial holdings, where it is managed for him by a trustee.

"I could ask for one," Lance said, but added he has not yet made up his mind.

For one thing, the potential loss in the value of the stock on paper may not be so much as $1.7 million when it is actually sold. "If taken as a measure of value, it could be that high, but ... I can't conceive the loss would be that much," he said.

He said the stock, when sold, likely would be disposed of in over-the-counter trading and placed in such a way that the loss would be less, perhaps much less.

Basically, Lance's problem with the bank stock is that he borrowed heavily in 1975 to buy about 165,000 shares at $17.74 per share, spending $2.9 million to gain control of the bank with two partners. He bought another 27,000 shares last September at $16.87 a share.

But for various reasons, among them declining profits, the value of the bank's stock has shrunk to only about half the purchase value, under $9 per share.

Under the conflict-of-interest guidelines set by Carter for officials of his administration, Lance is supposed to dispose of his stock holdings by Dec. 31. If the price of the bank stock is as low then as it is now, the hypothetical loss could total $1.7 million.

Complicating the problem for Lance that he still must repay much of a $3.4 million loan he obtained in December from the First National Bank of Chicago. The loan was used indirectly to finance his original purchase of the bank stock.

At the time he was confirmed for the job of budget director, Lance filed a financial statement with the Senate listing assets for just under $8 million and liabilities of slightly more than $5.3 million.

But the decline in value of his bank stock has narrowed the gap between assets and liabilities considerably.

Further, Lance earns $57,500 as budget director, compared with the $150,000 in salary and severance pay he earned in his bank position.

One reason for the decline in value of the bank stock, but not the only one, is that the National Bank of Georgia disclosed a loss in its operations during the first half of the year and reported that cash dividends to stockholders would be "reduced or eliminated."

Lance was president of the bank, Atlanta's fifth largest, in 1975 and 1976. While the losses are blamed by the current management on loans that have gone sour, an aide to Lance said only a small amount of those loans were made while Lance was president.

"The bulk of those loans were made before Lance got there ... the bank is in better shape than most other Atlanta banks," said the aide, Robert Dietsch.

"Lance doesn't duck the fact that a small minority of the loans that were made while he was president have gone bad," Dietsch added.

To the question of whether all this isn't an embarrassment for the official most responsible for keeping the government's books and for carrying out Carter's pledge to balance the budget by fiscal 1981, Dietsch said it is no embarrassment at all.

Lance's problems aren't that serious, he said. He added that Lance's collateral for his loans is deemed adequate by the First National Bank of Chicago, and said Lance is current in payments on all his loans.

As for the possibility that Lance will ask for an extension of the conflict-of-interest Dec. 31 deadline, Dietsch replied, "Naturally he wants to sell his bank stock at a profit. Who wouldn't?"

Strike ban initiative under way

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Committee for Individual Rights, headed by two Los Angeles women, has begun a drive to get 499,846 signatures on an initiative that would ban strikes by public employes.

The drive, which began Wednesday, seeks a provision in the state constitution to take away jobs, tenure and seniority from striking public employes, including teachers.

In addition, their employers could not settle labor disputes by binding arbitration or by increasing salaries.

Committee leaders Dolly J. Swift and Betty A. Cordoba said they hope enough people would sign the initiative to make the June, 1978 ballot.

Suburb forbids almost everything

CLEVELAND (AP) — During Prohibition, people in the Cleveland suburb of Russell Township operated stills "and there was liquor, wine and beer all aound," says one long-time Russell Township resident.

But since the repeal of prohibition in 1933, it has been next to impossible to find spirits in the Township, which is dry to this day.

Now the township's trustees have adopted zoning amendments to make sure it stays that way.

A list of activities proscribed last week included 20 businesses, among them bars, restaurants, state liquor stores, beer and wine outlets, laundries, dry cleaners, bakeries, auto part stores, or motorcycle sales establishments.

The township has three gas stations and any more are prohibited.

Jets of gas

"SPEAKING OF GARDENS..."

Ground covers which are in the seeding stage need care now. Shear them and feed lightly with a liquid or pelleted fertilizer.

Summer lawn care means continued deep watering with mowers adjusted to cut 3" and apply a good liquid fertilizer. Spotted spurge and crabgrass are the pests of July. To rid your lawn, pull out or apply a selective herbicide. Watch for flea beetles in Dichondra. Bermuda lawns may get an infestation of mites or billbugs. Yellowing of leaves, (Chlorosis), in lawns, probably indicates the need for iron. Certain plants, too, may "speak" to you in this manner. Iron is available in liquid or dry form.

Here are a few more "DO'S" and "DON'TS" for this summer season:

1. Don't continue pinching mums.
2. Do stake them if needed and continue feeding bi-monthly until bloom.
3. Don't fertilize roses for a few weeks while they rest.
4. Do cut back artichokes after bearing.
5. Do watch for insect pests during this peak time for them. Spray with malathion.
6. Do feed citrus and avocados now.

GEMCO HOT SUMMER SPECTACULAR

Won't somebody take us up on our "DOUBLE THE DIFFERENCE" REFUND GUARANTEE*?

Some months back we did a price check of Gemco supermarket prices against other supermarkets here in town, including that group which calls itself 'discount'. We proved to ourselves that our prices are lower.

Then we put our reputation on the line. We wanted...and still want...to prove to you that Gemco members get the best deal going on food prices. So we made a rash offer, which still stands:

Shop with us for 25 items or more, worth $20 or more. Then take that same list to any other store in town and compare item for comparable item. If our total isn't lower than theirs, bring your register receipt and your hand-written list of the other stores' prices back to us. We'll refund you double the difference off the two totals.

A couple of months ago, we had two takers for this refund offer. We actually refunded the grand sum total, between the two, of $1.80. And that's at double the difference, remember. A few hearts sank around here. Then we double checked the comparison figures, and found a tiny error in each list. Gemco supermarket buyers could still be proud of our record. But even if we hadn't found the errors, we'd still have reason to be pleased with the job our buyers are doing, considering all the millions of Gemco members who shop with us every week.

Our commitment stems from the fact that we believe our pricing policy in our supermarket, as in every area of our store, is as much as reason for you to be a member, as is the selection and quality we offer. So we intend to continue putting outselves on the line for you:

IF YOU'VE CHOSEN TO BE A MEMBER OF OUR GEMCO FAMILY, WE'LL GO OUT OF OUR WAY TO PROTECT YOUR BUDGET.

Come on in and find out for yourself, this week, won't you?
